Series Examines Silo Safety

Farmers Tell Of Experiences With Deadly Silo Gas, Molds

Editor's note: This is the first of a three-part series.

CONESTOGA (Lancaster Co.) — Rodney Martin, Ken Kirkland, Ted Ferris, and Michael Schutz all share a common memory. It's a memory filled with a great deal of pain, anger, and anxiety.

And it's a pain that, under worse circumstances, could have turned deadly.

At the same time, if they knew then what they know now, the pain could have easily been avoided.

In the telling of their experiences, each one hopes that farmers would listen carefully and try to avoid the mistakes they made regarding what happened to them or someone they knew on the farm years ago.

Rodney Martin

Dairyman Rodney Martin blames not getting to the silo and doing the work when it should have been done.

Rodney was backlogged with work to do in the dairy barn, and didn't have time to return to the newly-filled 20-foot by 70-foot haylage silo to level it off. The silo was filled about 2 a.m. on May 25, 1994. Rodney returned to the silo about 12 hours later, on a hot afternoon, to hook up a blower to the pipe leading into the top of the silo.

Rodney knew some of the deadliest gas in the world — nitrogen dioxide, as the scientists called it — lurked at the bottom of a "valley" created by the filling. Looking from the top of the silo, he could easily make out the dark, greenish-brown gases in the valley.

The blower wasn't clearing the gases at all. Rodney learned, later on, that the air was simply going up the pipe, through the top of the silo, and down the other side. He had an idea. The only way, he thought, to get to the gases was to open a series of access doors on the inside chute.

So, after 15-20 minutes of blowing fresh air into the chute, Rodney began the climb up. His plan was to throw open the door and quickly climb to a higher level above the gases. Simple, he thought. Just get the door open right at silage level, so instead of the air jumping over the top, the silo gas could simply drop down and away from the silo.

"In theory, that should have worked," said Rodney. "In fact, that's what I eventually did."

Rodney's brother Jere had gone up there before, and gases were already ejecting from the chute. Jere quickly came down, and complained to Rodney that he already felt nauseous, that he about passed out, he could hardly stand, and felt pretty sick. Jere told Rodney "don't go up there, whatever you do."

So the brothers stood and debated what to do. Rodney decided he would climb as fast as he could, open a door, and move quickly to a higher level.

The split second he threw the door open, Rodney knew something hit him.

"A cloud of gas hit me, dark gas, and it surprised me," he said. "I knew it would happen. But it surprised me that it hit me so fast."

Rodney got about two whiffs of the toxic gas and could feel it burn the whole way down his throat.

State Budget Doesn't Cut Agriculture, Reinstates Some Programs

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state's 1994-95 budget was passed by the state legislature and signed by the governor last week, two weeks ahead of deadline.

The only apparent hitch was an error discovered in the final version that inadvertently eliminated taxes for trucking that would have created a $90 million shortfall. The legislature has approved correcting that mistake.

In general, the $15.7 billion budget package cuts welfare benefits and also some business taxes, while putting more money toward schools and prisons, according to published reports and government officials.

For the state's leading industry, agriculture in effect had some funding restored from last year's budget, and seemed to signal a reverse in a trend of annual cuts to agriculture that have occured under Gov. Casey.

Casey, who as governor signed his final budget plan, has in past years used his line-item veto powers to either eliminate funding for several agricultural programs, or has refused to release promised funds to certain agricultural agencies and programs.

The normal partisan budget debates, which have held up passage of previous budgets months past the annual June 30 deadline, were not as evident with the forming of the budget.

And, according to an Associated Press report, this year's budget discussions eliminated participation of the majority House Democrats, who opposed the welfare cuts and business tax cuts.

According to the published report, Senate and House Republicans and House Republicans negotiated the budget with Gov. Casey

Bitlers Prepare For National Young Holstein Breeders Contest

MOSELEM SPRINGS (Berks Co.) — Vista-Grande Farm is a classic farmstead, with a big neighbor — the Deka battery recycling plant.

The farm is owned by David and Phoebe Bitler and as far as they are concerned, Deka has been a good neighbor, dissuading residential development, and testing their well water every six weeks for a long list of contaminants that they expect will never show up.

The expensive testing is a requirement for the plant to operate, but it serves as a constant reassurance to the Bitlers that the Deka plant is living up to its role as an environment improving company.

In addition Deka provides 2,800 non-union jobs.

Area school kids know the farm. Phoebe encourages some school field trips to the family farm where she grew up, and she talks to the kids, explaining from where milk comes, how its made, and she hands out coloring books along with white or chocolate milk.

Phoebe was the 1973 Berks County dairy princess. She has kept and honed public speaking

Six-County Group Considers Agribusiness Development

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) — Maybe it boils down to the old maxim that one man's trash is another's treasure, but the impact of the state's eastern, urban sprawl on ag-related industry could be a bonus for the west central, six-county block known as the Southern Alleghenies.

Growing problems in the east include the heavy traffic, pollution and the usual citizen complaints.

What do Southern Alleghenies counties offer? Cambria, Bedford, Blair, Fulton, Huntingdon and Somerset counties are less urbanized, with space for innovative agribusiness ideas to flourish.

The fact that agriculture is the leading industry here, just as it is for the state, is a bonus. But can the right people be persuaded that their joint cooperation can create agribusiness growth? Besides his daily sweat and toil, will the farmer reap a good harvest from it?

These were topics discussed by a panel on agricultural economic development, held during Southern Alleghenies Planning and Development Commission's 28th annual conference, at the Market Street Holiday Inn in Johnstown.

Panelists were John Zerby, Purina Feeds; Scott Clemens, Hatfield Quality Meats; Evan Fineman, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative; Christian Herr, State Dept. of Agriculture; Governor's Response Team, Carol Ployer, and Walt Fullam, Penn State.

Moderator was Donald Evans, assistant dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. He was introduced by Dick Rice, chairman of the Bedford County commissioners.

It was a discussion of importance to some 50 county government leaders, employment officials, bankers, Farm Credit officials, farmers and others.

Evans noted that in Pennsylva-

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.
Wednesday, June 22, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY WHEAT PRICES CONTINUE LOWER UNDER HARVEST PRESSURE AND PROFIT TAKING, DESPITE EXCELLENT EXPORT DEMAND AND RAIN DELAYED HARVEST IN PARTS OF KANSAS. THE WET WEATHER ACROSS THE MIDWEST AND CORN BELT AREAS WASHED CORN AND BEAN PRICES LOWER. WHEAT 5 TO 9 CENTS LOWER. CORN 5 TO 8 CENTS LOWER. SORGHUM 11 TO 12 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 9 TO 14 CENTS LOWER. WHEAT HARVEST CONTINUED TO PROGRESS INTO KANSAS WITH AROUND 25 PERCENT CUT- TING COMPLETE. RAINFALL CAUSED SOME DELAYS IN CUTTING BUT NOT ENOUGH TO SUP- PORT PRICES. EXCELLENT EXPORT DEMAND FOR WHEAT LIMITED PRICE DECLINES. CORN AND BEAN CROPS FLOURISH DUE TO MUCH NEEDED MOISTURE RECEIVED IN MID- WEST AND CORN BELT AREAS WITH ADDITIONAL RAINS AND COOLER TEMPERATURES FORECAST INTO NEXT WEEK. HEAVY FUND SELLING ON THE BOARD MAGNIFIED SOYBEAN PRICE WEAK- NESS. THE LACK OF MUCH EXPORT DEMAND ALSO ADDED PRESSURE TO PRICES.

EXPORT NEWS: ALGERIA BOUGHT 75,000 TONNES HARD RED WINTER WHEAT AND 25,000 TONNES SOFT RED WINTER WHEAT UNDER EEP FOR AUGUST. PAKISTAN BOUGHT 250,000 TONNES SOFT WHITE WHEAT UNDER EEP FOR OCTOBER SHIPMENT. SUBSAHARAN BOUGHT 25,000 TONNES OF NORTHERN/DARK NORTHERN SPRING WHEAT UNDER EEP FOR JUNE/OCTOBER SHIPMENT. JAPAN BOUGHT 23,809 TONNES DARK NORTHERN SPRING WHEAT, 10,000 TONNES WESTERN WHITE, 28,094 HARD RED WINTER, UNDER EEP FOR AUGUST SHIPMENT. ALGERIA BOUGHT 73,500 TONNES BARLEY UNDER EEP FOR JULY SHIPMENT. CYPRUS BOUGHT 25,000 TONNES BARLEY UNDER EEP FOR AUG/SEP SHIPMENT.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, June 22, 1994

Trucklot buying interest ranged light to fair. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were well cleared. Trading was reported at unchanged prices and the trade sentiment was steady. Line run breasts were readily available and slow to clear. Several trades were reported at sharply lower prices but most new bookings were at the 79 to 80 cent mark. Some buyers continue to wait until the market develops before booking product for next week. Whole legs and drumsticks were fully adequate and urged for sale. Leg quarters were adequate; however buyers and sellers disagree over values. In the meantime supplies were in firm hands.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES. National Egg Market

Wednesday, June 22, 1994

NATIONAL EGG - AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged. The market tone was cautiously steady. Retail demand continued mostly light to fair, and food service movement was fair to good. Supplies were generally at least adequate or available, except the heaviest sizes were less available where production of the heavy eggs was diminished from the hot, humid weather. Breaking stock prices were unchanged, and supplies were at least adequate for the unaggressive demand. Live hen offerings were adequate to ample for the light and unaggressive demand, and the undertone was about steady.

North Atlantic Shell Eggs

Thursday, June 23, 1994

Report Supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: THE MARKET TONE WAS CAUTIOUSLY STEADY. DEMAND CONTINUED NO BETTER THAN FAIR EXCEPT WHERE FEATURED OR INTO VACATION AREAS WHERE MOVEMENT WAS IMPROVED. SUPPLIES WERE AT LEAST ADEQUATE OR AVAILABLE EXCEPT THE HEAVIEST SIZES WERE OFTEN BARELY ADEQUATE AS A RESULT OF DECREASED PRODUCTION DURING THE HEAT SPELL. BREAKERS RAN FULL SCHEDULES WITH ADEQUATE SUPPLIES AND OFFERINGS. A EXTRA LARGE .60-.64, LARGE .58-.62, MEDIUMS .46-.48.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, June 22, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light to fair at best. Under 3 pound sizes remained in excess of current needs. Heavier weights were generally no more than adequate. Live supplies were moderate; weights were often lighter than desired. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent lower at 52 to 60 cents. Trade sentiment was weak to lower. In the parts complex, boneless skinless breasts and wings were in best balance. Bone-in breasts and drumsticks were available and slow to clear. Other items were irregularly balanced, but fully adequate overall.

Why Not Real Creamer For Coffee?

George F.W. Haenlein
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — The U.S. dairy industry has an organization to promote cow's milk and its products. Why, then, is it profitable for so many milk-processing companies to market non-dairy products?

For years here in our agricultural college building offices, I've argued against non-dairy creamers, which are used almost exclusively for coffee breaks! But the fact remains that the milk industry has yet to come up with an equally convenient package of coffee creamer made from real milk.

Even better would be a product made from 1 percent milk to cater to people who love milk, but because of their diets refuse to drink fat cream in their coffee.

Of course, non-dairy products are loaded with coconut oil and other undesirable fats, but the label print is so small that many people don't bother to read the contents.

It also seems that people forego drinking milk and spend 55 cents for a 12-ounce can of "diet" soda with "1 calorie" content. Fifty-five cents for colored water! At this average price per can, soda is $1.47 a quart or $5.88 a gallon... This is a prime example of the deception of promotion.

It's remarkable that intelligent people will shell out $5.88 for colored water when an equal amount of milk (even without the fat calories as in skim milk) costs only $2.49 a gallon. And milk contains protein value, minerals, vitamins and calcium.

Milk prices received by farmers, already on a downward slide, are predicted to drop further in the near future because of a milk surplus. And there is no shortage of cheese, which would hold the milk farm price up.

Given this, why is there no organized effort by the industry to capture the non-dairy market for real milk and cream? Possibly the low farm price is part of a "conspiracy" to suppress profit margins for milk processors and ensure higher profits for handling non-dairy products.

The fact is that if you want 1 percent dry milk in your coffee instead of a non-dairy creamer, you won't find it on the grocery shelf, or anywhere else for that matter. You'll find "half and half," but it contains fat, which isn't appropriate for many of today's diets. Or you'll find dry skim milk powder in huge boxes, but it's meant for making reconstituted or fortified milk, and isn't readily convenient for use in the coffee-creamer niche.

Dairy processors, which also make these non-dairy products, say that without the non-dairy items they could not survive. No matter what the product, it is well-known that promotion competition is well-financed and fierce.

Yet it's unique to the dairy business that a major share of promotion costs for milk and cheese is paid not by the processing industry (as is true for beef, soft drinks, etc.) but by the dairy farmer — 15 cents for every 100 pounds of milk sold!

If dairy farmers are financing the promotion, why shouldn't they have more influence over the processing industry in making a convenient 1 percent milk real-dairy product packaged for coffee? Such a product would be popular with people who want to avoid the coconut fat in non-dairy creamers and who are interested in a more nutritional alternative.

Real dairy "creamers" would contribute to our daily minimum intake of calcium, for which the primary source is milk.

In our university offices I've faced another debate when arguing against the coconut fat in non-dairy creamers. Our plant science people defend their soybean-growing farmers, pointing out that now soybean oil often replaces coconut fat.

Is this substitute much better? In recent weeks we've learned that margarine is not as good for our health and longevity as their industry promotion has led us believe. It's made from corn or soybean oils.

How do real milk and soybean imitation milk compare?

Real milk is ready for human consumption as it comes from the cow, goat, sheep, mare, camel, reindeer or yak.

Before soybeans can be consumed as a milk replacement, they must be heat-processed to get rid of substances detrimental to human health and digestion. Even then, the protein composition in amino acids is still inferior to protein composition of real milk.

What this means is that extra soy protein must be consumed to provide the needed amount of amino acides, and excess amino acids are wasted through the kidneys.

Lesser quantities of milk provide more of the needed amounts of amino acids than soy does. While milk proteins can cause allergies in a few people, so can soy proteins.

Milk fat differs from soy fat in unsaturated fatty acids and cholesterol content, but low fat milk, like 1 percent milk, has little or none of that difference.

Milk sugar (lactose) is unique to milk and the major aid to a favorable calcium digestion from milk, in contrast to calcium supplements and pills.

Some people can't digest milk sugar very well, but grocery shelves are loaded with alternatives— low-lactose milk and lactase-enzyme-supplemented milk.

Baytan® 30 for wheat

Gives you effective early season protection against powdery mildew. And MORE.

Baytan 30 fungicide seed treatment is worth the money for powdery mildew protection alone. And it's worth the money if you haven't seen powdery mildew in 10 years. That's because Baytan 30 enhances the overall health of your wheat and delivers more benefits than do other seed treatment products:

MORE extensive, fibrous roots
MORE tillering
MORE disease protection
MORE yields

If you are trying to maximize your yields, then Baytan 30 is the perfect fit. For more information on having your seed treated with Baytan 30, contact the certified Baytan 30 conditioner near you, or Gustafson at 800-248-6901.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

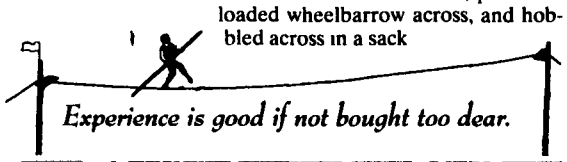
DOG DAYS BEGIN JULY 3.

A LITTLE LIGHT (FOOTED) ENTERTAINMENT

The date was June 30, 1859, and the place to be was Niagara Falls, as Emile Blondin attempted to become the first person to cross the Falls on a tightrope. Approximately 5,000 people were on hand to watch the French acrobat and daredevil (whose real name was Jean François Gravelet) at his first exhibition. Dressed in pink tights and a spangled yellow silk tunic, and carrying a long pole for balance, Blondin needed only five minutes to cross the 2-inch cable strung 151 feet above the Falls. Blondin went on to expand his fame over the next year with a series of increasingly difficult feats He carried a man on his back as he crossed the cable, pushed a loaded wheelbarrow across, and hobbled across in a sack



Experience is good if not bought too dear.

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

Proper handling can help make the most of summer's bountiful fruits and vegetables Never refrigerate tomatoes — it destroys their flavor and texture right away Avocadoes also prefer a cool spot in your kitchen instead of the refrigator. Rinse berries just before serving — their protective epidermal layer will help to keep them "just-picked" fresh

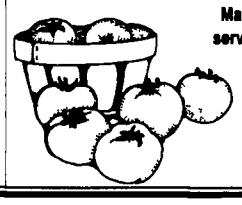
GAZPACHO

- 1 15-ounce can tomatoes with juice
- 1 10½-ounce can consommé
- 1 cup peeled, seeded, chopped cucumber
- ¾ cup chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, pressed

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat When cool, purée in blender Chill well and serve

Makes 6 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Rainy, then sunny and warm; showers; finally cool and rainy.

SOUTHEAST: Sunny and hot, then showers; clearing; rainy and warm, cold west.

MIDWEST: Rainy and cold; intermittent thundershowers.

NORTHWEST: Showers and cool, clearing and warmer, turning clear and hot coast.

SOUTHWEST: Clearing and warming; turning clear and hot, cooler northern California

VALLEY FRESH FOODS

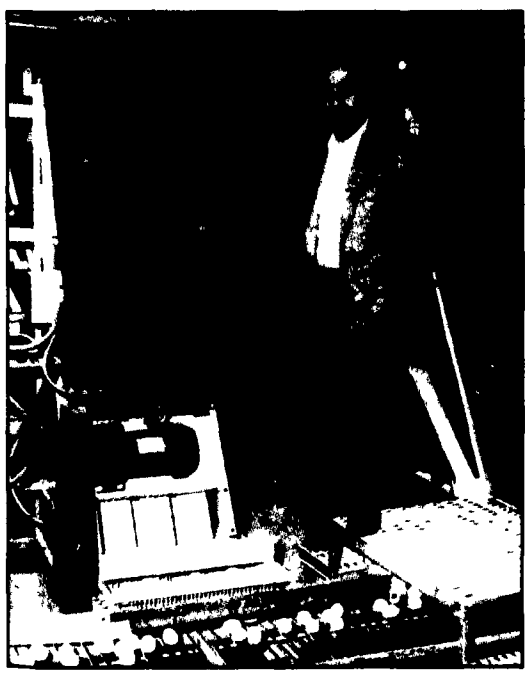
RELIES ON THE

Big Dutchman®

CHAIN FEEDING SYSTEM

Valley Fresh Foods' complexes in Turlock, California, Townsend, Montana, Woodburn, Oregon, and Rochester, Washington house 2 5 million birds, with several houses of Big Dutchman Cage Systems

Joe Arias, President of Valley Fresh Foods, Inc believes his decision to use Big Dutchman Cage Systems with Chain Feeding is right on the money Mr Arias has been changing over to Big Dutchman for several years and has plans to continue to equip future houses with Big Dutchman systems. The bottom line, he says, "is that Big Dutchman's chain feeding system promotes better management flexibility that equates to higher profits."



Arias chose the Big Dutchman chain system because it handles the feed capacities he needs for his high bird density houses It is easy to adjust the amount of feed and feeding schedule as needed when making feed formulation changes It all adds up to more eggs and better feed conversion

The computer print-outs from the current test* in Turlock, California, confirm to Mr Arias his decision to go with Big Dutchman Chain Feeding provides him with more eggs, better feed conversion and fewer undergrades than drag auger feeding

*Test house contains both the Big Dutchman chain feeding system and Chore-Time's drag auger system It houses sister birds and other parameters that are equal

OPINION

Water Use Concerns Many (Get To A Hearing)

On Wednesday, Richard Cairo, secretary and general counsel for The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC), said he was being swamped with telephone calls, mainly from representatives of agricultural organizations.

They were not happy, he said. Cario didn't sound very happy either.

Several days earlier, Bill Troxel, with the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association had distributed an article that is to be published in the association's newsletter. It is a comprehensive outline, though necessarily lengthy, of the proposal, with emphasis on some parts to which objections will most probably be made.

The SRBC proposal to revamp its regulations and add some new regulations include a plan that would make certain-sized agricultural operations pay for the registration, monitoring and use of relatively large quantities of water.

From groundwater to surface water, on-farm wells to public water sources, the proposal for SRBC regulations is careful not to ignore any major users of water in the basin.

The vegetable growers' association's position is that it wants more time for members to get an opportunity to study and review the proposals because it could significantly affect the cost of doing business.

More recently, some members of the DER Agricultural Advisory Board, and some members of the SRBC Agricultural Advisory Board, among others with an interest in farming, telephoned Lancaster Farming to say they were very concerned with what they were told recently by Cairo about the SRBC proposals.

The point is, no one knows for sure what the affect would be to Pennsylvania agriculture. The proposal would certainly be an additional cost to very large livestock and crop operations.

The bottom line is that all in agriculture who have reviewed the regulations or were briefed on its content are asking that others in agriculture also pay attention.

In so many words, Cairo said that the reasoning behind the proposal isn't to kill agricultural operations in the state. He also said the agency isn't attempting to rush this proposal through. The agency is seeking comment and review, he said.

The bottom line is, there is a limit to the amount of water available to everyone in the basin and there is an ever-increasing demand for that water and some individual entities are using greater and greater amounts.

The SRBC was formed in 1971 to start dealing with the problem of managing the basin flows. They have power companies, community water supplies, industry and commercial interests, including agriculture, all relying on the water in the basin.

The proposal for the regulatory package is attempt to bring together years of piecemeal regulation-making and create a comprehensive sensible package to ensure that individuals profiting from the use of water, don't destroy it for others to use.

Cairo said that farmers especially must remember that this is just a proposal.

He said he urges them to attend the public hearings and listen to the proposal, and make comment.

He said the members of the commission — chaired by U.S. Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt, and seated by the respective heads of the environmental agencies in each of the three states — will take very seriously the concerns, complaints and suggestions from the agricultural sector.

And while we agree that there is plenty of material being proposed which should be of concern to farmers, concern is not enough.

What is needed from the agricultural community is action — in the form of getting involved by reading, learning, listening and attending at least one of the SRBC's scheduled public hearings. Learn, get involved and then speak out.

And, it is hoped, the result will be some well thought-out, constructive suggestions or objections to the SRBC proposal by August 1.

An additional note to this is that Cairo has asked if people from the southern part of Lancaster and other southern counties who plan to attend a meeting could possibly refrain from attending the 7 p.m. Tuesday meeting set to be held at the SRBC's Harrisburg headquarters building.

The Front Street facility can not hold a very large audience, whereas the July 6 hearings are to be held in the Perryville High School Auditorium, in Perryville, Maryland, and can easily handle a large agricultural contingent so that everyone can hear and be heard. Also, traveling distance may be less for many.

To Be On Alert For BVD

A new strain of Bovine Virus Diarrhea (BVD) has shown up in Pennsylvania.

Several dairy farmers in the state, including Lancaster County, have experienced death and illness in both young and adult cattle.

The virus is found in nasal discharges, saliva, urine, and feces of clinically infected cattle. Carrier animals that appear fairly normal may also shed the virus.

There are four ways to help keep BVD off your farm. They are: 1. Maintain a closed herd; 2. Vaccinate the herd (consult your veterinarian for specific advice and proper procedures); 3. If transporting, showing, or purchasing cattle, isolate them from the rest of the herd for 21 to 30 days (It is also helpful to know the health status of the herds these animals come from or come in contact at shows.); and 4. Control farm traffic, because equipment, trucks, animals and visitors may also spread the virus.

To Clean Crop Sprayers

Crop sprayers should be cleaned between uses and between different crops, according to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent.

Small amounts of some pesticides may be active enough to cause problems when going from one crop to another. To avoid crop injury, a thorough cleaning of spray equipment between uses is recommended.

Household ammonia is a common material that may be used to clean spraying equipment. Mix one gallon of ammonia with 100 gallons of water. Ammonia works well in cleaning Banvel, 2,4-D, and Basagran residues from equipment.

The label of Pinnacle and Classic also recommend the use of ammonia to remove residue from equipment. Another commonly used product is household bleach. Never mix ammonia and bleach. They will react to form a gas that can damage the eyes, nose, throat, and lungs of anyone breathing it. Remember to dispose of rinse material properly.

To Be On Lookout For Scams

Each year we read about people falling victims to scams. Scams come in all sizes and types, but the most common are those involving improvements or repairs around the home or property.

It could involve driveway paving, roof sealing or repairs, house painting, home improvements or landscaping, or tree pruning, according to McGruff of the National Crime Prevention Coalition.

Unfortunately, a number of people are tricked into believing what they hear, but instead they pay for diluted materials which may cost more in the long run to have the junk removed and the job done right. So take McGruff's advice: "If something is being offered to you which sounds too good to be true, it most likely is too good to be true and notify the police immediately."

Always deal with established businesses in the area. These are the people you know and will stand behind their work and items sold. Remember, help McGruff take a bite out of crime by not falling victim to scams.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "Talk to inform, not to impress."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE 90-DAY MATURITY
June 26, 1994

Background Scripture:
Exodus 13:17 - 14:31
Devotional Reading:
Exodus 15:22-27

Last year my wife and I visited the Sinai Peninsula, the site of the Exodus. It did't matter to us that Biblical scholars dispute as to the exact route the Israelites took and on which mountain Moses received the ten commandments. As we drove across that desert, we vividly remembered the Exodus as if we had participated in it ourselves.

And, as a matter of spiritual fact we do participate in the Exodus. God calls each of us out of the bondage of Egypt and like the people of Israel, it takes faith to heed that call and persevere in it. In our lives, too, between God's call and our own Promised Land there is usually a Sinai where we exist solely by the grace of God. The exodus, like life itself, is a venture of faith.

Like us, the people of Israel sometimes wavered in their faith. When the Pharaoh and his army caught up with them they complained sarcastically to both God and Moses: "Is it because there are no graves in Egypt that you have taken us away to die in this wilderness? What have you done to us, in bringing us out of Egypt?" (14:11).

WE TOLD YOU SO

Might we not have said much the same? God's promises are hard to believe when our lives are threatened. To Moses they protested: "Is this not what we said to you in Egypt, 'Let us alone and let us serve the Egyptians?' For it would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in the wilderness." All of us feel that way sometimes.

But Moses replies: "Fear not, stand firm, and see the salvation of the Lord, which He will work for you today." And we know what happened then: the Israelites escaped and Pharaoh's army was destroyed. It was a salvation the people of Israel would never forget — at least in the long run. (In the short run they frequently forgot, just as we do.)

Let's say that I have an appointment with my boss tomorrow morning and I'm afraid he's going to let me go. I know the company has got to cut the payroll and so I pray fervently for God to save my job. And if the next morning my boss still gives me the pink slip, does it mean God is unfaithful with his promises?

THE NICK OF TIME

The answer is no. Sometimes God delivers us from peril just as He delivered the Israelites in the Sinai. But sometimes, just as later He failed to deliver Israel from the Assyrians, we are not saved either. We flunk out, we lose our job, our marriage ends up in divorce, the loved one we prayed for dies and peace does not come in Bosnia and Serbia. The deliverance we pray for comes, although perhaps not in the form we expected. Instead of being saved from some danger, we may be safe in it, given the strength and grace to see it through.

Now I confess to you that, given my choice, I would prefer to be delivered as the people of Israel were. I would rather not have to wait for the Promised Land. Yet I admit that God has never been more real in my life than in those times when I was not delivered in the nick of time. So Moses' admonition is as relevant to us as it was to the Israelites: "Fear not, stand firm, and see the salvation of the Lord."

Adoniram J. Gordon once said, "The promises of God are certain, but they do not all mature in 90 days." Some do; some do not. If we "fear not" and "stand firm" we will see all of the promises kept in God's own time.

CHORE-TIME ...nobody knows more about feeding

The Right Choice in broiler feeders

Feed broilers and pullets your way! As the world leader in poultry feeding systems, Chore-Time offers you the best choices in feeders. You will love what our newest feeders —the Model C2™ and Model H2™—do for you.

Features include (1) labor-saving Patented Feed Windows that open to let chicks eat from day one—without additional feed on paper or "lids", (2) feed-saving features like easy feed adjustment settings, and (3) cost-saving all-plastic designs with Chore-Time Warranty.

Pick a Chore-Time feeding system—including our rugged feed bins and Genuine Chore-Time FLEX-AUGER® Feed Delivery System, plus ventilation—and you know you've made the Right Choice—because it's from Chore-Time, the leader!

CHORE-TIME EQUIPMENT
Milford, Indiana

New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right). ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.
New ULTRAFLO II Trough Shape
Original ULTRAFLO Trough Shape

The Right Choice in cage feeders

Chore-Time's popular ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeding System is now even more outstanding! We've developed and tested the second generation of ULTRAFLO feeders and named it the ULTRAFLO® II.

ULTRAFLO II offers you even greater reliability, durability, and outstanding feed-saving performance—up to 1 gram of feed per bird per day—over the original ULTRAFLO. And even the original ULTRAFLO was beating our competitors in feed savings!

So, join the cage feeding leader. Contact us today. Find out how Chore-Time and ULTRAFLO II can help you be a leader, too!

Nutrient Need Monitoring Can Be Useful To Grain Farmers

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — For years, technology has helped growers produce more crops less expensively, involving less labor. Only lately, however, has technology been developed to show a grower how good a job he may be doing, especially regarding crops.

Recently, companies have released their own versions of a crop fertility monitoring device called a chlorophyll meter. The device, which can cost $1,200 or more, simply reads the level of chlorophyll — the amount of "green" material in the leafy part of a plant crucial to the plant's growth and health. Scientists say this is an indication of levels of nitrogen available to the plant.

A chlorophyll meter was demonstrated to about 75 crop consultants, farmers, and ag industry representatives at the Small Grains Field Day on Tuesday at the Penn State Landisville Research Center. The device, a Motorola Spad meter, is simple to use. For instance, simply insert part of a leaf from a corn stalk into a clamp-like device, and the instrument gives you a reading to help indicate whether you may need more nitrogen or whether there is sufficient nitrogen present for the crop to grow.

There is a distinct correlation between the chlorophyll meter reading and the possible nitrogen needs of the crop, according to Doug Beegle, Penn State extension plant fertility specialist. The device could be used when sampling corn at growth stage 6 or 7 to indicate whether there is sufficient nitrogen in the ground for optimum yields.

The meter, said Beegle, "is one tool we have that may help us do a little better job of fine-tuning our nitrogen needs for small grains."

Penn State and other universities are testing the meters to see if they could prove useful to determine nutrient needs for crops. While the cost may be limiting for farmers, crop experts who spend a lot of time drawing up nutrient plans and recommendations could make the technology pay off in a short time.

Also at the field day, corn and small grain experts spoke about several new varieties of crops and what to expect in the way of weed control and other strategies for the season.

Greg Roth, assistant professor of agronomy and Penn State corn specialist, spoke about some of the findings and detailed some of the ongoing research at Penn State and other universities.

Penn State is one of 20 research centers nationwide that is studying the advantages of narrow corn row spacing to increase yields for corn growers.

The researchers are looking to see if there is an advantage to planting corn in rows less than 30 inches. Initial trial results indicate a 3-5 percent yield advantage by going to 15-inch rows.

In general, although planting and other management adjustments have to be made, a grower won't get hurt with the narrower rows, according to Roth. In actuality, several studies indicate a 13-bushel per acre increase by using narrow rows. In one Michigan study, those who participated were generally optimistic about using 22-inch rows to increase yields.

Roth indicated that Penn State is studying row width and yield variabilities on three silage plots — two in Lancaster and one in Lebanon, and two grain plots — one in Landisville and one in Centre County. Last year, dry weather hindered the studies at Landisville, but the study continues to examine the narrow row techniques.

Environmental studies, particularly the weather's effects on yield, indicated that while droughty conditions may cause shorter ears, overall grain yield remains about the same on narrower rows.

Whatever the early indications may be, according to the corn specialist, more research needs to be done to examine some of the early findings, which include good soil and nutrient conservation and better weed control because of the improved canopy.

"I think we have to sort out some of these other factors before we can take full advantage of the narrow row technology," said Roth.

Other corn research involves:

• Hybrid differences and observations on forage quality. Roth said that results indicate hybrids vary in forage quality traits such as digestability, NDF, and others. But one of the trouble spots they must examine is the inconsistency from field to field and site to site. Also, dry summers may actually lead to higher protein and higher digestability in silage corn, against what growers previously thought.

• Growing degree days (GDDs) on plant varieties. Could farmers in the state go to a 100-day hybrid rather than the 75-day or so now in use? Some varieties have shortened the time between silking and maturity.

• Using additional nitrogen fertilizer on silage corn. Trials have indicated that the protein content of corn silage increases more dramatically with nitrogen than yield does. Silage growers can add an additional 20 pounds of nitrogen per acre for silage corn.

• Technology to increase overall plant density per acre. The upper limit on plant density per acre for this area may be 34,000, as contrasted to northern states such as New York, where 40,000 plants per acre are possible with the shorter, cooler grower seasons.

Regardless, more research will be needed and more answers will be provided to growers in the coming years, according to the corn specialist.

Also at the field day, emphasis was placed on correct timing of herbicide applications to small grains for effective weed control. For farmers who may be experiencing real problems with weeds, waiting to apply herbicide could cost in lost yields, according to Bill Curran, assistant professor, weed science and Penn State weed specialist. Growers should measure benefits vs. cost.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Vegetable, Small Fruit Field Day July 20

ROCK SPRING (Centre Co.) — Penn State researchers will be showcasing their vegetable and small fruit field research plots at this year's Vegetable and Small Fruit Field Day.

The open house at the University's Russell Larson Agricultural Research Center will be July 20. It is sponsored by the University and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association.

The schedule for the day will be as follows:

8:00 a.m. Registration opens.

9:15 a.m. Wagon tours of research plots begin. Researchers be present to describe their projects on the horticulture and entomology farms. Bus tours to the plant pathology farm will also be offered.

12:30 p.m. Lunch served. A light lunch of a hoagie sandwich, fresh vegetables and dip, chips and melons is planned. Visitors can also talk with the exhibitors or inspect the variety trial plots.

2:00 p.m. Field equipment demonstrations begin including: Air-assisted electrostatic boom sprayer, No-till vegetable transplanter, Precision seeder for plastic mulch, Raised bed mulch layer with drip irrigation attachment, Monosem precision seeder, Thermal weed control, Pesticide container rinsing, Plastics disposal.

5:00 p.m. Field Day ends.

Many of the projects are partially supported by research grants from the Pennsylvania Vegetable Grower Assoc. and the Vegetable Marketing and Research Program.

To preregister, call PVGA by July 18 at (717) 473-8648. Walk in registrants will be charged an extra $2. Preregistration is important to obtain good estimates of the food needed. The registration fee of $8 for PVGA members and $13 for non-PVGA members covers the association's costs for the lunch, morning and afternoon refreshments, bus rental and other expenses. Children under 18 will be charged $5 for registration.

Kutztown Fair Animal Entries

Kutztown Fair Welcomes Animal Entries

Steers, market hogs, dairy cattle, sheep, goats and more are invited to the 123rd edition of the Kutztown Fair on August 8-13. This annual agricultural festival hosts some of the toughest animal competitions in eastern Pennsylvania.

Berks and Lehigh County youth who participate in a bonafide 4-H and FFA animal project are encouraged to participate in the Kutztown Fair. This friendly competition is the culmination of a year's work for the participating youths.

Deadline for dairy cattle and livestock entries is July 11. Mail your entry to Donald W. Reinert, 76 Blue Rocks Road, Lenhartsville, PA 19534. Entry blanks are made available in the premium catalog. Please use an official entry form or photocopy.

Premium books are available at area stores and businesses, or contact the Kutztown Fair Office at (610) 375-7244 for a copy.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 19

GOOD WEEK FOR FIELDWORK: There were five days suitable for fieldwork. This was the hottest week of the season and many crops suffered because of the lack of moisture and the hot conditions. Localized thunderstorms provided 2 to 3 inches of rainfall in some areas. Soil moisture was rated short by 40 percent of our respondents, adequate by 51 percent, and surplus by 9 percent. Activities included planting soybeans, transplanting tobacco, making hay, spreading fertilizer, hauling manure, and caring for livestock.

CROPS: Most areas of the state experienced unstable weather resulting in poor hay making conditions. Hay regrowth was slow because of the hot, dry weather. In areas that received rainfall, corn was growing rapidly. In other areas, corn suffered from lack of moisture. The corn height averaged 9 inches across the commonwealth.

LIVESTOCK: Pasture feed available was good but regrowth was slow because of the dry weather.

NMPF: Milk Consumption Unaffected By rBST Debate

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Milk consumption continued at a consistent pace for the third consecutive month since the government approved use of recombinant bovine somatotropin (rBST), the genetically-engineered protein hormone that increases milk production in cows.

Agriculture Department data show April milk consumption slipped a scant .2 percent when compared to year earlier figures. March data showed a .1 percent decrease in fluid milk consumption compared to the same month last year. February's consumption increased a healthy .5 percent.

"The consumption figures have actually been better than the trend over the past 18 months," said Jim Barr, CEO of the National Milk Producers Federation. "We are pleased to see that American consumers continue to enjoy the nutritional benefits and good taste of milk."

Additionally, consumers are more keenly aware than ever about the use of rBST and its harmless nature, according to Barr. Barr also said Gallup tracking studies showed that consumer awareness of the use of rBST rose to 70 percent during April, a substantial increase from the 28 percent when the Food and Drug Administration initially approved rBST use last November.

The National Milk Producers Federation, and other members of the dairy industry, have worked diligently to assure Americans that milk continues to be the same safe, wholesome and nutritious product since rBST first went into commercial use on U.S. dairy farms last Friday.

"The data from the past three months make it clear that the American public remains secure in the knowledge that milk is one of the safest, most healthy, nutritious products in American supermarkets," Barr said.

In March, USDA regional numbers for milk consumption showed the Southeast sector increasing by 1.2 percent compared with March of last year, the Northeast dropping by 1.6 percent, the Midwest decreasing by 1.2 percent, the Southwest dropping by 0.1 percent and the West increasing by 0.5 percent.

February USDA milk consumption figures showed the Northeast sector breaking even with February of last year, the Southeast increasing .3 percent, the Midwest dropping by .8 percent, the Southwest increasing by 2.3 percent and the West increasing by 2.8 percent.

Penn's Woods Suffers From Pests

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state's forests, especially across the nothern tier, are suffering from several different attacks from insects and disease, but for the remainder of the year, there's not much to do, except watch and monitor.

According to a recent news release by the state Department of Environmental Resources (DER), "Pennsylvania is experiencing severe tree defoliation because of a number of insects and diseases.

"Outbreaks of elm spanworm, forest tent caterpillars, eastern tent caterpillars, cherry scallop shell moths and halfwing geometers are causing tree defoliation throughout the state," according to the news release.

A tree is considered defoliated if it loses 30 percent or more of its leaves, according to DER.

The elm spanworm and the geometers are both considered "loopers" which are larvea which are more commonly referred to as "inch-worms." The term refers to the insect larva's method of locomotion.

According to Barry Towers, PhD, with the DER Bureau of Forestry Division of Forest Pest Management, the use of pesticides using baccillus thuringenesis (Bt) has been very effective in curtailing a number of these pests, including the not-native gypsy moth caterpillar, although it is not used unless necessary to forest management.

The Bt-based pesticides are natural killers of insect larvae, such as caterpillars and black fly larvea (the state is currently spraying the Susquehanna and other major waterways to control blackflies) and have been used for years to control gypsy moth. The material is ingested by the larvae and is toxic in its gut.

However, this latest outbreak of pests are mainly native species. According to Towers, occassionally native insects can grow to such levels that they become serious pests.

The normal expected response in the natural environment is for a delayed but correspondingly high increase in the number of natural predators of these now-pest insects.

That is occuring, although the extent and the degree of natural control is still uncertain.

In addition to the insect pests, there is also a disease, anthracnose, which is affecting sycamore trees. According to the news release, it "... is causing the browning and loss of leaves on sycamore trees. Although this condition makes the trees unsightly and branch tips sometimes die, there is usually little permanent damage done to the trees."

DER Bureau of Forestry personnel are monitoring these and other insects and diseases from aircraft and the ground.

According the news release, the elm spanworm last year defoliated more than 1.2 million acres of forest and is again a serious problem. Field evaluations are underway to predict the potential outbreak next year.

The same is true of the forest tent caterpillar, in that it is hitting the northern half of the state particularly hard.

The halfwing geometers are causing severe problems in scattered locations, while fall canker-worms are severe in local problems across the state.

The white tents of the eastern tentworm caterpillar are common on black cherry trees and can be seen along many highways.

Also, the adult moth flights of cherry scallop shell moth have been observed in north central counties and "significant defoliation of black cherry trees is expected when the insect reaches the caterpillar stage in July and August."

VENTILATION

1st Very Common Question: How should I ventilate my Barn?
A very good and simple answer: A Tunnel Ventilation System

2nd Very Common Question: What is a Tunnel Ventilation System?
Answer: A ventilation system that gives you even air flow throughout your entire building(approx. 2-5 MPH wind).

Advantages:

- no circulating fans
- summer and winter ventilation
- controls fly problems
- more comfort for your cows
- more comfort for you, the farmer
- more comfort - more milk

nia, 20 percent of the 5.5 million jobs are in agriculture, yet sometimes the perception of agriculture is just one piece and that's the farmer, he said.

"There's $4 billion in cash receipts at the farm gate and $40 billion dollars at the processing end," he said. "There's a twelve million population in Pennsylvania and 1 percent is farmers," said Evans. "The DER would consider that an endangered species."

Comparing Pennsylvania's agricultural technology to some other states, Zerby said, "The Pennsylvania producer of meat, milk and eggs is light years ahead in technology. We must stay on the leading edge of technology." He said the greatest growth has been during the past two decades.

"In order for the agriculture industry to thrive and remain a viable industry, we must remain strong in the Southern Alleghenies," Zerby said, listing five areas of need for future growth: awareness, contacts, lenders, ag-zoning and leadership.

Zerby said awareness involves three risks — input costs such as fuel, labor and feed; the market; and production.

"We don't want to own animals," said the Purina representative, "but to control genetics so the animal will be consistent."

If a company owns a unit but not the animals, then the risks supposedly are removed if the owner/producer takes on the risks of production. He would then also deserve to share in the profits, according to Zerby.

Contacts, he said would be equipment processors, builders and feed companies.

"Lenders will play a major role in the growth of agriculture in this area," said Zerby. He asked them to sometimes consider the animal husbandry potential of younger producers instead of the old standby, equity, for the lending basis.

"The hog smell is good to me," joked Zerby when discussing ag-zoning with slides for visual aids. He said a hog operation will be built in the Southern Alleghenies rather than a northern state site because of problems with that area's county commissioners.

"Look back over the growth in any industry and you'll find leadership," said Zerby about the fifth crucial need. He said growth won't happen without good leadership.

Clemens of Hatfield Quality Meats was quick to state his unequivocal belief that the "Mom and Pop" business can indeed survive in today's business environment. The Montgomery County based family-owned company is aged 100. When Clemens said he daily rubs shoulders at work with some 20 of his cousins and uncles, he said it proudly.

"We're here to talk about change," he said. "We need to produce great animals because the consumer demands it, but we need to work together," he said.

"The dynamics are there. We are at the gateway to the East Coast," he said. "We have the greatest resources in Pennsylvania right here."

Clemens said that 20 percent of the hogs processed by Hatfield come from North Carolina. The company hauls them.

Jobs can be created here through raising animals. New feed mills and more trucking services would be needed. And the land could be better utilized in producing corn and hay.

This kind of potential growth means networking and the integration of the industry, according to Clemens. He said everybody can get involved and get a piece of the pie.

"Our production is at 60 percent," said Clemens. "Most comes out of North Carolina. We would love to come to the Southern Alleghenies for pigs," he said. "The reason we are looking to the Southern Alleghenies is urban sprawl has come to us."

One example is the $250,000 home that Clemens said was built 40 feet from the company wastewater treatment site. Forget who arrived first, it's an apparent, irrelevant fact.

Clemens urged the Southern Alleghenies to be a role model, to set the standard for bringing one-stop shopping to agriculture.

"We need to work together and come to an understanding, said Clemens. "Don't think about the dollars. We in America and Pennsylvania can produce high quality food for the world. The dollars are there and they are staying," he said.

Clemens and Zerby claimed the synergy — the combination of force and cooperative action — is there.

Instead of recoiling at the whiff of a hog slaughtering, processing facility, they said they smell the wastewater, but they can deal with it.

Evans was quick to add, "It's the 'aroma' of profitability," he said, "not 'odor.'"

"The Boston to Washington corridor offers a tremendous opportunity in the marketplace," said Evans, enlarging on a point made by Clemens. "You can drive a day and see half the population of the United States. That tells you something exciting about food by truck."

"When you look at the agriculture industry, dairy is the biggest," said Evan Fineman, "and poultry is the fastest growing. Dairy farming is alive and well in Pennsylvania," he said, noting that the Interstate Milk Producers began in 1917. The 3,500 member, farmer-owned, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative has members in six states, according to Fineman.

"Farming is moving west," said Fineman. Where 20 years ago all the customers were around Philadelphia, the majority are now in Franklin County, he said. "Real estate has taken its toll," stated Fineman.

He said some Midwestern dairy cooperatives envision high potential in the East Coast market and want to get involved.

Also, Pennsylvania must stay competitive with the California dairy industry lower prices, said Fineman.

David Mankamyer, a Somerset County commissioner, commented that he sees a trend in the area for more animals and larger farms. He said that fewer farms are disappearing.

Poultry Expert Says Take Heat Off Birds

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The recent cold and snowy winter has most Pennsylvanians looking forward to the heat of summer. While warm weather may be a welcome change for people, it can spell trouble for poultry, said an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Poultry can tolerate a wide range of environmental conditions," said Dr. Michael Hulet, associate professor of poultry science. "But most of these conditions are not conducive to optimum growth or efficiency.

"Poultry perform best when the environment around them minimizes stress and allows all nutrients to be used for growth and reproduction."

To help ensure peak production, Hulet recommends controlling poultry house temperatures through proper ventilation. "Air rushing over the birds' heads by directed vents or circulating fans helps to moderate the environment at the birds' level," said Hulet.

"At very high temperatures, or if a hot spell starts quickly and doesn't allow time for acclimation, mortality and tremendous decreases in growth can occur," he said. "Circulation of air within the house, especially when moisture is added by fogging, can help cool the birds and prevent losses and poor performance."

Early in life, chicks and poults also are sensitive to drafts and temperature changes as small as two or three degrees. During the brooding stage, growers should observe bird behavior and keep temperatures constant.

"If the chicks are huddled together, determine whether the behavior is caused by low temperature or draft," Hulet said. "Air direction is important for young birds — the inlet air should be directed toward the ceiling to mix the air coming into the house."

Hulet also recommends that ventilation equipment be checked and cleaned before summer. "During winter, condensation and poultry dust coats belts, motors and wire mesh around fans, and vents, restricting air flow to the birds," he said. "Spring cleaning shouldn't be delayed until the hot weather arrives."

Hulet said producers also should make sure that fresh, clean and cool water is available to their birds."Waterers can provide the ideal environment for bacterial growth, especially if they contain nutrients from feed residues," he said. "Between flocks, water systems should be cleaned with a line cleaner, drained and flushed. Chlorine treatments frequently are used to help reduce contamination."

Depending on the type of watering system, water level or pressure also should be adjusted when outside temperatures are high to allow for increased water consumption by the flock. "If you don't provide enough water," said Hulet, "feed consumption falls and growth suffers.

"Fresh air and water are basic to good production practices," he said. "By protecting against unhealthy environments, you'll produce healthier and more productive birds."

Maryland Announces Field Days

ELKTON, Md. — The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension has announced details and entry deadlines — most set for July 1 — for the state's breed field days for 1994.

The location of the Holstein Field Day is at the Howard County Fairgrounds in West Friendship. The four other breeds' field days are to be held at the Frederick Fairgrounds in Frederick.

According to a newsletter from the University of Maryland Extension Service, the Holstein field day is scheduled for July 18, F/S 4:30 p.m./6:30 p.m.

The Guernsey and Ayrshire shows are to be held July 30, starting 10 a.m.

The entry deadline for the Holstein field day is July 1 and entries should be sent to Martin Hamilton, 3525-L Ellicott Mills Drive, Ellicott City, MD, 21043.

The deadline for Brown Swiss is July 1 and entries should be sent to Stanley Fultz, Frederick County Extension, 330 Montevue Lane, Frederick, MD, 21702.

For the Jersey breed, the deadline is July 1, and those wishing to enter should write to David Greene, Carroll County Extension, 700 Agriculture Center, Westminster, MD 21157.

The deadline for entering the Ayrshire show is July 15, and entries should be sent to Martin Hamilton.

For the Guernsey show, the deadline for entry is July 15, and entries should be sent to Donald Schwartz, Washington County Extension, 1260 Maryland Avenue, Hagerstown, MD, 21740.

he moved as quickly as he could to the top of the silo, stuck his head through the doors, and breathed in the fresh air coming up through the pipe.

For a while, Rodney admitted feeling "pretty good. I knew I was a little light-headed and I knew it was kind of dangerous to be up there, too, in that condition, but I knew it was also better than having tried to get down the chute, with the gases engulfing me, and I would never have made it to the bottom."

Later on, he realized, if he would have gotten a few seconds of the gas directly, he could simply have passed out and tumbled down the chute.

"I waited up there for about 15 minutes, breathing fresh air. I waited until it was clear and then crawled back down the chute to silage level, and crawled in, and we got the fresh air."

The split second he threw the door open, Rodney knew something hit him. 'A cloud of gas hit me, dark gas, and it surprised me.'

Feeling confident, Rodney started to work on leveling off the silage. He was then joined by his brother Jere. It took them about three hours.

They felt weary from the work but managed to return home. They still felt lightheaded but thought nothing of it.

Until about seven that evening.

"I started feeling kind of bum, lightheaded, short of breath. I had some chills. I felt pretty rotten."

Rodney thought that if he could just get a good night's sleep, maybe he could get some rest and be OK the next morning.

When he awoke the next day, the first thing he had to do was cough. "I had a tickle in my throat. Then I felt a gurgling in my chest." Rodney said he thought his lungs sounded full of fluid.

He started coughing up blood.

He couldn't catch his breath.

It was then that he thought, I'm not going to make it.

"I thought I was done, I was gone. I was scared."

However, Rodney forced himself to calm down. He went downstairs to lie on the porch and managed to get his breath.

In the meantime, Rodney spoke on the two-way radio to his father, John, also a dairyman, to see how Jere was doing and to tell them he was going to the hospital. The elder Martin told Rodney that Jere was having similar symptoms and asked, "Do you want another passenger?"

By 6 a.m., Rodney and Jere were in the emergency room at Lancaster General Hospital, a full 12 hours after the exposure.

Immediately the emergency room technicians and doctor on staff hooked them up to IVs and put them on oxygen. The technicians ran a "blood gas" test to check how much oxygen was in the blood. The doctor told them that a reading of 90 was normal and 60 was "critical."

Rodney's reading was 57. Jere's stood at 61.

"With oxygen, we could breathe much better again," said Rodney.

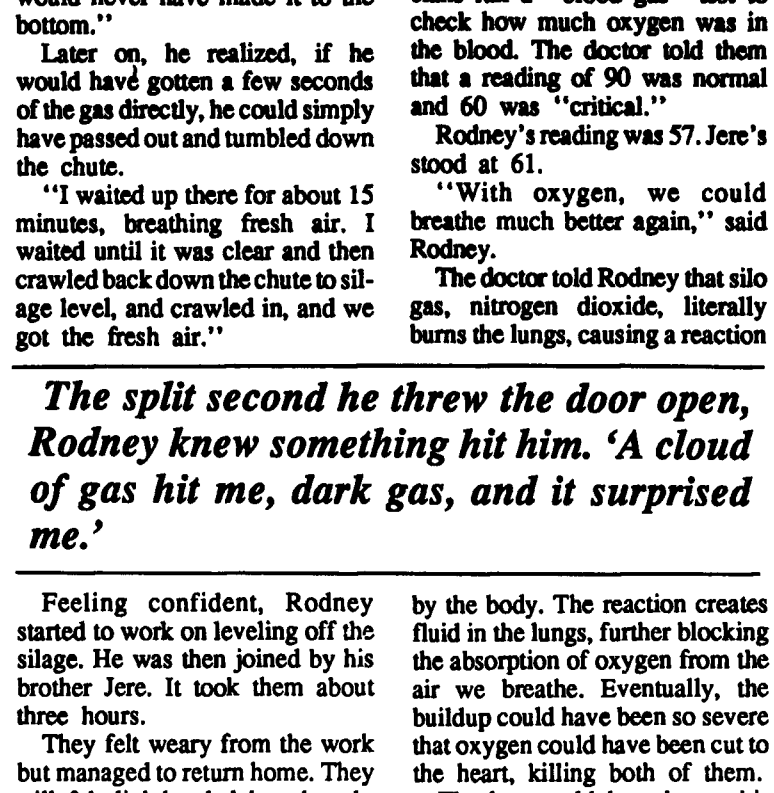
The doctor told Rodney that silo gas, nitrogen dioxide, literally burns the lungs, causing a reaction by the body. The reaction creates fluid in the lungs, further blocking the absorption of oxygen from the air we breathe. Eventually, the buildup could have been so severe that oxygen could have been cut to the heart, killing both of them.

The doctor told them that a critical dose of the gas on the spot could have killed them. The brothers were fortunate that the dose was not lethal and that they arrived for treatment when they did. Within 24 hours, their situation could have caused them to lose consciousness and perhaps suffer a heart attack.

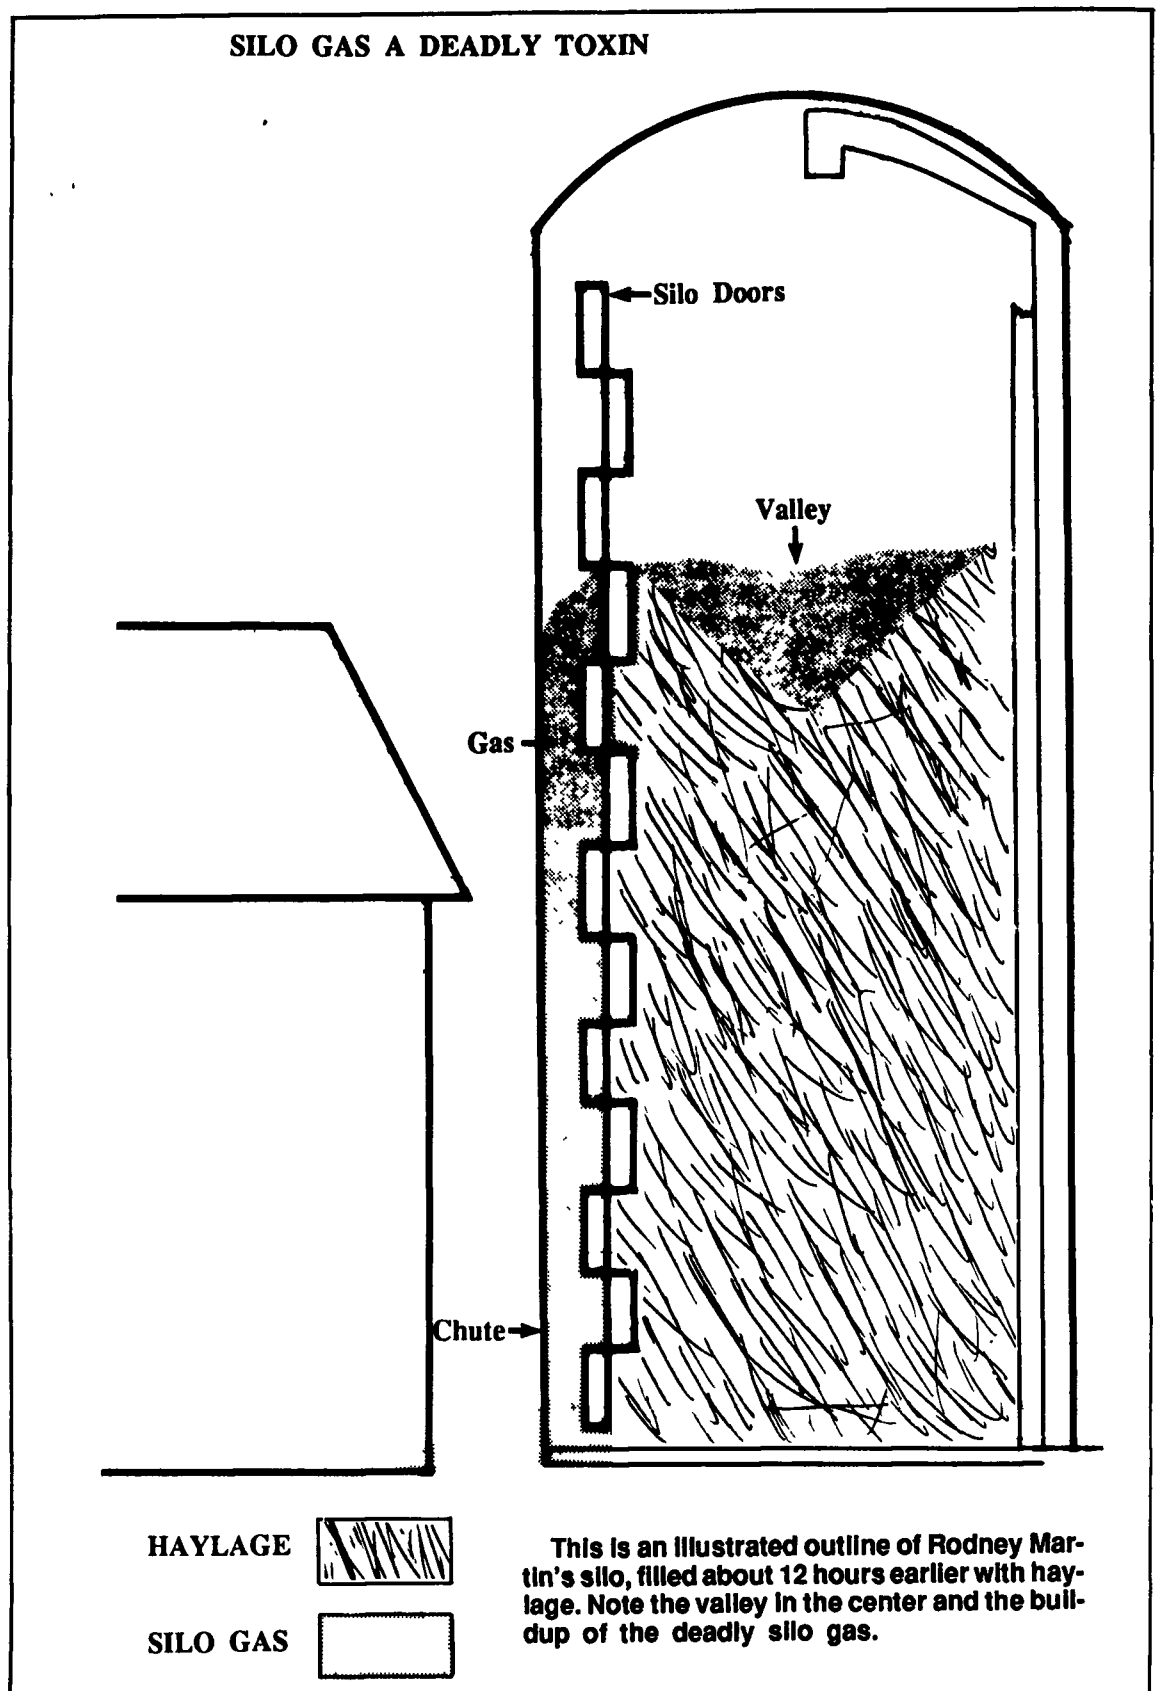
The brothers spent more than two days in the hospital. They were given steroids to block the body's reaction — the buildup of fluid in the lungs — and were monitored for blood oxygen levels.

Rodney remembers the ordeal because he had to take deep, concentrated breaths. "If you simply laid there and took shallow breaths," he said, "a monitor alarm would sound."

Rodney returned home on the weekend. In the meantime, his family helped with the chores. He began returning to light chores and within two weeks after the accident, resumed work full-time.



Rodney's brother Jere had gone up the chute before, pictured here, and gases were already ejecting down the chute.



This is an illustrated outline of Rodney Martin's silo, filled about 12 hours earlier with haylage. Note the valley in the center and the buildup of the deadly silo gas.

"The doctor's comment was there should be no long-term effects," said Rodney. "He said you shouldn't have any long-term shortness of breath, the lung capacity is still very adequate, and you shouldn't die young from any lung disease or anything like that."

The mistakes he made could have cost him a great deal, and Rodney believes he is fortunate.

He said that farmers don't realize that haylage gas can be just as deadly as corn silage gas. Although he's heard stories of exposure, it didn't hit home until his experience.

"I never thought that much about it. Some people have the concept that haylage does not produce the amount of gas that corn silage or ryelage does. That's fictitious."

Farmers should not wait any amount of time after filling the silo to level it off and close it up.

The lessons he wishes every farmer could learn would be to "get up there immediately following the last load of silage before any heating occurs, any fermenting occurs, and get the job done right away.

"When the blower is still hooked up and the last load of silage just went up, get up there and get the job done," he said. "That's the real key."

If farmers must enter a silage area after it is filled, or if they work around the toxic gases at any time, a simple cloth or carbon filter will not offer them any safety. At the least, farmers should wear a self-contained breathing apparatus, like SCUBA equipment divers wear or equipment worn by the fire company rescue personnel.

(More on safety measures will be featured in the next articles in this series.)

Rodney thought back to the times he heard stories where farmers thought they might have just been experiencing a cold or flu. The symptoms could have indicated an allergic reaction to gas exposure.

Whatever the case, Rodney said he was willing to speak about the experience in order that other farmers could avoid the same mistakes and end up in the hospital.

"I gave my pointers because this might save somebody else's life," he said.

Rodney believes there are "many risks you're exposed to around the farm everyday," he said. "It's important to be ready, because your time could be up anytime."

Rodney got about two whiffs of the toxic gas and could feel it burn the whole way down his throat.

Ken Kirkland

Ken Kirkland, an ag science major at Penn State, remembers the day as a kind of painful memory, one he can't forget.

When he was 14 years old, on a mid-September day, he filled a silo with corn silage. About two weeks later, he returned with a hired hand to remove silage. He took the cover off, and out came some gas.

For a time, Ken didn't think much about it, and continued with other chores. The impact of what happened didn't become clear until later that evening.

Ken could remember having trouble catching his breath. He felt his chest tightening and felt weak and lightheaded.

At 11 p.m. that evening, hours after the exposure, Ken was ready to go to bed, but was frightened.

"I didn't want to go to bed," he said. "I was afraid something would happen in the middle of the night."

Instead, Ken was taken to Indiana Hospital. They put him on a breathing apparatus, and he still remembers how scared he was, because he couldn't get his breath.

(Turn to Page A25)

"I had a hard time getting a big breath of air," he said. "I was taking small, short breaths. I was coughing a lot."

Ken said that he didn't think that the silo gas could have done this. He didn't realize how many days had passed since the silo was filled.

Regardless, Ken said that he was happy to be fully recovered, and there has been no permanent lung damage. But he worries to this day that long-term lung problems are still a possibility later in life.

Years have passed since the accident. A short while ago, Ken took the safety course this spring at Penn State University offered by Dr. Tim Pierson, entitled "Ag Safety and Health."

As part of the course requirements, Ken said he worked on a project that involved the design and construction of signs for silo safety.

It was then that he thought, I'm not going to make it.

But the memory of the experience haunts him.

"It's scary," said Ken. "I didn't know the gas was there. Everytime I go there now, I wonder, will it be there or not? You just don't know."

Ted Ferris

Dr. Ted Ferris, a professor of animal science at Michigan State University, remembers a hot day 14 years ago.

A team of three, including Ferris, were busy preparing to level off a silo after filling. They waited three weeks until they leveled it.

Those three weeks were enough to create problems with the haylage.

Since by then the haylage was moldy, the team of three began forking the moldy material into a manure spreader while leveling the silo. While doing so, they noticed a cloud of dust which engulfed them. For a half hour, they leveled the haylage.

They began work at 1 p.m. and finished about a half hour later. According to Ferris, by 4 p.m., one person had entered the hospital and by 6 p.m., Ferris and the other person were feeling sick.

For all of them, the symptoms were the same — a flu-like feeling. The one person was treated and released from the hospital.

For Ferris, even now, the glands in his neck react slightly whenever he runs into mold on straw or even when he enters a damp basement with mildew. "Whether it's a physiological or just psychological reaction to the experience, I don't know," said Ferris.

Over time, the buildup of toxic dust from molds can create a condition known as farmer's lung.

But Ferris believes they all learned their lesson and know how important it is to ventilate the area completely before working in it and to level the silage off as soon as possible.

Dr. Michael M. Schutz

Dr. Michael Schutz, a research geneticist with the National Association of Animal Breeders, Beltsville, remembers an experience his father, Nick, and Michael's uncle, Nick Ruhland, had while unloading silage about 25 years ago.

At the Schutz dairy farm in Eden Valley, Minn. in December, Nick Schutz and Nick Ruhland were emptying silage. At the time, they thought little of it, spending a short time in the early afternoon loading spoiled corn silage (filled 10 weeks earlier) from a vertical silo onto a spreader.

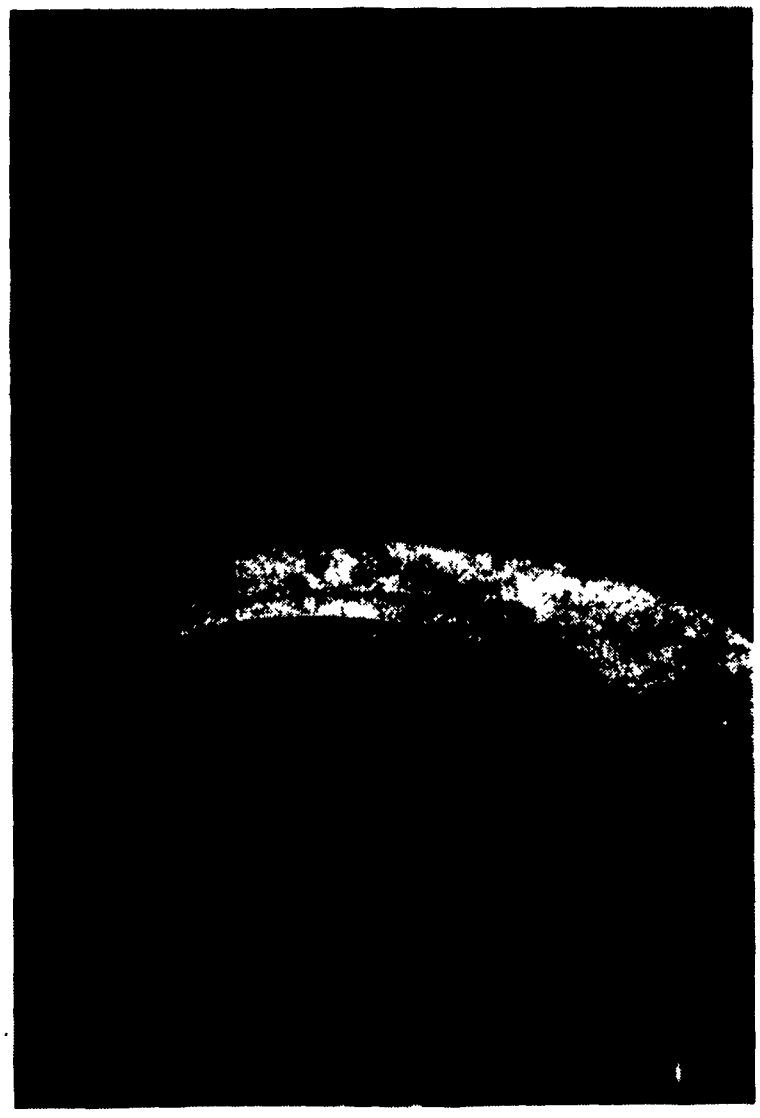
Around midnight, 12 hours later, Nick Schutz began feeling weak, and experienced chills and nausea. He believed he had some kind of flu, shrugged it off, and went to bed, going to the doctor's the next day. The doctor suspected the symptoms were the result of exposure to toxins in mold spores within the spoiled corn silage.

The symptoms were similar for Nick Ruhland, but not as severe, according to Michael.

Fortunately, there have been no long-term effects from the exposure for Schutz or Ruhland.

What they learned was that a good dust filter mask is essential working under those conditions, even though the mold spores weren't as potentially deadly as silo gas.

As a result of the experience, the Schutz farm invested in a silage unloader as a way to avoid exposure to any forms of dust from the silo, according to Michael.



Rodney Martin tried to climb up this access chute to the silo and open a series of access doors to get rid of the silo gas. His plan was to throw open the door and quickly climb to a higher level above the gases.

Dr. Robert G. Gillio, a specialist in lung diseases at Lancaster General Hospital, treated Rodney Martin.

He said what Rodney went through happens less often now than 5-10 years ago. "Perhaps farmers are becoming more educated about silo gas exposure," said Gillio.

Gillio said he treats cases such as the Martins "a couple of times a year" as a result of farmers waiting to level silage and becoming exposed to the deadly gas.

Specialists who treat exposure said the reaction depends on the concentration of gas, variables such as the type of silage and environmental conditions, and length of exposure. In Rodney and Jere Martin's case, exposure was minimal but potentially life-threatening. Two other types of exposure, according to Gillio, include when a patient collapses because of severe exposure, and a huge exposure, known to kill instantly.

Gillio recalled a family in Minnesota about five years ago, where a father went into a silo and collapsed. He was rescued by his son, but when they pulled the father out of the silo, they placed him on the ground, where gas had collected in sufficient quantities to kill him. The son recovered. If only the family had moved the father far enough away from the silo and potential gases, he may have survived.

Gillio said Martin had enough exposure to cause temporary damage to lungs. If the Martins hadn't received treatment within 24 hours, they could have developed a lung condition that could have lead to death.

'Perhaps farmers are becoming more educated about silo gas exposure.'

Gillio said the Martins were placed on steroids to stop the inflammation caused by the chemical exposure to the lungs.

Gillio said the Martins should recover and continue to lead a normal life. "The outlook for them to lead a normal lifespan is very, very good," he said.

While the other exposures didn't involve silo gas, exposure could still become life-threatening.

Editor's note: Part 2 of the series examines some of the methods farmers can use to ensure safety around silos during filling and unloading and ways farmers can prevent silo gas and mold exposure.

Rodney was backlogged with work to do in the dairy barn, and didn't have time to return to this newly-filled 20-foot by 70-foot haylage silo to level it off.

Tioga County Sets Pasture Walk

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — Are you thinking about starting an intensive pasture system or just getting more production from the one you have?

The best way to get started is to walk someone else's. In a Pasture walk, you can look at their pasture, see their fences, their water system, listen to what they would change, and pick their brain. This is the type of system that is used in New Zealand.

The Tioga Pasture Group welcomes you to come to a pasture walk. The June pasture walk is June 30 near Wellsboro, Tioga County.

Please meet at the Tioga County Courthouse rear parking lot at 12:30 p.m. The group will then travel about two miles west of Wellsboro on Route 660 W. The pasture is on the left.

This walk is of a stocker cattle pasture system on rented pasture ground and with semipermanent fence. Come see solar fencers, aluminum, tipper tie wire, and a 12-volt water system.

Future grazing days will demonstrate temporary fence, other pasture forages, pasture feeding, etc.

Please call the Tioga County Extension Office at (717) 724-9120 for more information or if you would like to host a Tioga pasture walk.

Scientist To Speak

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that Dr. Jack Casper, head of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Frederick Animal Health Laboratory, will be presenting a paper on emergency disaster planning for animals at the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association meetings in Ocean City, Md., June 26-30. Dr. Casper is an expert in developing emergency plans for production animals, pets and horses.

Casper's paper, which will be delivered June 27 at 8:30 a.m. at Ocean City's Sheraton Hotel, will discuss the plan for protection of animals during natural or technological disasters in Maryland and the role the veterinary technician would be expected to play.

"I hope to demonstrate the importance of emergency planning as well as some of the problems and decisions managers will have to face during a crisis," Casper said.

In addition to the Animal Health Laboratory in Frederick, the Maryland Department of Agriculture operates animal health facilities in College Park, Salisbury, Centreville, and Oakland. These laboratories provide diagnostic services and assist veterinarians and farmers in maintaining the highest standards of animal health.

Lebanon Conservation District To Select Conservationists Of Year

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Conservation District has announced the start of an in-district awards program that would annually recognize the outstanding achievements of local residents as one of three types of conversationists.

According to a news release made last week by Charles Wertz, county district manager, "Conservation groups have come together for the first time to form an alliance to recognize those who have made noteworthy contributions in conserving Lebanon County's natural resources."

According to Wertz, representatives of the district, the Lebanon County Federation of Sportsman's Clubs, the Pa. Game Commission, the Pa. Fish and Boat Commission, the Pa. DER Bureau of Forestry, the USDA Soil Conservation Service, and the group Citizens Coordinating For Clean Water (CCCW), are to present awards to deserving nominees in the catagories of: Lebanon County Conservationist of the Year; Lebanon County Conservation Landowner of the Year; and Lebanon County Conservation Educator of the Year.

"The Conservationist of the Year award will honor the voluntary conservation efforts of an individual or group entity that is not necessarily a landowner," Wertz stated in the news release.

"An individual landowner, civic organization, government agency, business or industry making a noteworthy contribution to conservation of natural resources will be the focus of the Conservation Landowner of the Year award.

"The Conservation Educator of the Year award will go to an active teacher excelling in environmental education."

In order to make a nomination for any of the three awards, one of three different entry forms, each designed specifically for a different award, must be completed and submitted to the district by August 31.

The entries then will be judged by an alternating committee representing the five different county conservation organizations. Winners of each award will be invited to the annual meeting/luncheon of the Lebanon County Conservation District on Nov. 3.

Nomination forms are available from The Lebanon County Conservation District, 2120 Cornwall Road, Suite 5, Lebanon, PA 17042-9788, or call (717) 272-3377 or FAX (717) 272-5314. Deadline for submitting nominations is August 31.

Free Programs For Home Gardeners

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Because of the excellent response in the spring, Ginger Pryor, our horticulture consultant and master gardeners will offer the following programs. Each will be presented from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and repeated from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Extension Office. Please register in advance by calling (717) 270-4391.

Wednesday, June 29 — Orchard Fruit - Diseases And Insect Pests. Learn how to control insect and disease problems in your home orchard through various techniques including trapping, monitoring, biological, chemical and organic controls.

Monday, July 18 — Growing Roses. Master Gardener Guy Forry tells you everything you wanted to know about growing roses and then some! He will cover pruning techniques, fertilizing, insect and disease control. Varieties and much more.

Tuesday, August 16 — Landscaping: Designing A Foundation Planting. A foundation planting is the area near your house that provides public entrance and is visual to the general public. Learn the principals of the design and how to pick appropriate plant material.

Wednesday, July 27 — Preserving Your Culinary Herbs. Learn how to preserve your culinary herbs. Drying and preserving methods will be discussed along with ideas on herbal blends; how to make herbal paste, pesto, vinegars and oils.

Roads End Dispersal Averages $850

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — At the Roads End Dispersal in Troy, North Carolina, on May 14, 355 animals sold for a grand total of $301,700, averaging $850 per head. The sale was managed by Jersey Marketing Service (JMS), with Merlin Woodruff of Ohio as the auctioneer.

Over 200 dairy producers from North Carolina, Virginia, Arizona, Florida, Alabama, Texas, Kentucky, Oregon, Georgia, Idaho, Ohio, Nebraska, Maryland, Utah, and South Carolina, came to purchase top-quality Jerseys bred by Bobby Ray and Sarah Atkins and Family. The Roads End Jersey herd began 30 years ago, and was known among Jersey breeders nationally for their sound, production-bred Jerseys.

The top-selling animal was Roads End Trader Bell, selling for $6,600 to Dr. J.J. Malnati of Bush River Jersey Farm, Newberry, SC.

Purina Celebrates 100th Year, Holds Open House

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The red and white checkerboard-painted water tower and signs at the Camp Hill Purina Mills Inc. facility have been a landmark for years, visible from Rt. 11, south of Camp Hill proper.

It's also been a landmark business since opening in the early 1950s.

This week, Thursday through today, was an open house celebration with hundreds of people attending, touring the mill and visiting with company representatives, dressed in casual shirts that were designed especially to mark the 100th anniversary of Purina Mills Inc., in St. Louis, Mo.

Though ownership of the company changed this year with a takeover buyout by the Sterling Group.

With input from Sterling, management and employees now own 35 percent of the company.

But the celebration this week at Camp Hill was a display of the versatility and agressiveness of the company to be the dependable feed company for everyone.

In the rear of the Purina headquarters building for the northeast United States, in the parking lot in front of the mill, tents were erected, with bags of various types of Purina feeds used to weight the tent poles and to provide an attractive display. Straw bales set in rows and food was offered to those in attendance.

Tours of the facility went from start to finish, explaining the role of the company's 1,200 acre research farm in Gray Summit, Mo., that was started in 1926.

Research there has been ongoing and has helped the company develop complete nutritional feeds for almost every animal need.

In the past several years and within the past year and a half, a number of new feeds have been introduced, especially Prepare, a pellet feed for up close dry cows; another for heifers called Cornerstone; a horse feed made for the palatability and nutritional needs of geriatric horses; another for racing horses; another for pleasure horses; etc.

There are elephant feeds, monkey feeds, wild bird feeds, commercial poultry, turykey, layers, poulets, swine, cats, etc.

At the Camp Hill mill, about 900 tons of product, bagged and can be manufactured daily with three shifts working. At that plant, they make about 200 different types of feeds.

And quality control is carefully monitored. Each worker on line actually does a quality control inspection and signs off before the product is moved to the next phase.

In 1985, with an expansion of the 10-acre Camp Hill facility, the current quality control program had been put into place.

And it keeps modernizing and gaining in accuracy and efficiency.

Computers linked directly to the home office in St. Louis give nutritional formulas that change slightly with each tested variance in ingredients.

And ingredients, all of them, every shipment, are tested and approved before the shipment can be unloaded.

Testing of fat quality is important to ensuring the palatability of the product and handling. Fats can go rancid quickly, they can melt.

About 60 percent or so of the ingredients come by railcar; the rest by truck.

The product goes out of the facility by pickup truck and by tractor-trailer and serves and area from Virginia to Maine.

Of the 30 peroples who work the mill, 21 are in production, five in maintenance and four drive truck.

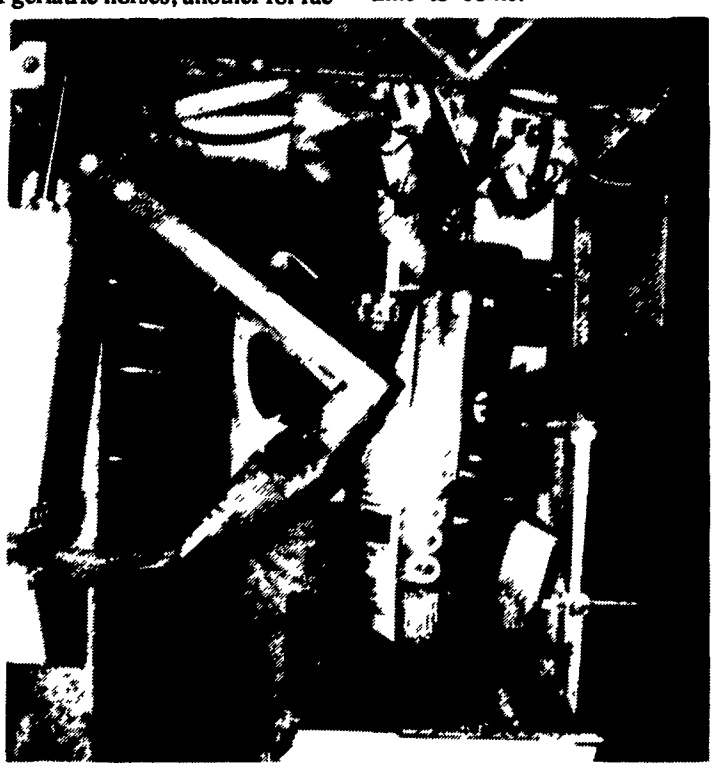
There are five people in customer service and five in administration.

The regional headquarters employs 40 people.

Being located in the heart of animal raising country, with access to Rt. 11 and major interstates, and the railhead, it can be expected that the plant at Camp Hill should continue to be a landmark for some time to come.

Balloons adorn the entrance to the Purina Mills, Inc. Harrisburg plant in Camp Hill. The company held an open house for three days this week offering tours of the plant and talks with company employees to help celebrate the 100th anniversary of Purina. Similar celebrations are to be held across the nation.

A Purina employee discusses the laboratory testing techniques utilized by Purina Mills Inc. at the Harrisburg plant.



This machine, one of several in the automated Purina Mills Inc. facility at Camp Hill, is bagging a feed while a machine operator performs his job which includes inspecting the product and monitoring equipment measuring devices.

Paul Hann, right, gives a tour of the Purina Mills, Inc. Harrisburg plant. Here, standing in front of pallets of turkey feed, he discusses the variety of feeds, the manufacturing process and considerations taken in making the best product they can.

MMI Seeks To Purchase Savoldi

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI) has signed a letter of intent to purchase Savoldi Cheese Company Inc., of West Middlesex, according to a news release from MMI dated June 20.

The region's largest dairy producer-owned cooperative, based in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI Chief Executive Officer Don Schriver, and Joseph Savoldi, president of Savoldi Cheese, said in a joint statement that they have signed the letter of intent and are now in the process of studying the possible sale and working on a final agreement.

The Pennsylvania Savoldi Cheese Company Inc. primarily makes shredded cheese products for the food service industry and operates predominantly in the Northeast.

MMI is a 5,700-member cooperative reaching into eight states, including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New York and West Virginia. Last year it marketed $688 million worth of raw milk, and processed 3.8 billion pounds. The sales includes $307 million in net sales from Farmers Dairy Foods Inc. and farm supply, including dues and service fees.

Bitlers Prepare To Represent Pennsylvania Holstein

skills learned then.

The kids run about her yard at the end of the tour, enjoying the spacious yard beneath a canopy of old nut trees that almost hide the old stone farmhouse and Phoebe's herb garden and water garden that is a converted old cast iron watering trough.

Split rail fencing around the house and along the road next to the house give the farm an older look. As well does the architecture of the barn, with its arched stone doorways.

But it is a working, modern family dairy farm.

There are side businesses. A manure pumping and hauling business developed over the years. Pheobe, a former extension economist, teaches country craft classes out of her house, "Classes in the Country." As a decorative sign in the yard states.

On Wendesady the couple was busy trying to take care of business and also get some work out of the way. Especially cutting hay.

The reason they were working so especially hard, is that the two are headed for Seattle, Washington, for a week as Pennsylvania's Young Holstein Breeders. They represent the state at the nationals.

With a 93-milking string of registered Holsteins, the two have earned a BAA of 106.1, a Progressive Breeder Registry Award in 1993, and the herd has been averaging about 21,468 pounds of milk, 737 pounds of fat and 682 pounds of protein.

So this past week has been one of getting some of the chores done which can't wait until they get back, such as getting the hay silage cut and blown into the silos. As things seem to happen when trying to get a lot of work done in a short time, problems arose.

But then, it wouldn't be a challenge if there weren't any problems.

The solutions are more important. And they must be tied into what David said is his basic operating theory: "We're just caretakers, or stewards of what's been entrusted to us by God," he said.

"And at the same time share with others our abilities," Phoebe added.

Their philosophy is reflected in some other activities in which the two are involved — David is also a deacon at Hope Community Church and Phoebe teaches Sunday school.

In fact, the Bitlers said that those interested should be aware of a "Fellowship of Christian Farmers" picnic scheduled for August 20 at Sam Lewis State Park, in Wrightsville.

The Bitlers are well known.

They live in the original farm house where Phoebe was born. Her parents, Alpheus and Ruth, ran the place as a registered Holstein farm since 1937.

They both have been publicized in the past for accomplishments and involvements.

And while they have their hands busy with farming, the involvement with the Holstein Association and other activities is part of their nature, they said.

"We enjoy people and we enjoy things like" currently serving as the co-chairs for 1995 national junior Holstein convention to be held in Pittsburgh; like serving as national Holstein delegates and on the state program development, youth and milk promotion committees.

If anything, it's everything they do.

They have won recognition and awards for their work, but they said that being involved has more personal meaning than winning awards.

Working with youth is their payback to the community that provided them with leadership and opportunity.

They are big supporters of 4-H and the leadership opportunities it provides for youth, opportunities for hands-on leadership skills development; business skills development and the development of self-discipline and responsibility.

They said they like having a goal and getting something accomplished. It's their pursuit of happiness and it's a wholesome and rewarding kind of happiness that continues to build upon itself.

Phoebe said that 4-H teaches that the more you do, the more you get to try, and the better you get at doing things, like farming, because, "You get all that exposure (among other people and operations) of what's out there and its gives ideas of what you might want to do. There are educational opportunities.

Phoebe takes her calf-feeding equipment in the cart from the milkhouse and gets some help from one of the two farm dogs. The farm house visible under the canopy of nut trees in the backround is where Phoebe was born and raised and now lives.

"How many people use Roberts Rules of Order?" she asked, referring to one of the main lessons associated with 4-H. She said that exposure to the Roberts system of organization is an advantage 4-H youth have other youth who don't participated in the program.

"(4-H members) practice it even if we don't continue it," she said, adding that basically the lessons are even more significant culturally.

"If we don't continue to educate about our culture, we'll lose that culture."

The couple has been involved with the Holstein Association and dairy promotion and education for years, adult activities which stemmed form earlier involvements.

They also use some of the association's computer programming to help manage farm records and to access registration information and to help make breeding decisions. The Cow Search program gets and "excellent" rating from the two and comes in handy for use with the milk tester and during a herd health check.

The computer get used pretty frequently and they said that a young women, Sue Weidner, who works for Mark Hershey Feeds, and who had worked for Vista-Grande Farm for five years, helped them get started when she was at the farm.

"She was a town girl who wanted to be a vet," Phoebe said. "She came here to work and went to the University of Delaware, University of Nebraska and worked on ruminant nutrition.

Now Phoebe registers her calves through cow search.

The couple also use the ARIS program through Pa. Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

But it's the daily setting of goals and then achieving those goals — both short- and long-term goals — that really keeps them going at farming with the intensity they do.

"We can't just go out and buy a brand new piece of machinery because the other one is starting to wear out. You got to think, 'Well. Can we rebuild this?'" David said. "Or, 'What can we do to make this a better machine or something so we can get the trash through a little better and leave more residue on top, but still make this work.

"Stuff like that, we really enjoy those kind of challenges," he said.

They both said they like to make things work.

"The same challenges are with the cows," Phoebe said. "They are to breed a better cow that's going to milk more economically or last longer. We want to have a cow that milk more, looks good and lasts longer," she said. "To put that together and develop that. It means something to us."

"We don't put a lot of emphasis on index," David said, though Phoebe is quick to add, "We have a cow that has some."

"We don't bury our head in the sand," David explained. "We do the best to maintain what we have and make progress, but we don't do a lot of ET work and we haven't bought any cattle for a while now."

They said the herd has been closed for about eight years.

"We try to breed for type and manage for production. We try to provide an animal that somebody

Vista Grande SW Liz-Twin, daughter of Soutweind Bell of Bar Lee, is a Very Good 87, 3-year-old registered Holstein at Vista Grande Farm. She recorded a 365-day production of 31,263 pounds of milk, 1,050 pounds of fat and 1,034 pounds of protein without BST. Her dam, Vista Grande Lullaby, also a homebred Holstein, made a 365-day record of 28,437 pounds of milk as a 4-year-old. Bred to Valient, Liz is part of the regular milking string for David and Phoebe Bitler.

Bitlers Prepare To Represent Pennsylvania Holstein

else would want too," David said. "We sell 20 to 30 head a year between bulls, some heifers and young cows. We're satisfied with that type of program."

The couple does classify; and a person who does animal analysis stop by a couple times a year and analyze some of the calves through the AAA program.

"And," David said, "I fish for information from any semen jockey that comes in here. I try to get to other farms, too," he said.

While the Bitlers had showed when growing up, and also when they first started farming, they had since stopped because of the time restrictions.

However, they intend to be getting to some show rings. Son Jesse, 10, is starting 4-H and is going to get into showing, as long as conditions permit.

He is going along to the national convention also, which the Bitlers said they see also as a vacation for them. Phoebe said they expect to have a full itinerary.

How the couple got involved with Holsteins is mostly through Phoebe. David grew up on a farm south of Little Britain with Guernseys and Jerseys, and he bought his father's Guernsey herd when he first started dairying. In 1979, the Bitlers sold that herd and pretty well switched to Hoslteins.

Phoebe Bitler milks cows in she and husband David's 80-tie stall barn. Notice the shredded paper bedding.

"I still like to see a good Jersey cow. I like Jerseys," David said.

Phoebe said she has always been a Holstein enthusiast.

And so that is what they switched to, after farming at his parents farm for a couple of years, before buying into Phoebe's home farm and going into partnership with her brother, who sold his share to them several years ago.

In 1966 her father expanded the farm to 80 tie stalls. In 1981, the Bitlers added the last silo — a 20 by 80 structure — a Virginia style heifer barn and one of the manure pits.

In 1986, the partnership with her brother ended.

In 1987 they built a manure pit for the dairy barn.

1982 saw modernization of the couple's beef feeding facility, which is an extended area to the dairy barn. "Bulls are kept in two pens and then there is an area for springers to run," David said.

The two are involved in numerous other projects and activities, but appear to be under control. And happy.

Look for them at the national convention, at the state conventions, activities, church or next year's Holstein activities.

They'll be the couple smiling and talking with people.

It's that time again...

State Budget Doesn't Cut Agriculture

and his administration.

According to a Harrisburg newspaper's reports, disagreements among the last-term governor and a number of southeastern Democrats holding some House leadership positions apparently were over welfare cuts and business tax cuts.

However unusual the machinations of those who created and approved the budget, the plan has received the somber approval of the majority party chairmen of the House and Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs committees.

"I think it's a reasonably good budget," said Sen. Noah Wenger, R-Stevens. "Ag programs are going to be funded fairly well. The New Bolton Animal Center got an increase. The Center for Animal Health and Productivity got an increase," adding that these increases were "... despite trying to pass a frugal budget.

"I think it was a budget obviously done on time, a few weeks ahead of time. I think it was a good budget, about the best we could anticipate because the governor worked with the General Assembly this year. The ingredients that made it possible were welfare reform and the other side of it was the business tax cuts.

"I felt good about it and it's a reasonably good budget and agriculture did not get singled out, as in other years, for cuts."

Wenger said he was specifically pleased with the number of small, but important agricultural programs which receive reinstated funding at previous levels and some which actually received increases.

"Within the Department of Ag itself was an increase," he said. "The FFA Foundation got the $40,000 back there. The Mushroom promotion is back at $100,000 again. Both didn't get anything last year."

Wenger said the funding levels came from requests by him and other members of the legislature who represent agricultural areas.

According to a budget comparison distributed by the Senate Appropriation Committee, the Department of Agriculture's total budget was increased by just more than $3 million, from the currenty year available budget of $40,712 to $43,787. The governor's budget actually called for the agriculture budget to increase to $44,119.

The General Government Operations for the department went from $18,700,000 to $20,111,000. Those funds are used to operate the department of agriculture.

The Farmland Preservation Administration received an increase from $139,000 to $183,000. State Food Purchase program received a $1 million increase from $12 million to $13 million.

And, the state Organic Food Program received $50,000.

There were cuts, however. The specific line item that was reduced was the animal indemnities program, a program in which the state pays compensation for ordering diseased or susptected diseased animals destroyed.

In the past, the program was funded to more than $200,000, its current-year level, and is slashed further to $50,000.

Budget allocations for agriculturally related agencies include an increase of $500,000 to Conservation Districts.

funding of the conservation districts increase of $500,000, to a $1.5 million budget,

According to Wenger, with the nutrient management fund, a separate fund, set to get $250,000, the total increase to the districts is actually an $750,000 increase over what they got last year.

Wenger also said that Penn State Ag Research which had received a reduction, was "... restored to $18,300,000. The Ag Extension would get the same as last year too."

Sixth-term Rep. William Lloyd, D-Somerset, who is current majority chairman of the House Ag and Rural Affairs Committee, also said the budget came through fairly well for agriculture.

He said the GGO increase the state Department of Agriculture received should enable Ag Secretary Boyd Wolff to hire several people to fill key positions in some programs.

"Essentially, I think it's a good budget for agriculture. While the appropriation for the General Government Operations was somewhat lower than the governor had initially requested, I believe that ... (it) will enable the department to hire the additional personnel that they had been proposing to hire.

"They were given the money to hire people to implement the nutrient management program; given money to implement the federal milk safety inspection order. (State Secretary of Agriculture Wolff) and I went through all the vacancies he had, but based on a conversation I had with the budget secretary, (the agriculture department) will be able to accomplish that with the budget that passed.

"I think this is a good budget for agriculture, because none of the programs in ag are experiencing any cuts, there's more money to fill vacancies, more for animal health initiatives, and we restored the cut that the governor had proposed at agricultural research at Penn State University, so the ag research and extension at Penn State will continue as we have in the previous year."

On another issue related to the budget, Lloyd said, "I had been anxious to be sure that there would be enough moeny within the (PDA) budget to implement the octane testing bill which the House had passed (and is awaiting further consideration).

"Although there is no specific line item for that, based on my conversation with the budget secretary, I believe the department would be able to absorb" the cost of a state octane testing program to monitor the accuracy of reported levels on pumps at automotive refueling stations. "If it would be able to get through the Senate," he added.

"This budget does provide some additional funding for thye Animal Health Commission and some additional funding for New Bolton."

On related issues, Lloyd said that the legislature is in the process of considering a capital budget bill, which would include some additional animal health money for Penn State.

"I'm also anxious to implement refinements within the farmland preservation law, but it doesn't require any additional state money," he said.

"If we can get agreement, we would like to pass a package of farmland preservation bills and also a package of food bills. I had passed a recodification of the Food Laws regarding labeling and adulteration. Sen. Madigan had passed a certification on organic products bill and we are attempting to come to a meeting of the minds so they could pass in tandem.

"For the balance of the year, one of my priorities is to attempt to pass the farm safety legislation which the committee approved several weeks ago (Sponsored by Indiana County Rep. Sara Steelman D-Indiana.).

"It attempts to address the fact that agriculture is the most dangerous occupation that there is," he said.

According to Lloyd, the goal of the legislation is to create a government program of voluntary compliance in which a safety inspection of a farm would be conducted by the state and the results reported to an insurance company so that the farmers who rate a "safe" farm operation get a yet-to-be worked out, mandatory deduction on their insurance premium.

Lloyd he envisioned the program being somewhat similar to the existing program which allows premium reductions for those automobile drivers who have attended an approved driver's training course.

Furthermore, on the farm safety issue and insurance benefits, Lloyd said he wanted to work on getting an extension of current premium reduction benefits to farmers, who are now not getting them because they may not have enough employees to form a safety committee, which entitles employers to a one-time 5-percent reduction in workers compensation.

Lloyd said the plan is to utilize an existing representative farmer organization, such as the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, to act as the organizer for such safety committees, set up perhaps within counties, to facilitate the program.

In the meantime, since the House adjourned early for summer recess, work on creating local tax reform legislation has been delayed.

The goal of local tax reform is to allow local taxing authorities the ability to tax incomes to help finance public services, instead of relying on real estate values.

"Forcing local taxing authorities to use primarily real estate taxes has created a situation where farming operations with marginal personal income, end up paying far beyond what a neighbor making up to 10 times as much personal income is required to pay.

"I'm waiting to see what happens in the Senate. My guess is the House would not go along with the bill as it comes from the Senate. It would require further changes. But I think the two sides are close enough that an agreement could be reached sometime this year," Lloyd said.

Sen. Wenger said Monday that the Senate calendar (agenda) would close out the summer with nonpreferred issues and that the local tax reform is the "remaining large issue" statewide.

"I think we should have some de-emphasizing of the real estate tax, but the consensus is still lacking as how to put it together."

Argentina Buys 110 U.S. Jerseys

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — On April 16 of this year, 110 Jersey heifers boarded a DC8 stretch airplane in Miami and headed to Argentina, bound for a quarantine station on the final leg of a journey which began in February.

The animals were sold to A.A.A.C.I.yF., a company owned by Maria De Perez Company, president of the Jersey Association in Argentina. This was the first export of commercial dairy animals to Argentina in many years, and the USDA officials working with Jersey Marketing Service (JMS) noted they could not remember a shipment of this size.

The animals were selected from Jersey herds in New England and South Carolina. After selection and an array of health tests, the animals were moved from their isolation facilities to Miami. From there they were flown to Argentina.

With Jersey breeders around the world looking to the United States and Canada for breeding stock, JMS is working to provide foreign buyers with the animal they are looking for. JMS works with sellers from coast to coast to provide a reliable and professional service to buyers of U.S. Jersey genetics. They have experience in marketing cattle and embryos to various countries, and make sure the proper paperwork and testing is done for each country.

So far during 1994, JMS has marketed Jersey genetics to Argentina, Guatemala, Mexico, Australia, New Zealand, and Denmark. If you have animals or embryos for sale, contact JMS to help you with the best market for your Jersey genetics.

For more information, contact The American Jersey Cattle Club, 6486 E. Main St., Reynoldsburg, OH 43068-2362, call 614/861-3636 or FAX 614/861-8040.

Real Creamer For Coffee

In yogurt, the lactose is converted to easily digested lactic acid.

Most cheeses have no lactose contents, because it's lost into the whey during cheese making. In fact, with its lactose sweetener and protein fortifier, commercial dry whey is widely used in bakery products.

Soy products contain no lactose, but they are also deficient in the valuable minerals and vitamins that distinguish real milk, primarily the calcium content.

Most of the soybean's mineral and vitamin content is lost during processing into imitation dairy products, though supplements are often added.

In terms of agronomic efficiency, it is possible to produce more than 400 pounds of soy protein per acre compared to maybe one one-third that in milk protein. But dairy animals can graze where soybeans (or anything else) will not grow, providing excellent food and a regular income not just once a year, but at least twice a month.

And don't underestimate the sociological value of milk production to the economic health of an entire country.

When I was in India not long ago, at a village milk collecting station, I noted the gleam in a farmer's eye when he was paid a few pennies, every morning and evening for the little can of milk that he delivered from his one cow.

In India they refer to the development of a productive village dairy industry as the "white" revolution.

In the United States, we have a much more productive and efficient dairy industry, but we take for granted milk's nutritional and sociological value. We aren't effective at promoting our great dairy products.

The replacement of non-dairy creamers by a conveniently packaged real milk product for coffee could be a boost to the U.S. dairy industry.

Illinois U. First Use Of Electronic ID

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign has become the first herd in the nation to adopt the recently approved electronic identification option of identifying animals with the Holstein Association.

The system, based on radio frequency technology, utilizes the Texas Instruments' transponder in a button-like ear tag manufactured by Allflex USA. The first calves received their Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) ear tags in early May.

"This is a significant step forward," said Richard Nelson, Holstein Association executive assistant of domestic affairs. "It's good that we've moved ahead with an ear tag transponder after being stifled by the pending approval at FDA for an electronic implant."

Dr. Sid Spahr, professor of animal sciences at University of Illinois, said, "I'm pleased that the Association has taken a leadership position on the implementation of RFID. Our experience and involvement in field trials makes us confident that the technology is at a level that will enhance management of dairy herds."

Dr. Spahr, world recognized pioneer in the use of electronic identification, has used many devices and related equipment in his research herd. Spahr has worked with the Livestock Conservation Institute and U.S. Animal Health Association committees in developing standards for implementation of electronic ID.

Neil Hammerschmidt, Holstein Association executive director, marketing and dairy herd services, working on implementation of RFID said, "RFID technology is at a level that warrants integration into on-farms systems.

"Providing one source of ID that integrates on-farm herd management computer systems, parlor ID, automatic feeding systems and breed registry and recording offers many advantages.

"This identification option will provide opportunities to many more dairymen, making our database more complete. Herd owners — in large herds particularly — are anxious to incorporate RFID."

Dairy Bowl Team Heading For National Contest

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

STOUCHSBURG (Lebanon Co.) — Members of the senior and junior Pennsylvania dairy bowl teams met Monday at the Marion Grange Hall in Stouchsburg with coaches, some parents and Penn State University dairy specialist Dale Olver, for a final pre-trip preparation for their upcoming competition in the dairy bowl contest at the National Junior Holstein Association's annual convention in Seattle, Washington, this weekend through June 28.

The old, upstairs hall room was warm but private and members took advantage of the generosity of the Grange to support the youth.

Both teams earned their respective trips to the nationals by winning first at the state level. While the results of that competition were reported, the team members have never stopped preparing themselves for the upcoming competitions.

While some teenaged youth participate in organized sports or more traditional school-supported or club-related activities, these are dairy youth.

They appear to take to a dairy bowl contest with the same desire that a baseball player make take into the game.

But this is the big game. The tournament final.

The senior team representing Pennsylvania is from Lebanon County and consists of members Steve Bollinger, Jeffrey Hostetter, Karen Lentz, and former dairy princess Jennifer Bashore.

The coaches are David Lentz and Duane Nolt.

Bollinger said he was honored to be able to represent Pennsylvania. It will be his third attendance at a national convention.

"I feel pretty good. I hope we do very well. I've been practicing since Novemeber states. I took off in March and then we started twice a week in June."

He said was proud of Pennsylvania's dairy people, "From what we've accomplished in the past, where we're going and where we are right now."

Bashore said that being a member of the dairy bowl team for two years and serving as a dairy princess were complimentary roles that she hopes serve her well in helping the team attempt a national victory.

The junior team — those aged 16 or younger — representing Pennsylvania is from Berks County and consists of Erica Davis, daughter of Luther and Theresa Davis; Missy Werley, daughter of Phil and Donna Werley; and Jennifer and Mike Neiman, whose parents are Leon and Linda Neiman.

The team coach is Charlie Seidel.

"It's strong competition. Pennsylvania is lucky in having strength in the dairy community to put foward," Seidel, coach for five years, said. He said the last time a Berks County team went to nationals was in 1987 when they placed third and in 1986 when they placed second.

According to Donna Werley, the experience of the parent of a dairy bowl member is to be supportive and involved. The same is true of most of the other parents.

When they read something in a journal, newspaper or newsletter that discusses changes within the Holstein Association, or some other fact about the dairy industry, or just bovines in general, that information is shared with their children.

And many parents help quiz their kids while they both do chores, such as milking.

Like playing catch. Like going over homework. Like preparing for a role in a school play.

Jennifer Neiman is team captain of the junior team and her family has a small dairy herd of about 30 Holsteins and registered Jerseys on the 28-acre homefarm. She owns 10 animals. Her brother Mike has five.

She said that altogether they farm about 100 acres to raise crops for the herd. She also said she enjoys participating in the dairy bowl contests.

"It's a good opportunity to get exposed to a lot of people and you don't have to be good at it to enjoy it. It's a lot of fun."

She said her parents support she and her brother, just as do other parents.

"They support it," she said. "If they see something in a magazine, or hear something from a vet, they'll pass it on," she said, adding that they sometimes practice while milking.

Still, with the practice, she said she was nervous. The others said the same.

"In some ways, I think I'll be more competitive (at the nationals than at other contests). Competition helps me. A little bit of nervousness helps, I think."

Parent Werley said, "I would say they have to study. The're in training all the time. These kids study basically all year."

She also said that if the parent plays a positive role, the children will do better and enjoy it more.

In addition, she said that a benefit of the competition is socializing. "The farm community is small and this is a good opportunity to develop friendships. They are having fun and learning at the same time."

Dale Olver gave the team members a pep talk Monday after the first, untimed practice round. In reality, the participants get five seconds to answer a question.

Olver told them that when they get out there, not to hole up in there hotel room the entire time studying. He told them to ciculate and socialize, enjoy the convention, see the displays, etc.

"If you don't know it going into it, cramming up until the last minute isn't going to help," he said.

MILK CHECK

THOMAS JURCHAK
Dairy Specialist
Lackawanna County

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — After a drop of only ¼ cent on the price of cheese blocks at the National Cheese Exchange on June 10, it looks like that's it for now.

What attracted all the attention was a 10-cent drop in one day on Friday the 13th last month. However, that was only half of a 21-cent drop over eight weeks since March 15, when it started.

Since (May) Friday the 13th, block prices have fallen less than 2 cents in four weeks, so it appears they have bottomed out for this spring.

Block prices went from $1.39 to $1.18 for a loss of 21 cents in eight weeks but we did have an unexpected increase from February 4 to April 8, when prices advanced 10 cents from $1.30 to $1.40, in nine weeks.

This was the out-of-season increase that came from the uncertainty among dealers of what would happen to milk production this spring.

Now they know, and the result was a dramatic drop in prices that was predicted almost weekly during March and April.

Cycles Old Or New

Other than the dramatic Friday the 13th drop, there isn't that much difference in cheese prices this year compared to last year that provided the double dip or twin peaks in milk prices.

This was a change in the normal cycle of low prices in the spring and high prices in the fall, and perhaps it's the beginning of a new trend, but I doubt it. It's more nearly related to milk production losses in the upper Midwest that were weather related.

There wasn't enough production from other areas to make up the difference, but that and the weather are both changing.

So, if you compare the last two years you'll find that cheese prices increased 23 cents from February to April in 1993, and this year during those same months there was a 10-cent increase.

Similarly, there was an 18-cent drop in cheese price from May to August in 1993, and this year it was 21 cents, but only took from April to June.

In all this time prices stayed within the same range, with a low around $1.20 and a high near $1.40 for cheese blocks.

The bottom line is that the rate of change may differ from year to year depending on milk production, but it's within these ranges of product prices that you can expect to find your milk prices in the near future.

Don't be misled by the highs or discouraged by the lows.

Here and Now

For the present, however, producers will be facing falling prices at the farm this summer.

With the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series falling $1.48 to $11.51 for May, the effect will be some lower Class prices paid by handlers.

Class I and II prices will continue increasing for May deliveries and into June for Class I prices, and by then all prices will be lower. And that won't be the end, because the M-W stands to drop another 50 cents for June.

Dairy Month

Every June Dairy Month, I'm reminded of the growth of the dairy industry in recent years.

Commercial disappearance has increased 15 billion pounds in the last 10 years. You've reached the point now where commercial sales last year exceeded your total milk production as recently as 1989.

A lot of things have contributed to this growth, but the most important was your milk production.

It may be a small consolation when your prices are falling, but then that was the reason for starting dairy promotion 57 years ago — to provide sales for increasing production.

Happy June Dairy Month.

Holden Assistant Professor

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Lisa A. Holden has been named an assistant professor of ruminant nutrition at Penn State.

Her extension responsibility will include educational programs in ruminant nutrition and forage systems, with initial emphasis on grazing systems and leadership of a statewide integrated dairy management curriculum in cooperation with other University and county personnel. Her research program will focus along the same lines.

Holden received a bachelor's degree in animal bioscience from The Pennsylvania State University in 1988, and a master's degree in animal science from the University of Maryland in 1990. Her research at Maryland dealt with ruminal fiber digestion and particle size reduction in dairy cows and with digestion and utilization of alfalfa and orchardgrass.

Holden's doctoral research centered on optimizing protein utilization by high-producing Holstein cows grazing grass pasture; developing supplementation strategies for grazing dairy cows; and estimating dry matter intake by cows on pasture. She earned her doctrate in animal science from Penn State in 1993.

Lisa Holden
Assistant Professor

As a graduate student at Penn State, Holden finished second in a field of 16 nationwide for a paper she presented in the student paper competition at the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association. She also was one of the first recipients of a John O. Almquist Graduate Student Award and received the University's Graduate Assistant Award for Outstanding Teaching.

During the past 18 months, Holden has served in Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science as coordinator of the Dairy-MAP program, designed to teach management skills to Pennsylvania dairy producers in a workshop format. Roughly 365 people have participated in the program.

Holden is a member of the American Dairy Science Association, American Society of Animal Science, American Forage and Grassland Council, Alpha Zeta, and Gamma Sigma Delta.

Role Playing Becomes Reality For Amy Espenshade

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — No fantasy or science fiction invaded the Lancaster County Dairy Princess Pageant held at the Home and Farm Center on June 18. Although Amy Espenshade often previously portrayed a princess in science fiction episodes, she is now a bonafide princess.

The 18-year-old grew up playing Star Wars with her brother and sister while completing milking chores on the family's Elizabethtown farm. Amy always played the role of Princess Leia, her brother Matthew was Luke Skywalker, sister Becky was Han Solo, the cows were the storm troopers, and the dog was dubbed Darth Vader.

Now Amy no longer needs to role play. She is an actual princess. Crowned Lancaster County Dairy Princess, Amy wears the crown with regal bearing.

She is the daughter of Harvey and Susan Espenshade. The family crop farms 140 acres on their Century Farm and milks 50 cows. Amy is a recent graduate of Elizabethtown High School and will begin studies in horticulture at Penn State-York in the fall.

Alternate Joy Young will assist Amy along with Dairy Darlings Crystal Brubaker, Mt. Joy; Jodi Delong, Quarryville; Crystal Leininger, Quarryville; Jenna Martin, Ephrata; Andrea Shellenberger, Mt. Joy; and Debra Young, Peach Bottom.

Joy is the daughter of David and Carol Young of Peach Bottom and is active in 4-H horse activities.

Part of the pageant activities required the contestants to perform a prepared skit and to answer an impromptu question. Amy portrayed a cow who complained that of all the animals possible, she was was stuck being a stupid clumsy cow. As the cow reviews her duties, she comes to the conclusion that helping a teen-age boy grow strong muscles, helping girls have healthy completions and strong bodies, and providing good-tasting products such as ice cream are noteworthy responsibilities.

Joy portrayed a nurse reviewing patients' charts and noticing how diet plays an important role in preventing illnesses.

The impromptu question was posed by master of ceremonies Grover Gouker Jr. who said, "Some people believe that respect has deterioted over the last generation or so. Why?"

Amy answered that she believes people are more cofident of themselves and tend to think of themselves rather than others in behavior. She believes children should be taught to respect elders and thinks of how to act before hurting others.

Joy said that respect has deterioted because society's values have been lowered. She said they younger generation should be taught morals and values so that they can appreciate others.

Contestants were judged not

Homestead Notes

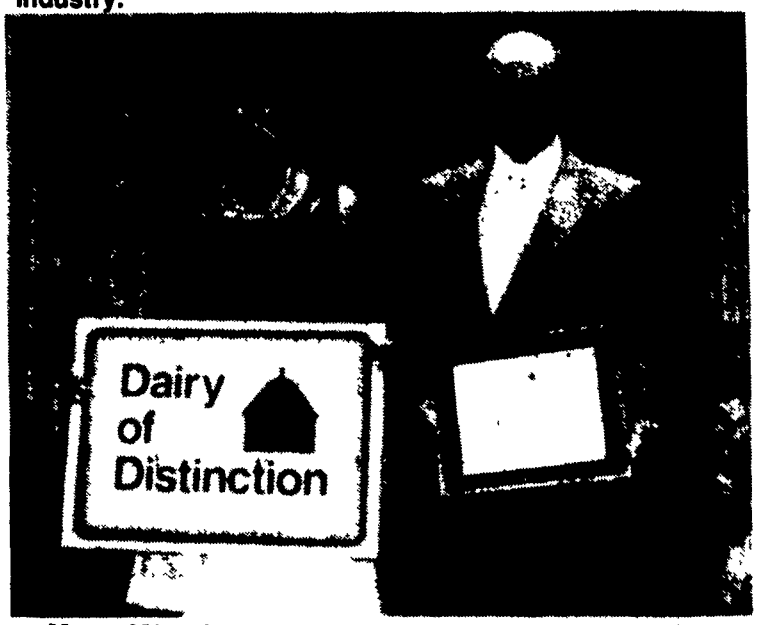
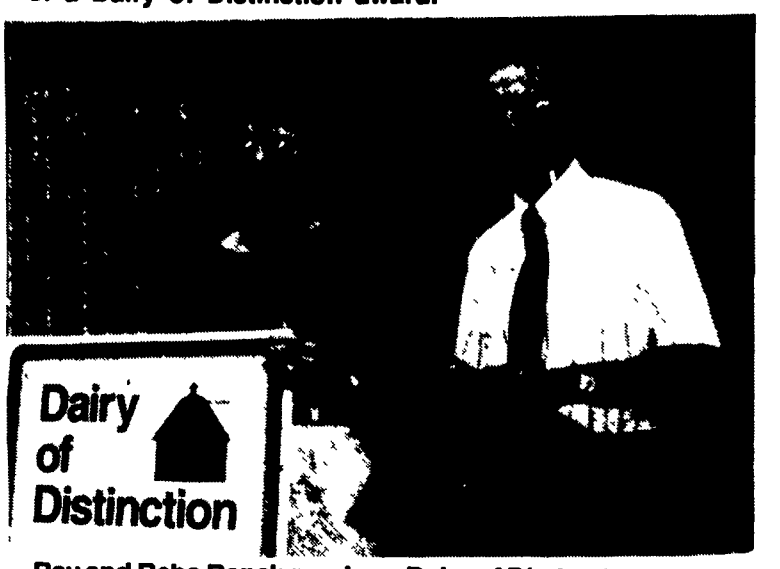
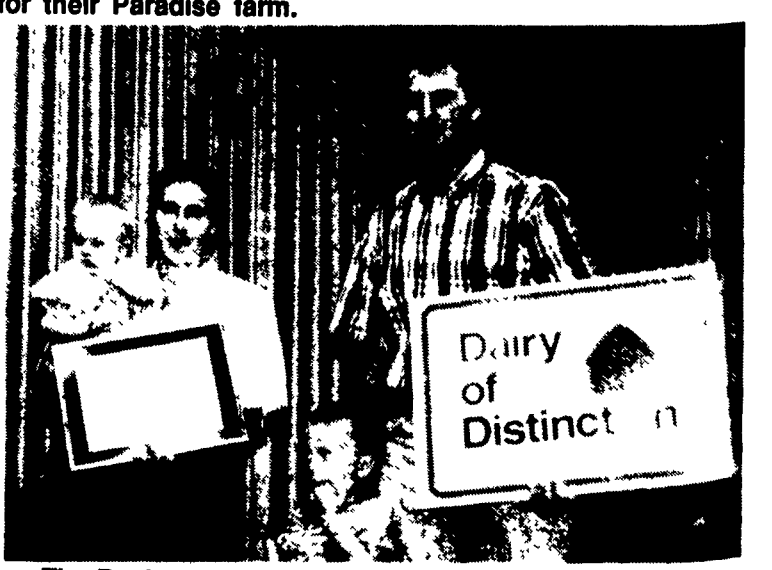
From left, Lisa Risser, co-chairman of the Dairy of Distinction Program, and Marci Harnish, 1993-1994 county dairy princess and state alternate, hand out Dairy of Distinction awards to Joe and Dave Garber and the Mark Dietrick families.



Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Long of Peach Bottom are recipients of a Dairy of Distinction award.



Ray and Reba Ranck receive a Dairy of Distinction award for their Paradise farm.



The David Wenger family accept a Dairy of Distinction award for their Manheim farm.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

BANG! The loud sound echoed around the farmstead in the 90-degree humidity of mid-morning.

"What was that?" I wondered aloud to the two cats underfoot.

The sharp, pronounced crack had sounded like a gunshot. Perhaps a groundhog sharpshooter had taken aim at one of the numerous "chucks" that excavate haybine-eating burrow-mounds of ground in the alfalfa fields and chomp off hundreds of baby soybean plants.

Or perhaps an equipment tire had blown. We've had an epidemic of those this spring. They blow with a thunderous "booooomm!" that has sent us scurrying a couple of times to see what disastrous explosion had taken place.

But this had not been a "booooomm!, but a distinct "BANG!"

When nothing unusual appeared around the farm in the next few moments, the sound was pushed from my mind by a mental schedule of what needed done and which had to be done first. A few minutes later, the back door slammed and The Farmer came hustling through the house, covered with dirt, his T-shirt wet, and an old milkhouse towel at his head.

And quietly made one of the scariest statements I've ever heard.

"A battery just blew up in my face."

Frankly, I don't remember much of the next few seconds, except he was peering toward the bathroom mirrow, trying to see dirt in his streaming, red eyes .... and groping for the eyewash .... and I repeatedly asked a couple of times in growing terror: "Can you see?"

I do recall answering that he could and my asking him to lie down on the floor so I could better wash out his eyes — and in case for some reason he might pass out.

"Can you see? Does it burn?"

Strangely enough, he had no burning, just a terrible scratching like his eyes were full of dirt. Which they surely had to be, since the battery was near haylage and feed dust. While I flooded his eyes with eyewash, he recounted moving the battery to work on it, after having recharged it some minutes before — when it just exploded.

"Can you see?"

Knowing he'd probably been sprayed with acid, he'd had the presence of mind to keep his eyes tightly closed after the explosion to prevent further contamination from whatever might be clinging to skin and clothes. Instead, he called dairy barn assistant John, who was working nearby, to guide him to the milkhouse, where he had flushed out his eyes with cold water for a several minutes before coming to the house.

"Can you see?" Enroute the few miles to York Hospital, I asked it again a couple of times. Each affirmative seemed an answer to some hastily offered prayers.

After nearly two hours of flushing his eyes with saline solutions, doctors were still removing tiny bits of dirt from his badly-reddened, abrasion-laced eyes. Three separate physicians who examined him agreed he would be uncomfortable for a couple of days but would probably have no lasting damage.

Yes, he can see. And we truly thank God for that.

This was not his first emergency room visit for farm-related eye injuries. I've worn out my "wear your safety glasses" nagging tape.

Anyone have an extra one I can borrow?

Compost Directory Available

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — If you've been wondering where to recycle excess yard and farm wastes or how to find recycled organics like mulch and compost, the Directory of Organic Material Recycling and Composting may be the resource you've been looking for. The directory, developed by the Recycling Education Office of Penn State's Montgomery County Cooperative Extension in Creamery, lists 50 sites in southeastern Pennsylvania which recycle, or will recycle in the near future, a variety of organic materials such as leaves, grass clippings, manure, woody brush and branches, lumber scraps, tree stumps and logs.

The Recycling Education Office promotes organic material recycling, composting, and end-product use by individuals and organizations through educational and networking programs. Based on approximately 2,400 surveys sent out last summer and fall by the Recycling Education Office, the directory will help link people who have excess organic materials with organic material recyclers and composters.

Each recycling site in the directory is assigned a number. If you have organic material to get rid of, you look first at the map in the centerfold to locate the nearest recycling/composting sites. Look up the number(s) in the listings section of the directory to get more information about each individual site. A contact name and phone number are given along with a list of materials the site accepts. Some sites also have recycled organic end-products like mulch and compost available. Call the site(s) to find out about pick up and delivery, directions, hours of operation, and costs.

If you would like a directory, send a self-addressed #10 business size envelope with 29 cents postage on it to: Recycling Directory, Montgomery County Cooperative Extension, P.O. Box 20, Creamery, PA 19430-0020.

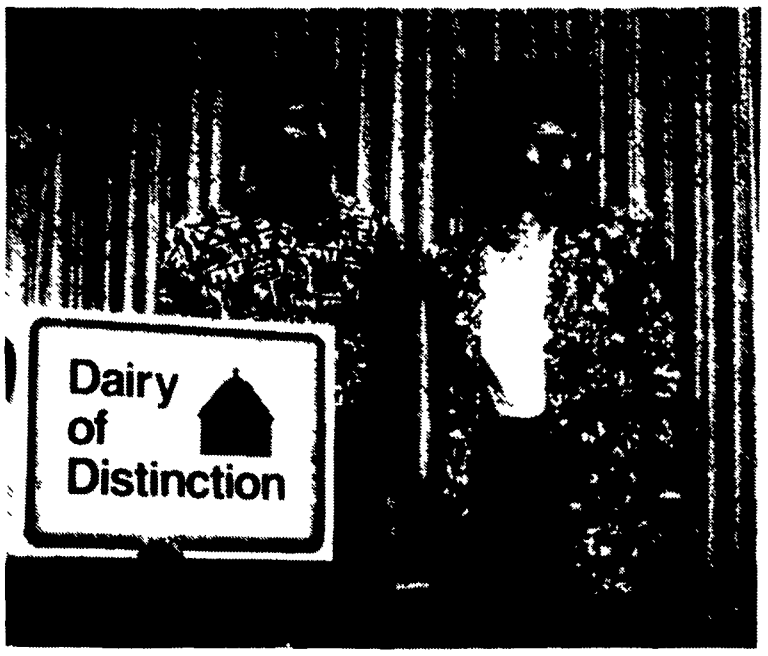
only on their pageant performances but also on individual enterviews with judges Joy Crothers, a director for Dairy Council; Ernest Miller, a Berks County dairy farmer and chairman of the Berks County Board of Commissioners; and Rebecca Sonnen Bube, former state dairy princess and program director for Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association.

In her farewell speech, outgoing Lancaster County Dairy Princess Marci Harnish said, "Tonight closes a chapter of my life that holds many wonderful moments."

She said that her mom is the dairy princess behind the dairy princess and the best milk punch maker. While her dad never got any public recognition for his role, he certainly deserved it according to Marci. He was the one who never held her back, who told her to go ahead while he did the milking.

"I've gained new insight for the dairy industry. I was very honored to be able to promote and represent it," Marci said.

In other business, five awards for Dairy of Distinction were given to the following: Philip Crouse, Stevens; David Garber, Lancaster; Samuel and Miriam Long, Peach Bottom; J. Raymond Ranck, Paradise; and David Wenger, Manheim.



Mr. and Mrs. Philip Crouse of Stevens accept a Dairy of Distinction award.

Tricks to Staying Cool

When it's mid-90's, hazy, hot and humid, the only word on my mind is COOL. Staying cool literally and figuratively. It can be a challenge. This past week as the sweat trickled down your back, you may have lost your cool. The grass is growing but it's too hot to be outside. The house is messy, but it's just too hot to stay inside and clean. Maybe, just maybe, that driver in the grocery store parking lot or that whiny child may have pushed you one inch beyond your limit, and you lost it.

Don't touch me! Don't talk to me! Is that how you feel when the mercury climbs? Well next week is a new week. You can try again to stay cool. Here are some chilling ideas:

✔ Complete physical tasks during the early morning or late evening hours. Save sedentary activities for the hottest parts of the day.

✔ If your home cools down overnight, consider CLOSING windows and allow your insulation to keep the cool inside. Also, draw drapes or blinds in rooms where the sun shines for extended periods of time.

✔ Regularly drink water and other cool beverages. Add a squirt of lemon juice and a splash of seltzer to spruce up an otherwise boring drink.

✔ Pause at the bathroom sink. Wash your face slowly with a soft cool cloth. Get out of the plush cloths that you usually save for company. Treat yourself. Also apply cold cloths to the insides of your wrists to help your body to cool.

✔ Store your cologne or aftershave in the refrigerator (carefully marked or stashed so young children won't discover them). A splash of this cooled fragrance will be especially refreshing on a steamy day.

✔ Take the kids outside to a shady area of your yard. Gather all the dirty toys, doll clothes and lawn furniture. Make a cooling games of hand washing and scrubbing the items in basins of cool, detergent water.

✔ Spend the day in your bathing suit. Try out the sprinkler or soaker hose. For older children, invite play with squirt guns, meat basters, dish detergent bottles, sponges.

Roll out a plastic sheet or tarp on a gently sloping part of your yard. Turn a host on so water runs down the tarp. Take turns sliding down your home made water slide. Make sure the area is soft and grassy. Don't allow the tarp to remain in the area long-term or it will kill the grass underneath.

✔ Stay inside. Turn off all the lights and TV. Lie quietly on the floor and listen for unusual sounds. While lying there, tell stories to children or take turns adding to each others stories. For your own sanity, you may want to set some ground rules like "We are going to lie down and listen for ten minutes" or "While we are lying down, you cannot touch anyone else."

✔ Make sidewalk chalk drawings and then enjoy rinsing off the artwork. Get your feet and legs really wet in the process.

✔ Freeze chunks of watermelon, grapes, berries, or pineapple. Enjoy them as a cold frozen treat. Young children should not be given pieces of fruit that they could choke on. Make sure their pieces are big enough to suck on and too big to swallow accidentally.

✔ And when things are getting really tense, walk to another room and stand in front of a fan or stand on a shaded porch to regain your composure. Lose yourself in the sound and breeze that a ceiling fan offers.

✔ When all else fails, invite yourself to someone else's air-conditioned home, visit an air-conditioned store or make a trip to the pool for relief.

If you're one of the lucky ones reading this column from a wonderfully cool living room, enjoy that luxury. Weren't we all wishing for summer back in February? Well it's here. Stay cool.

Dairy Recipe Extravaganza

This is it — the final batch of recipes from the June Dairy Recipe Extravaganza!

Thanks to many readers who made this tribute to dairy farmers a mouth-watering success. Your recipe is certain to become someone's favorite for many years to come.

Happy Eating!

CHUNKY CRAB CHOWDER

1 pound seafood crab chunks
1 cup chopped sweet red pepper
½ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon crushed basil leaves
2 cups shredded zucchini
5 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
4 cups milk
¾ teaspoon Bouquet garni, crushed
1 cup frozen peas, cooked and drained
1 cup fresh corn, cooked and drained
Salt and pepper to taste
8-ounces cream cheese, chunked
1 cup chopped fresh tomatoes

Pull or cut crab into bite-sized chunks, set aside. In large pan, saute red pepper, onion, zucchini in butter until tender. Add basil, Bouquet garni, salt and pepper. Stir to mix well.

Stir in flour. Add milk slowly, stirring to blend well, until bubbly.

Add peas, tomatoes, and corn. Cook 2 minutes. Tomatoes will be crunchy.

Stir in cheese and crab. Heat slowly and stir gently until cheese is melted.

Serve with green salad and homemade wheat bread.

Chunky Crab Chowder is a combination of five different recipes. It is wonderful and quick during zucchini season. I have used wonderful real crab meat and also imitation seafood chunks; both work well. If you are watching your fat levels, substitute with skim milk and light cream cheese.

I am a Schuylkill County jury commissioner and a volunteer for the American Cancer Society for 25 years. I enjoy canning and working in the flower gardens during the summertime. For 24 years, I have been collecting frogs.

My husband is a partner in Zim-Bal's Men's Clothing Store in Laurel Mall, Hazleton. We have one married son living in New York. I have won local cooking contests.

ECLAIR CAKE

Shell:
1 cup flour
½ cup butter
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
1 cup flour
4 eggs
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Bring water and butter to boil; turn down, heat, and stir in flour, salt, and extract while water is boiling. Stir until the ingredients form one mass. Remove from heat and add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Spread into well-greased pan. Spread some up the sides. Mixture will be very sticky. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Press down air bubbles in bottom, leaving crust around edges. Cool.

Filling:
8 ounces cream cheese, softened
2 small packages instant pudding
3 cups milk

Add dry pudding mix to cream cheese and mix. Add milk and beat for 2 to 3 minutes with electric mixer. Pour into eclair shell. Refrigerate 30 minutes.

Whip 1 cup whipping cream until peaks form; spread on top of pudding. Drizzle chocolate on top.

Chocolate Drizzle:
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cocoa
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons milk

Stir over high heat until it comes to a boil. Let boil one minute only. Let cool down, beat until preferred consistency.

My husband and I retired 10 years ago from very responsible and demanding jobs to "return to the earth" — moving from city life to a small farm. My hsuband was born and raised on a farm, but I wasn't. I went from a home where all I had to to do was push buttons to get heat, cook, air conditioning, etc. Now I do the majority of my cooking and baking on a wood and coal stove in the winter and we heat with wood.

I've come a long way from canning a few quarts of tomatoes to now canning an average of 700 quarts of just about anything that comes along in a year.

I have to confess that I still rely heavily on the freezer. But this is a very satisfying life and we can't complain of leading a sedentary lifestyle.

TUNA LASAGNA

½ pound lasagna noodles
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup onions, chopped
2 cans waterpacked tuna, drained
1 can cream of chicken, celery, or mushroom soup
½ cup skim milk
½ teaspoon garlic salt and oregano
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups low-fat cottage cheese
8 ounces Swiss or mozzarella cheese

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Cook noodles as package directs. Melt butter in a saucepan, saute onions. Add tuna, soup, milk, and seasonings. In buttered 7x11-inch baking dish, place alternate layers of noodle, tuna mixture, cottage cheese, sliced cheese, and end with sliced cheese. Sprinkle on parmesan cheese. Bake 30 to 45 minutes. Let cool 10 minutes before cutting to serve. Makes 6 servings. Approximately 275 calories per serving.

I always check out the Home on the Range pages and try many of the recipes. My entry uses five dairy products. The recipe came to me from a Wisconsin dairy. And it has become a favorite here on our potato farm with young and old alike.

CHOCOLATE CHIP PUDDING

2 cups milk
1 pound small marshmallows
2 cups whipped cream
1 teaspoon salt
½ square chocolate, chipped

Heat milk. Dissolve marshmallows in hot milk. Add salt and set aside until mixture begins to jell. Add cream to cooled mixture. Fold in chocolate chips or put on top.

I live on a dairy farm near Annville. Our farm is 84 acres and we rent some more. We raise corn, hay, and soybeans. Right now we are milking 68 cows.

My parents are Leon and Edna Horning. My brothers and sisters are Keith, 18; me, 16; Currin, 14; Steve, 12; Dwayne, 6; and Marilyn, 3. We all love dairy products!

CHOCOLATE CHIP ICE CREAM
4-quart freezer

2½ cups milk
2¼ cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups half and half
1½ teaspoons vanilla
6 cups whipping cream
12 ounces chocolate chips
4 cups milk
3¼ cups sugar
1¼ tesapoon salt
4 cups half and half
2 teaspoons vanilla
9 cups whipping cream
18 ounces chocolate chips

Scald milk until bubbles form around edges. Remove from heat. Add sugar and salt. Stir until dissolved. Stir in half and half, vanilla, and whipping cream. Cover and refrigerate 30 minutes. Freeze as directed by your ice cream freezer instructions.

Immediately after removing dasher, stir in chocolate chips.

My husband Cliff and I, along with our two children, Rebekah, 2, and Luke, 1, rent a house on Moyer Brothers Farm. We raise vegetables for our own use and sell any extras that we might have.

Cliff is a sawyer for Wickizer Wood Products. I stay at home with our two children. We attend Overcomers Holiness Church in New Ringgold.

BAKED MACARONI AND CHEESE
For a crowd

5 pounds macaroni
17 quarts water
6 tablespoons salt
1¼ cups butter
10 tablespoons flour
15 cups milk
6¼ pound cheese

Cook macaroni in salt water and drain. Make a white sauce by melting butter. Add flour and stir until well blended and bubbly. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly until smooth paste is formed. Add pepper if desired. Place alternate layers of macaroni, sliced or grated cheese, and white sauce in greased electric roast pan until full. Bake at 350 degrees for one to two hours or until hot. Serves 60.

FAT-FREE MUFFINS

1 cup all-purpose flour
½ cup wheat cereal nuggets
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 medium-sized ripe bananas, mashed
½ cup plain non-fat yogurt
¼ cup egg substitute
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place muffin cups in muffin pans. Mix flour, cereal nuggets, sugar, baking powder, and salt. In a large bowl, mix bananas, yogurt, egg substitute, and vanilla. Stir flour mixture into banana mixture. Stir until flour mixture is moist. Spoon into muffin pans. Bake 20 minutes.

CHEESE CRISPS

2 cups cheddar cheese, grated
½ cup grated parmesan cheese
½ cup butter, room temperature
¼ cup water
¾ cup whole-wheat pastry flour
½ cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon toasted wheat germ
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne
1 cup rolled oats
Dash paprika

Thoroughly blend cheeses, butter, and water. Add flours, wheat germ, salt, and cayenne; mix well. Stir in rolled oats.

Divide dough in half. Form into 2 rolls, each about 1½ inches in diameter. Wrap tightly. Refrigerate until well chilled, about 4 hours or up to one week.

After it is well chilled, slice in ⅛ -¼ -inch slices. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake on greased baking sheet at 400 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. Cool on rack. Yields 4 dozen.

I am married to Charles Kulinski. We have two sons. My husband and I are both dairy farmers. I also work for PaDHIA. I am serving my first year on the Beaver-Lawrence Dairy Promotion Committee.

PUMPKIN SQUARES

Crust:
1 cup flour
½ cup quick oats
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup butter

Filling:
2 cups pumpkin
2 cups milk, scalded
3 eggs, beaten
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt

Topping:
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup chopped nuts
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons flour

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Butter and flour a 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Combine flour, oats, and sugar. Cut in butter until crumbly and press in bottom of pan to make a crust. Bake 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Stir together ingredients for filling and pour into baked crust. Bake 15 or 20 minutes or until set. Combine ingredients for topping. Return to oven to bake 10 to 15 minutes more or until topping is a deep golden color. Cool, then cut into squares.

This is a recipe that I got from my mother. She would usually make it at Christmastime in the cookie trays.

We live on a dairy farm and milk about 100 cows. We have three daughters, Emily, 3; Aremina, 2; and Veronica, 5 months. They like to be in the barn with us and help where they can.

25-MINUTE CHEESECAKE

10 graham crackers
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon sugar
Three 8-ounce packages cream cheese
4 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup sugar
1 pint sour cream
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Crush graham crackers with rolling pin. Mix crumbs, soft butter, and 1 tablespoon sugar. Spread over bottom of a 9-inch springform pan evenly.

Beat cream cheese with a mixer until light. Beat in eggs, vanilla, and 1 cup sugar until very smooth and creamy. Pour evenly over crumbs and bake 25 minutes. Near the end of the baking time, prepare the topping.

Beat together sour cream, 1 tablespoon sugar, and vanilla extract for one minute.

Smooth over cake surface, return cake to oven and bake 5 minutes longer. Chill in refrigerator (leave cake in pan) 4 to 5 hours or even overnight.

This has been our favorite cheesecake for more than 30 years. Although the cake is large, it never lasts very long.

Robert is 70 years old and I am 68. He enjoys raising corn on our farms, hunting, fishing, and gardening. My hobbies are knitting, crocheting, and cooking.

YANKEE BREAD

2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon yeast
1 tablespoon honey
1 cup milk, warmed

Mix together dry ingredients. Add honey and milk. Knead five times. Turn out on floured board nd roll one-half inch thick. Cut into 1-inch wide strips.

Melt ½ cup butter in a 9x13-inch pan. Roll strips of dough in butter to coat and lay in pan. Let rise one to four hours for best results. (Rising isn't necessary but it gets better if allowed to rise). Bake at 375 degrees for about 16 to 18 minutes.

Whenever we have this bread, it brings cheers from our daughters. It's a favorite of our family — it's deliciously hot from the oven with jelly!

We are dairy farmers in Berks County with a small herd of cows. My husband, Llewellyn, and I have three daughters, Linnea, 6; Kayla, 3; and Sharita, 1.

QUESTION — Sandy Bortner, Spring Grove, wants recipes for rolls with fillings such as nut, poppy seed, apricot, peanut butter, jelly, cinnamon and sugar, which uses frozen bread loaves.

ANSWER — Beulah Beitzel, York, wanted a recipe for vinegar pie. Thanks to Fran Westfall, Spring Grove, who sent a recipe taken from a cookbook using mostly recipes from Arkansas.

Vinegar Pie

2 cups boiling water
¼ cup vinegar
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
3 eggs, separated
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar

Beat egg yolks until thicken. Add 1 cup sugar, flour, and salt. Mix thoroughly. Add boiling water slowly, stirring constantly. Add vinegar. Cover with meringue made of 3 egg whites and 3 tablespoons sugar. Bake in 325 degree oven for 20 mintues. This tastes like lemon meringue.

Tomato Or 'Tomahto'?

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — However you say it, the tomato is one of the true summer treasures. There are hybrids and non-hybrids (for those of you who like to save your own seeds), large ones, small ones, tomatoes of every different hue, acid-flavored and mild-sweet flavored, determinate and indeterminate. Some people grow their tomatoes on trellises and other people let them sprawl. Some prune their tomatoes during the growing season and others don't. There are few garden crops grown that have as much variety of color, shape, size and method of growing.

Americans love their tomatoes, and well they should, for they originated in the new world. It had a slower start in popularity than some of the other new world foods. People feared it was a poisonous plant, just like the deadly nightshade which is in the same plant family.

Fortunately for us, there were some braver cultures who did use the tomato in their cuisine. Mediterranean cultures united olive oil, basil, oregano, garlic, parsley, peppers and onions in various combinations with the tomato. Mexico and the Southwest contributed the currently popular salsa, combining tomatoes and chilies.

Not so lucky for the tomato are the pests which have evolved with it. Take a good look at your plants to evaluate potential problems. Tomatoes are also prone to a number of diseases.

Look for the following:

• Small brown spots on the bottom leaves of the plant, eventually turning yellow, this pattern works its way up the plant as it loses it leaves. You could have Tomato Septoria Leaf Spot.

• The fruits develop small round water soaked spots. Eventually fruits darken and rot. This is Anthracnose.

• Irregular brown spots showing on lower leaves, eventually causing the lower leaves to fall off. The stem end of the fruit may become grayish green; blossoms or young fruit may drop. This is one of the blights, either early or late.

• Fusarium Wilt causes the leaves to yellow and droop. Fruit usually decays and drops. Brownish liquid is found within the stem.

• Mosaic Virus which will bunch or pucker young leaves. Stunted plants. Sometimes fruit is mottled.

If you feel you have a disease problem with your tomatoes and are not sure, bring a sample of your plant to the extension office. That way you can have it correctly identified and you will know how to deal with your specific problem. Rotate your tomato plants each year, look for disease-resistant varieties, and work with clean tools and hands in your garden.

The biggest insect problem you may find now is the tomato hornworm. You will know you have this problem when you discover 1/4 to 1/3 of your tomato plant has been consumed by something overnight. Look carefully throughout the foliage. The worm is camouflaged and sometimes is difficult to find. Once found, the remedy is quite simple. Just pick and destroy. If you find larvae and notice still, oblong white cocoons suspended from the body, it is safe to leave the worm there. The cocoons are from a parasitic wasp that has fed on the worm. Nature has done your job for you. If the worm is not yet dead, it will be soon, and you will be releasing more beneficial wasps into the environment to continue to help you in the garden.

The Extension Office has publications on growing, harvesting, and preserving tomatoes. Come in to pick up those of interest to you.

Dash salt
4 butter chips

Mix together first six ingredients. Let set while making crust. Line a 9-inch and a 6-inch pie plate with pastry. Fill with elderberry mixture. Top with butter chips. Adjust top crust. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 400 degrees for 40 minutes.

ANSWER — Sanda Sanger, Lebanon, wanted a recipe for chicken pot pie that uses potatoes has an ingredient. Thanks to a reader for sending several.

Chicken Pot Pie

4 pounds chicken pieces
1 teaspoon salt
6 potatoes, cut in pieces
8 small carrots, whole
2 tablespoon parsley
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning

Dough:

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
2 or 3 tablespoons water

Cover chicken with water. Add salt and poultry seasoning. Cook until tender. When chicken is almost soft, add potatoes and carrots. To make dough, make a well in flour. Add the eggs and salt. Work into a stiff dough. Add water as needed. Roll out dough to ⅛ -inch thickness.

Cut into 1-inch squares and drop into boiling broth. Cook 20 minutes. Add parsley before serving.

Deep Dish Chicken Pot Pie

3 cups cubed, cooked chicken

Boil together:

2 cups peas
2 cups potatoes, diced
1 cup sliced carrots
1 tablespoon salt

Put 2 cups chicken broth in pan. When boiling, add 4 tablespoons flour mixed with water to make paste as in making gravy.

Melt ¼ cup butter; add 1 cup onions. Cook until soft. Mix together all ingredients.

Pastry:

Cut ⅔ cups shortening into:
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons celery salt

Add:

4 tablespoons water as needed.

ANSWER — L. Weaver, Ephrata, wanted a recipe for tomato sauce (similar to Hunt's) to can. Thanks to Sadie Stoltzfus, Kinzer, for sending a recipe.

Canned Pizza Sauce

3 peppers, chopped
2 onions, chopped
4 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon garlic salt or powder
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 tablespoon oregano
3 quarts tomato juice
2 tablespoons sugar
Dash pepper or red pepper

Brown onion and pepper in oil, and add remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil and simmer 20 minutes. Thicken with clear jel. Put in jars and cold pack 10 minutes. Makes 7 pints.

Plant Clinics And Horticulture Problems

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Good News for folks who can't get to the Extension office during regular office hours. Thanks to the willingness and interest of our Master Gardeners, there will be folks on duty from 9 to 11 a.m. on Saturday mornings from June 11 through July 23 at the Extension Office in the Agricultural Center at 2120 Cornwall Road, Lebanon. You can bring samples of problem plant materials for diagnosis or you can call to speak with a Master Gardener. The extension will try this new service for 6 weeks to see if it is a service you find helpful. There will not be anyone in the office on the July 2 holiday weekend.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Have you ever thought that with changing times comes a change in the type of wedding gift you might be purchasing for a couple this June?

Today, most people have been working for a while before they marry, and traditional wedding gifts may no longer be appropriate.

For example, there are many couples that have such basics as toasters, can openers, and blenders.

Many friends are giving gifts that are more luxury items than necessities. Gifts that help the newlyweds plan for the future and manage their household also are appreciated.

One item enjoyed but often not purchased by the bride and groom is artwork. Sculpture in wood, glass, pottery, metal, prints, and paintings, all make fine gifts, as long as they are bought with the newlywed's taste in mind. Handcrafted pottery that can be used to serve food is always useful. If it is an unusual piece or from a well-known craftsman, it will be a life time treasure and conversation piece when hosting a party.

A good place to shop for such gifts is the many arts fairs, craft shops and community festivals.

If the couple enjoys cooking and entertaining, some specialty appliances make nice gifts. These include food processors, toaster ovens, and microwave ovens. Because space is often limited, appliances that do double-duty are usually appreciated.

Giving additional serving pieces to dinnerware the couple already has collected also makes sense.

For patio entertaining, quality plastic dinnerware or a picnic basket might come in handy.

Gifts that are an investment in the future are both practical and add a nice touch of symbolism at this time in the couple's life.

Savings bonds that increase in value as time goes on fit in with the emphasis on the future that a wedding brings.

Money and household management gifts are appropriate, especially for two-career couples. These can include books about money management with a savings bond to go with them.

You also might buy a filing cabinet or other gifts that encourage the couple to have a business center.

If the couple is moving to an apartment or new home, inquire if indoor or outdoor plants are needed for the new living quarters. A small plant or tree growing larger every year will be a reminder of a thoughtful gift giver.

With dual-career couples, a gift of services might be appreciated. For example, you might pay to have their lawn taken care of for a year.

A shower gift suggestion might include gift certificates to a grocery store, your favorite recipes with the needed ingredients all wrapped for the festive occasion. A gift of food or groceries can help a new couple start housekeeping with an assortment of food products. Or you might give a gift certificate which will teach a skill such as bread baking. For couples who enjoy dining out, a gift certificate to a special restaurant might be an ideal gift that can be used at the first anniversary.

Finally, remember to choose gifts that will be used by the newlyweds rather than wind up being stored indefinitely.

Big Ben The Bear Pays Final Tribute To His Owner

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

EAST WATERFORD (Juniata Co.) — It has been said that dog is man's best friend, but Mid Kistler feels this is not true for all men. In the case of her husband, Bob, it was a bear, Big Ben, that was her husband's best friend. In fact, Mid said that Bob used to say he had two loves in his life — Mid and Big Ben — but he would tease her and say he wasn't sure which should be named first!

Years ago, Bob started to raise bear cubs. At the request of the owner of a small ice cream place, Bob placed the cubs in an area back of Dairy Dine to help draw customers. Eventually Bob placed many animals there, and Bob also started to have his animals in the East Waterford parades.

Bob and Mid have lived on the present farm for 12 years, but they raised animals before that. They bought bear cubs and fawn and fed them from the bottle. Once they had three fawn on a bottle at one time and had to keep them in a corncrib divided into three sections so they could be fed separately as each one demanded attention at the same time. Since there were so many of them, they lost track of the number of deer they raised, but they had as many as 12 to 14 at one time in various sizes. They would sell and get more, sell and get more, until Mid says it was like they were "wheelin' and dealin'." It is not hard to see, though, that Bob and Mid were more interested in raising the animals because they loved them than they were in any profit they may have received.

Of course, they had to be inspected by the state and have permits and license before they could keep wildlife in captivity. Many safety measures had to be enforced to meet state requirements. After awhile, the Department of Agriculture also required them to have a license.

Although bear cubs and deer seemed to be the favorites of Bob and Mid, they also enjoyed raising and displaying rams, goats, Fallow deer (German), Maufflan sheep, "de-frosted" skunks, pygmy goats, foxes, wallaby (little kangaroos), pheasants, exotic pigeons, and doves. They certainly were "farmers" in their own right, and they had a living "crop" of animals which they loved and which loved them.

The highlight, though, was in 1975 when Bob bought Ben and his little mate, Jennie, then only six months old. Jennie was taken to New York state, but Ben stayed with Bob Kistler. As Mid describes it, those two had a very special relationship from the start.

Next Bob bought a female bear, Smokey. She and Ben had 15 cubs together. Most of them were sold, but two special ones were kept and were also often in local parades. One of the cubs, Herbie, was a "bad boy" on a number of occasions, often getting into mischief. As Mid laughingly described it, you can't correct or discipline a bear with a spank on the butt because they are too well-padded. They soon learn that the only place that will hurt from being corrected is the nose which can be tweaked or hit lightly with a switch when necessary. So, when Herbie had been naughty, he would run to stick his nose in a corner, letting his well-padded behind stick out without fear.

One time Herbie got in their water spring, rolled around in it and became covered with mud. Then he went to the house and got into the washer. Needless to say, when he was taken from the washer, he headed for a corner!

There was sadness in Mid's voice, though, when she told that Herbie had to be put to death when he became older. A boy came to their place and, without permission, went to Herbie's cage and stood with his arm right up against the bars. Herbie grabbed this stranger's arm, pulled it into the cage bars and broke it quite badly. The state made them have Herbie put to death so he could be inspected for Rabies, which, of course, was not found. The Kistlers knew that Herbie had not been out of his cage where other animals could have bitten him, but they were told that a bat with Rabies could have bitten him, and so there was no choice but to have Herbie put to death. It was devastating for Bob and Mid.

Another cute trick that Mid recalled about Herbie, when he was small, was when he got into the truck and stood at the steering wheel like a kid. This provided laughs for many people (and happy/sad memories for the Kistlers).

In the meantime, Ben and Bob played together and pulled tricks on each other. Ben especially loved peanuts in the shell. One of his favorite tricks was to pull one from Bob's mouth or ear by taking it in his big mouth ever so gently. Ben also loved to get in the cage in his bear trailer to be taken to parades. He was always content as long as Bob was near.

When raising the bear cubs, the Kistlers started with goat milk, then baby cereal such as Pablum, then puppy chow and, finally, adult dog food. There are dog bears and hog bears. Big Ben and offspring are the dog bear type, and as adults they like day-old bread and dog food. The only meat they get is what is in the dog food, which must be high in protein. They also like ear corn, apples, pears and donuts (but they are given only limited sweets).

Ben still loves to eat grass, but it must be pulled or weed-whacked; no mower clippings for him! After all, a fella has to have something to chew on to make it worthwhile. It is quite a picture to see Big Ben sitting on his butt and holding ear corn as he eats it. Of course peanuts are still his favorite, perhaps because they make him think of Bob.

About eight years ago, a new friend came into the life of Big Ben and the Kistlers. Pennsylvania State Trooper Cliff Stitely started to raise deer and went to visit Bob Kistler for advice. Bob reminded Cliff of his grandfather, and they became the best of friends. Cliff also became quite attached to Big Ben who now weighs 841 pounds and is 19 years old. This might sound old, but his father lived to be 35! Ben is the last of the large animal collection once owned by the Kistlers, although Mid still has Sparky the Schnauzer for a pet.

Some months ago, Bob Kistler found that he had cancer. In addition to his pain, perhaps the most difficult thing for him to face was leaving Big Ben because he knew how much Ben loved him and would miss his care. At first, Bob asked Cliff to have Big Ben put to death after Bob died, but later he withdrew this request when he realized it would be impossible for Cliff to carry out that request.

Another request, however, was one that Cliff definitely planned to fulfill. While in the final stages of cancer in the hospital where he was too ill to be released, Bob told Cliff that his last wish was to pet Big Ben just one more time. Cliff received permission from the hospital to take Big Ben in his cage on the trailer to outside the hospital where nurses would wheel Bob so he could give Ben that one final pet.

However, Cliff found the melted snow had made such soggy ground that the truck could not get into the area where Big Ben could be transferred from his enclosure to the cage on the trailer. Before it was possible to take Big Ben to answer Bob's final wish, Bob died in the hospital at age 77.

Guess who led the funeral procession? Big Ben in his cage on the trailer pulled by a pickup just as he so often had been taken by Bob. A short time before the funeral, the wind had come up and dried out the ground enough for the truck to get in to load Big Ben, and Cliff Stitely was able to take care of a final act of love for his dear friend. Cliff took Big Ben to his home two nights before the funeral to get him ready for the procession.

To the people of this little town and rural area in Tuscarora Valley, it was most appropriate that Big Ben was where he belonged one last time — in a parade with his beloved Bob, although this time it was a private procession and not a public parade.

UPDATED NOTE: We are happy to report that Big Ben is alive and well, though perhaps somewhat homesick for Bob, Mid, and Cliff. A man in Maryland had heard that Ben was available and, about three days after this writer interviewed Mid Kistler and took pictures of Big Ben (which was about ten days after Bob's funeral), the new owner came to get Ben. He took Ben to live in one of his private menageries where he keeps exotic animals and birds.

Perhaps Big Ben will not grieve as much for his friend away from the old, familiar surroundings; but we suspect that, back in the recesses of his mind, when he smells fresh peanuts he will sense that some one is missing. Goodbye, old friend, many people will miss you and remember you. May you live to be even older than 35.

Mid Kistler said it would be too much for her to keep Big Ben. The cost of an insurance liaability policy is far beyond what she can afford. Although it is like losing a member of the family, she knows that Big Ben will be cared for properly.

Summer Assistants Bring Fresh Perspective To 4-H

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Four new faces continue to pop up at the Lancaster County Penn State Extension office recently.

They are the faces of 4-H summer assistants, who are busy instigating vigor and enthusiasm into 4-H summer activities.

Although the assistants had been involved as 4-H members, now, as assistants, Marilyn Holloway said, "We are seeing a different side of 4-H. We never understood all the work that is put into running a successful program until we became assistants."

Marilyn has been an active 4-H'er for 10 years. She has won many outstanding awards for her achievements. Recently she completed her freshman year at Hood College in Frederick, Maryland, where she is majoring in communications and has a full scholarship for her academic achievements.

The daughter of Clifford and Joyce Holloway of Peach Bottom is responsible for assisting in rural community 4-H clubs.

The person responsible for assisting urban 4-H clubs is Katrina Boyer. She will be a senior this fall at Millersville University where she is majoring in special education.

The daughter of George and Roberta Maxwell of West Grove formerly worked with the 4-H program in Chester County. She is really excited about establishing gardening projects, foods and nutrition clubs, and teaching cultural crafts to Lancaster City children and teen-agers.

Jeff Bollinger is well known in 4-H and FFA sheep showing circles. He has been a member of the 4-H Woolies Club for seven years. He recently completed his first year majoring in animal science at Penn State University. Jeff's livestock experience will be used to assist Livestock Agent Chester Hughes. Jeff has his sights set on becoming a livestock agent after he graduates from college. He is the son of Raymond and Sharon Bollinger of Ephrata.

Joel Metzler is the horticulture assistant. It's his duty to oversee and monitor many of the gardens throughout the county. He checks for bugs and diseases on ornamentals and vegetables. He also answers questions people have about gardening when they call the extension office. Joel is a biology major at York College and lives with his parents C.Lehman and Alta Metzler in Airville, York County.

POTATO SOUP

⅔ cup butter
⅔ cup flour
7 cups milk
4 large potatoes, cooked, cooled, peeled, and cubed
12 strips bacon, cooked and crumbled
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup sour cream
¾ teaspoon salt

In a large soup kettle, melt the butter. Stir in flour; heat and stir until smooth. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly until it thickens. Add potatoes. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes. Add remaining ingredients; stir until cheese is melted (2½ quarts).

INDIANA CHEESE BAKE

1 cup cottage cheese
8 ounce package egg noodles
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon butter
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup minced chives

Combine all ingredients except butter. Pour into 1½ quart baking dish. Dot with butter. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for ½ hour. Serves 6.

My husband Albert and I are dairy farmers in southeast New York. We are milking about 30 cows, mostly Holsteins. We had a baby girl last December, who takes up a lot of time, so I'm always looking for quick main dishes.

PIEROGI CASSEROLE

1 pound lasagna noodles (cooked)
¾ pound cheddar cheese
1 cup butter
2 onions (medium or small)
10-12 potatoes (cooked and mashed)

Cook noodles as directed on package. Mash potatoes. Add cheese to potatoes and beat well. Saute onions in butter until soft. Add ⅓ of onion mixture to potato mixture. Salt and pepper to your taste. Generously butter a 13-inch by 9-inch by 2-inch pan. Place layer of noodles, then layer of potato mixture. Repeat ending with noodles. Pour remaining butter and onion over all. Cover with foil. Bake at 350 degrees 20-25 minutes. Let stand for about 10 minutes before serving. Freezes well per recipe.

Hi! My name is Lucinda Walker, and I live on a dairy farm near Somerset with my husband Kurt and 4-year-old son, Daniel.

I love to try new recipes, and Kurt and Daniel (I kid people) are my guinea pigs. They seem to enjoy being them, too.

PEACH UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

Drain 9 canned cling peach halves. In bottom of deep square pan (9-inch by 9-inch) spread ¼ cup soft butter. On top of buttter, pour evenly ½ cup brown sugar. Arrange peaches upside down on sugar mixture. In uniform pattern between pach halves, arrange maraschino cherries, cream together, add sugar gradually, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift together 2 cups sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and 1 teaspoon salt and mix into creamed egg mixture, with ⅔ cup milk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Pour butter carefully over top of fruit. Bake at 350 degrees or 325 degrees in glass about 1 hour. Loosen sides of cake with spatula and turn out of pan immmediately, allowing pan to rest over cake a few seconds so that syrup will drain out. Serve warm or cold with whipped cream topping. Serves 9 generously.

CHEESE CAKE

8-ounces cream cheese
12-ounces evaporated milk (cooled)
1 cup sugar
3-ounces Jell-O (any flavor)
1 teaspoon vanilla
8 double graham crackers
1 tablespoon butter

Prepare the Jell-O, but use only 1 cup of hot water, and set aside to cool. Mash the graham crackers and mix with the butter. Pat in the bottom of an 8½ -inch by 11-inch pan, reserving a little to sprinkle on top. Beat the cooled milk and vanilla in one bowl, then beat the sugar and the cream cheese in another bowl. Add the cooled Jell-O to this mixture and beat again. Then add this mixture ot the milk/vanilla and beat again. Pour gently on the graham crust, add the remaining crumbs on thte top, and refrigerate several hours until it is set. Note: Please remember not to use the 2 cups of liquid that the Jell-O package normally requires.

My children liked this recipe very much, but they are grown now and living on their own. When they were young, we had a dairy farm with Holsteins.

GOURMET CHEESE POTATOES

6 large potatoes
1¼ cups shredded cheese (cheddar, longhorn, or Velveeta)
¼ cup sour cream
⅓ cup milk
¼ cup butter
¼ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cook potatoes in the skin. Peel and shred coarsely. Set aside.

In medium to large saucepan, or skillet, saute onion in butter. Add cheese and melt on low setting. Remove from heat, and add sour cream, milk, salt and pepper. Fold in shredded potatoes.

Place mixture into greased 2-quart baking dish, dot with 2 tablespoons butter and sprinkle with paprika. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves six to eight.

SUNSHINE CHEESE PIE

Three 3-ounce packages cream cheese
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
⅓ cup warm milk
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
½ cup sour cream

Graham cracker crust:
1¼ cup graham cracker crumbs
⅓ cup sugar
⅓ cup melted butter

For crust, blend ingredients together and press on bottom and sides of greased 8-inch pie plate. Chill until set, add filling, and bake.

For filling, cream the butter and cheese. Add sugar and whole eggs. Mix well and add flour alternately with milk. Stir in lemon juice and rind. Pour into unbaked 8-inch pan with graham cracker pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes. Cool. Add confectioners' sugar to sour cream; pour over top of pie and bake at 400 degrees for 5 minutes. Chill and serve.

We live in Mertztown. We are involved in outdoor and indoor furniture with oak wood, rocking chairs, other chairs, 4- and 5-foot gliders, 4- and 5-foot porch swings, child swings, rocking horses, new baby cradles, doll cradles, bean bag games, loveseats, child tables and chairs, quick racks, cloth trees, cedar chests, serve carts, coffee tables, toy chests, Adirondack chairs, foot rests, cutting boards, and cedar animals.

We love to work together in the Biehl work shop. We have two cats and no dogs. We go deer hunting and fishing. We love to be together, and are married 25 years this year. I love to collect cookbooks, knit bedspreads, cook, sew, bake, and crochet rugs. I made 10 rugs this winter for my rooms when it snows. I was busy sewing and crocheting rugs of all colors. I take care of my garden, which includes cabbage, peppers, tomatoes, potatoes, sweet potatoes, peas, onion, lettuce, strawberries, yellow and green beans, and purple beans. I make homemade jelly, including peach, grape, and strawberry, and I freeze all my vegetables and fruit for the winter.

I have a vegetable juice. We have carrot juice for breakfast and dinner. Drinking those, you feel good all day.

CARAMEL PUDDING

¾ cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1 quart milk
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 egg, beaten

In a large saucepan, melt the butter, brown sugar and water until bubbling. Then add the salt, baking soda and continue to boil until the mixture becomes a paste. Add the quart of milk.

Then, separately, mix the flour, cornstarch and beaten egg into a paste, adding a little extra milk. Use to thicken the pudding mixture. Stir the pudding constantly while heating until it comes to a boil again. Remove from heat and chill, stirring occasionally. A secret to good pudding is to beat it every so often while it cools. This makes it creamy.

CHEESY FRANKS AND POTATOES
(serves 6)

½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup shortening
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
1 cup shredded American cheese
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ pound frankfurters or any cooked, cut meat desired
3 cups sliced cooked potatoes

Saute onions in shortening until tender. Stir in flour and salt, add milk. Cook, stirring constantly over low heat until thick and bubbly. Remove from heat, stir in mustard and cheese. Cut hot dogs ¼ -inch thick. Layer the potatoes, frankfurters, and cheese sauce in a 2½ - to 3-quart baking dish. Bake about 350 degrees until hot and bubbly, about 25 minutes.

A can of drained vegetables can be added. Also, this recipe can be prepared in the morning and refrigerated until needed. If prerefrigerated, allow 10 to 15 minutes additional cooking time.

QUICK SCALLOPED POTATOES

4 cups sliced potatoes (about 6)
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup ham, cubed
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon minced onions

Peel potatoes early in the day and cover with water. About 30 minutes before eating, drain off half the water and cook the potatoes on medium for 20 minutes.

While potatoes are cooking, make medium white sauce by melting butter in a skillet, adding flour, and cooking until bubbly. Stir in milk and bring to a boil. Stir in onion, cheese, and then ham. Remove from heat.

When potatoes are done, drain water, then pour sauce mixture over potatoes. Stir gently.

½ pint whipping cream

Roll out cookies; add enough melted butter to hold together crumbs (about ¼ cup)

Butter 9x2½ -inch deep pie pan. Press cookie mixture onto bottom and sides of pan. Bake at 350 for 8 minutes; cool completely.

Soften and stir ice cream; put into crust; freeze.

Mix chocolate, milk, butter, and sugar in double boiler; cook until thickened. Cool completely. Pour over ice cream, freeze. Top with whipped cream and chocolate shavings, if desired. Take out of freezer long enough to soften for slicing. Serves 8.

TUNA CHEESE IMPERIAL

8-ounce package cream cheese
½ cup butter
5 tablespoons flour
8ounces wide noodles
1 can tuna fish
6 ounces sliced muenster cheese
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2½ cups milk
½ cup sliced green olives

Cook noodles. Melt 5 tablespoons butter in saucepan. Stir in flour, salt, and pepper. Cook, stirring constantly until bubbling. Stir in milk. Continue stirring and cooking until sauce thickens and boils for one minute. Slice cream cheese into sauce, stir until melted. Then stir in tuna and green olives. Remove from heat. Pour about ¼ cup sauce into greased 10-cup baking dish, layer other ingredients on top: noodles, sauce, 2 slices cheese, repeat and top with sauce Melt remaining butter, add bread, toss slightly and sprinkle over mixture. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes.

I love to cook although I don't have a lot of time. I work with developmentally disabled adults 40 hours a week. I have three daughters, ages 10, 11, and 12 My husband Steve and I are in the process of re-opening my father-in-laws bottling plant and milk store My daughters, Amanda, Jessica, and Amber love this casserole because of the cheese

I really enjoy reading the Lancaster Farming and have tried many of the recipes. I look forward to trying the recipes in the June Recipe Extravaganza.

LIGHT AND LUSCIOUS ORANGE PIE

Crust:

1¼ cups flour
4-ounce package coconut cream pudding and pie filling mix
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
2 tablespoons butter, softened
1 egg

Filling:

2 cups sour cream
15 ounces sweetened condensed milk
½ cup orange-flavored instant breakfast drink (reserve ¼ teaspoon for garnish)
2 cups whipped cream

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. In a large bowl, with an electric mixer at low speed, combine the flour, pudding mix, salt, shortening, butter, and egg. Blend just until the dry ingredients are moistened.

Press this mixture into the bottom and up the sides of a 9-inch pie pan.

Bake for 15 to 18 minutes or until light golden brown.

Cool the crust thoroughly on a wire rack before filling.

Prepare the filling by combining the sour cream, condensed milk, and breakfast drink mix in a large bowl. With the electric mixer at high speed, beat until thoroughly combined about one minute.

Spoon the filling into the cooled crust; refrigerate at least one hour before serving.

Just before serving, spread the whipped cream over the pie and sprinkle with the reserved breakfast drink mix. Serves 6 to 8.

My family and I live on a dairy farm. Today was the last day of school and now I'm in seventh grade. I'm 12 years old.

KAY'S CREAM CHEESE POUND CAKE

1½ cups butter
8 ounces cream cheese
6 eggs
3 cups sugar
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter, cream cheese, and sugar. Add 2 eggs and 1 cup flour. Mix well. Repeat two times. Add vanilla last and beat well.

Put in well-greased bundt pan or 2 loaf pans. Put in cold oven. Bake at 300 degrees for 1½ hours or less for loaf pans.

VEGETABLE PIZZA

Chop ¼ cup each of cauliflower, broccoli, celery, carrots, tomatoes, mushrooms, if you like, and ¼ cup onions or any vegetables your family may like. Spray jelly roll pan with spray-on vegetable oil or lard. Spread out and pinch together two cans of crescent rolls. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-15 minutes. Cool. Beat and spread on baked crust, ½ cup mayonnaise, 16 ounces cream cheese, and 1 package of ranch dressing. Top with vegetables and sprinkle 2 cups of shredded cheddar or swiss cheese or any other kind you like. Refrigerate 1 day before serving.

This is a light meal in itself. We enjoy it! We live on a dairy farm I have two brothers and two sisters. I really enjoy baking and cooking or trying new recipes. This pizza is handy to take on picnics because it travels well

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder

Mix well and spread on the bottom and halfway up the sides of a 9-inch by 13-inch bake pan. Chill for 10 minutes.

Filling:

1 pound cream cheese
1 cup sugar
3 egg yolks
1 whole egg
3 cups milk
4 tablespoons flour (heaped)
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Beat cream cheese and sugar. Add yolks one at a time, then remaining ingredients. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Put in pan and sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake at 350 degrees 45-55 minutes. May be served with your favorite topping.

I was born and raised on the family farm I was graduated from high school and stayed with Dad on the farm and milked cows, and did his fieldwork and bookkeeping. I married Robert Ackerman and we have two boys Brian, 16, was with me in the field raking hay when he was only 7 weeks old Gary, 13, was in the barn at four weeks old The little red wagon came in very handy for nap time in the barn during those long 2½ hours and, by the time Gary was 3, he knew every tool Pappy had in the tool box

It was alot of hard work, but well worth it After 13 years working with Dad, he became ill and was forced to sell the farm As for the boys, they have my in-laws' farm that they can go to and help out As we all know, there is just never enough hands on a farm.

SCALLOPED POTATOES

4 cups thinly sliced, pared potatoes
1 medium onion, sliced thin
Salt and pepper to taste
1½ teaspoons parsley
1 cup grated cheddar cheese
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups hot milk
1 cup ham, finely cubed
3 tablespoons butter

In buttered 9-inch by 13-inch baking dish, layer half of the sliced potatoes, half of the sliced onions, and half of the salt, pepper, parsley, cheese, ham, and 1½ tablespoons of flour. Repeat. Dot with butter and pour hot milk all over the potatoes. (If milk is not hot, the baking dish will crack.) Bake in 400 degrees oven for 25-35 minutes until potatoes are soft and bubbly on top. Serves 4-6.

This is my mother's recipe, and it has received numerous compliments. Although we do not live on a farm, I enjoy working with animals We have four dogs, a rabbit, and pheasants I also enjoy working in the garden and growing herbs and house plants Next year, I will be a senior in high school, and I plant to become a veterinarian

HEARTY HAMBURGER SOUP

2 tablespoons butter
1 pound ground beef
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup diced potatoes
½ cup chopped celery
1½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
2 cups tomato juice
4 cups milk
⅓ cup flour

Melt butter in saucepan. Brown meat, add onion, and cook until transparent. Stir in remaining ingredients except flour and milk. Cover and cook over low heat until vegetables are tender. Combine flour with one cup of the milk and stir into soup mixture. Bring to boil, then add remaining milk, and heat, stirring frequently. Do not boil after adding last of milk.

Fisher Honey Stiks Become Marketing Sensation

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — You're looking for a snack. Something sweet, but not heavy or filling. Something tasty. Something nutritious. Something reasonably priced. Are you asking too much? Does a snack like this really exist?

Yes, says Wade Fisher of Lewistown. But for now, demand is exceeding supply and Fisher is doing all he can to keep his customers stocked.

Wade Fisher, his father Dyson, and brother Scott, are owners and operators of the Fisher Honey Company in the Mifflin County Industrial Plaza, Lewistown. Together they process and package a line of bottled liquid honey for stores and bakeries. But Wade's latest passion is the honey stick — that reasonable priced, sweet stick of snacking satisfaction.

Fisher's Famous Honey Stiks are drinking straw-sized plastic tubes filled with 99% pure honey. With both ends heat-sealed, they're ready for you to grab and go! Pop open an end enjoy. No scizzors needed nor excess packaging to deal with. There's only one problem. You have to choose a flavor!

"Raspberry, blueberry, cherry, and watermelon are fast movers. Licorice was a surprise. They (customers) wiped us out! We're working on Pina Colada, adding a new flavor each month," says Fisher of his already 26 flavors, including the natural honey flavor. Fisher says they're working in their test kitchen all the time, experimenting with natural and artificial flavorings, testing the market. Each stick weighs five grams and sells for 10-15 cents.

It would take more than a machine to cap Wade's excitement about this new snack. He first learned of honey sticks from an Oregon man who began packing and selling this snack eight years ago — a business that keeps growing each year. Through phone conversations, Wade learned that the man preferred not to expand his business into the East Coast and that he had a patent on his machine and manufacturing process. The Fisher Honey Company needed to design their own.

The machine they use now, a prototype, was designed by an inventor in Canada. It processes about 15,000 to 20,000 honey stick tubes a day. Fisher has two different companies working on their next machine or machines, one he hopes will "crank" out that many in just hours. A patent is pending.

For funding, Fisher Honey Company relied on 75% of their own financing, and turned to Robert Postal of the Mifflin County Industrial Development Corporation for the rest. The Occupational Vocational Rehabilitation office helped place workers. And until their new machines arrive, the Fishers spend their time creating new flavor sensations and filling orders — orders that keep coming in daily.

"We stock 10 to 15 stores in the Lewistown area and they include convenience stores, a wallpaper shop, a computer store, gas stations, and places you wouldn't expect to find snacks sold," Wade says. William Spickler works at designing display packages and handles marketing and sales.

The Fisher Honey Company is supplied with honey from a reliable source — the Fisher Bee Farm, a third generation family business that involves moving 4,000 colonies of honey bees from Florida to Maine for pollinating crops such as citrus fruits, cherries, apples, blueberries, and cranberries. Wade's grandfather, Merle Fisher, began the Fisher Bee Farm in 1937 with two hives. The Fisher Honey Company purchases additional honey for their liquid honey processing and packaging operation.

But no matter what kind of honey it is, Wade says honey has an indefinite shelf life, although it will crystalize. When this happens, simply warm it up in warm water to liquify it again. But, please! Don't heat the honey sticks in the microwave — they'll explode!

Hopefully Fisher's Famous Honey Stiks will be coming soon to a store near you where you can taste test for yourself. Honey may have a long-shelf life, but once you taste honey sticks, they'll definitely have a short-life span!

For more information, call the Fisher Honey Company at (717) 242-4373.

VELVEETA CHEESE BALL

½ box Velveeta cheese (1½ pounds)
Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon onion flakes or onion salt
1 tablespoon dried parsley
1 tablespoon seasoned salt
1 tablespoon liquid smoke (optional)
1 cup bacon bits
¼ cup ground nuts (optional)

Have cheese at room temperature so it is easier to mix. Mix together everything but nuts and form into a ball. Roll in nuts and sprinkle with additional parsley, if desired. Serve with crackers.

We all like this recipe when we have a family gathering. I enjoy cooking and love to try out new recipes. We are married less than a year, and it's a joy to be able to cook meals for my husband and me.

Mrs. Allen Zimmerman

EGG CUSTARD

8 well-beaten eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons vanilla
8 cups warm milk

Beat well. Pumpkin pie spice may be added if desired. Pour in bakeware cups, glasses, or other containers, and set in casseroles or stainless pans with hot water to bake. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes or until done. (Bake first 10 minutes at 425 degrees.)

Hi! My name is Esther Stoltzfus. I'm age 10. I have five sisters. Their names are Naomi, 9, Mary, 8, Annie, 6, Rachel, 4, Elam, 2, and Mattie, 7 weeks. We live on a farm. I help with the milking, chores, etc. I also help my mother bake, cook, do dishes, etc. I do the wash Monday and Friday if it's nice.

My grandfather and grandmother live in the other end of the house. My grandfather is on the wheelchair. He makes rugs and is very busy. We help him sometimes.

I hope to see many new recipes in the Lancaster Farming.

ECLAIR CAKE

1 pound graham crackers
2 small packages instant vanilla pudding
3½ cups milk (scalded and cooled)
9 ounces whipped cream topping

Place graham crackers in 9-inch by 13-inch baking pan. Mix pudding with milk. Beat at medium speed for two minutes. Blend in whipped topping. Pour half of mixture over graham crackers, then place second layer of crackers over pudding. Pour remaining pudding mixture over this. Cover with another layer of graham crackers. Refrigerate two hours.

Frosting:
5 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1½ tablespoons cocoa
3 tablespoons milk

My name is Salomie Esh. I'm 13 years old. My parents are Eli B. and Elizabeth Esh. I have three brothers, Daniel, 14, Amos, 11, Jacob, 4, and two sisters, Mary, 8, and Fannie, 12 weeks. I'm in the 8th grade, when school starts. I like to look over the recipes.

DIRT

8 ounces cream cheese
3 cups chocolate milk
2 packages instant chocolate pudding
8 ounces whipped cream topping
1 pound Oreo cookies

Pulverize Oreos in a blender so that crumbs resemble coffee grounds. Set aside. Mix chocolate milk and pudding mix. Allow to thicken. Prepare cream cheese with the mixer until smooth and fluffy. Combine with pudding mixture. Blend in whipped cream topping. This is the "glop." In an 8- or 9-inch plastic flower pot, put a layer of crumbs, a layer of "glop," and repeat three times, ending with crumbs. The flower pot may not hold all of the mixture. Refrigerate. Serve with artificial flowers.

SPICE CAKE
(12 to 16 servings)

2 cups sugar
1 cup butter, softened
4 eggs, beaten
3 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 cup buttermilk

Frosting:
½ cup shortening
½ cup butter, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
4 cups confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons milk

In a mixing bowl, cream sugar and butter. Add eggs; beat well. Combine dry ingredients; add to creamed mixture alternately with buttermilk. Mix well. Pour into a greased and floured 13-inch by 9-inch by 2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes or until the cake tests done. Cool.

For frosting, cream shortening and butter in a mixing bowl. Add vanilla. Gradually beat in sugar. Add milk; beat until light and fluffy. Frost cake.

We live on a dairy farm and have seven boys. Our oldest son works for someone else on a dairy farm and the rest help with the farming and gardening at home. We enjoy lots of dairy products.

CHEESE BALL

16 ounces cream cheese
1 can Spam, grated
4 ounces sharp cheese, grated
4 ounces mozzarella cheese, grated
1 small onion
2 teaspoons green pepper
Salt and pepper to taste
Several drops Worcestershire sauce

Blend onion and green pepper in blender until fine. Work in remaining ingredients like pie dough. Form into a ball and refrigerate.

This recipe is something good for picnics or special gatherings. It can be served with nearly any snack.

Our family of five lives on a 40-cow dairy farm. We also raise our bull calves and approximately 300 geese and 1,000 capons to sell over the holidays. We enjoy life on the farm, working close with God's creation. We sure do enjoy the recipes everyone shares. In fact, when I was choosing a recipe to put in here, I realized that many of our best recipes are newspaper clippings from the Lancaster Farming.

STRAWBERRY PIZZA

¾ cup sugar
¾ cup confectioners' sugar
¾ cup butter
¾ cup vegetable oil
1 egg
3¼ cups flour
¾ teaspoon cream of tartar
¾ teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon vanilla

Mix together in order given, mixing well after each addition. Spread batter evenly on a 12-inch pizza pan. Bake at 350 degrees until done, about 30 minutes. Cool thoroughly.

Filling:
8 ounces cream cheese
½ cup powdered sugar
½ cup whipped sweet cream

Mix cheese and sugar. Fold in whipped cream, spread on cooled crust.

Jam:
1 quart water
¾ cup (slightly rounded) clear gelatin
1 cup sugar
2 quarts fruit

Mix everything together and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Let cool. Add 2 quarts fruit when cool. Then spread on top of cream cheese filling. (This may be too much jam. If you don't want to use it all for one pizza, save it for later use.)

This is a favorite recipe in strawberry season. Since we have a lot of strawberries, we make this pretty often.

SUGAR CAKES

2 cups sugar
1 cup shortening
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 teaspoon baking soda
3 teaspoons baking powder
3 eggs
4½ cups flour, sifted
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine all ingredients. Beat until smooth. Drop by tablespoon on cookie sheet. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. If you don't have sour milk, make thick milk by adding 1 tablespoon vinegar to 1 cup whole milk and let set for a few minutes.

This recipe was given to my mother by an old friend. When I married and had my children, I, of course, made this many times. It's one of the best sugar cake recipes I've tried.

CARAMEL PUDDING

1½ cups brown sugar
4 tablespoons butter
¼ cup water
¼ teaspoon baking soda
5½ cups milk
2 eggs
6 tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter and brown sugar; brown slightly. Combine water and baking soda and add to butter and brown sugar. Add milk and heat. Make a paste of beaten eggs, cornstarch, and ½ cup milk. Stir into hot milk mixture. Cook until thick. Add vanilla.

Eric and I live on a 28-acre farm. We have a small broiler house and rent 200 acres of pasture for beef cows and calves. We have four daughters, Heather, 12; Joelle, 10, Sara, 6; and Kelly, 4.

RHUBARB COFFEE CAKE

1½ cups packed brown sugar
½ cup shortening
1 egg
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
1½ cups chopped rhubarb

Topping:
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup packed brown sugar
½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon ground cinnamon

In a mixing bowl, cream sugar and shortening. Add egg. Combine flour, baking soda, and salt. Add alternately with the sour cream to the creamed mixture. Fold in the rhubarb. Spread in a greased 13-inch by 9-inch baking pan. Combine all topping ingredients and sprinkle over butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes.

MARBLED BROWNIES

8-ounce package cream cheese
2¼ cups sugar
3 eggs
¼ cup water
½ cup butter
1½ ounces unsweetened chocolate
2 cups flour
½ cup sour cream
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chocolate chips

Combine softened cream cheese and ⅓ cup sugar. Mix well and add 1 egg. Set aside. In saucepan, combine water, butter, and chocolate. Bring to a boil; remove from heat. Add sugar (2 cups) and flour. Mix well. Blend in remaining eggs, sour cream, baking soda, and salt. Pour into greased jellyroll pan. Spoon cream cheese mixture over chocolate batter. Cut through batter with knife several times for marble effect. Sprinkle with chocolate chips. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

½ cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 cup grated cheese
½ cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
6 slices tomato

Mix beef, eggs, ketchup, milk, onion, and salt. Mix macaroni, mustard, green pepper, and mayonnaise mixture in 2-quart baking dish. Spread beef mixture on top, sprinkle with cheese, top with mixture of crumbs and butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 20 minutes. Place tomatoes on top and bake 10 minutes longer. Serves 6.

This is one of our favorite casseroles. We're not dairy farmers but we enjoy dairy products.

GOLDEN PARSLEY POTATO

1 pound cooked, sliced potatoes
1 cup of grated cheese (can substitute cheddar for color)
1 or 2 eggs
1 cup of cottage cheese
1 tablespoon of parsley flakes

Layer potatoes and cheese in a small casserole dish. Mix throughout or blend the remaining ingredients. Pour egg mixture over it. Top with additional parsley. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-30 minutes or until golden brown. Serves 4.

My name is Sarah Scanley. I am 14 and the oldest of six children.

Although we live on a vegetable farm, we use lots of dairy products.

LASAGNA

8 ounces lasagna noodles
3 cups mozzarella cheese

Cheese Mixture:
16 ounces cottage cheese
¼ cup parmesan cheese
2 eggs
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Salt and pepper

Meat Mixture:
1 pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
4 cups spaghetti sauce

Cook noodles to desired doneness. Brown meat and onion in saucepan; drain. Add remaining sauce ingredients. Cook until thoroughly heated. In a small bowl, combine cheese mixture. Stir until well blended.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Put one cup sauce in the bottom of an ungreased 9-inch by 13-inch bake dish. Layer ⅓ of the noodles, ⅓ of the remaining sauce mixture, ½ cheese mixture, and ⅓ of the mozzarella cheese. Repeat layers, ending with the noodles, sauce, and last, the mozzarella cheese. Bake for 30-35 minutes. Let stand 10-15 minutes before serving.

If using uncooked noodles, prepare the same way but let it sit in the refrigerator for 8-24 hours before baking, covered.

STREUSEL NUT COFFEE CAKE

3 cups flour
1½ teaspoon baking powder
1½ teaspoon baking soda
1½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup butter
1 cup sour milk (add 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice to 1 cup sweet milk; let set a few minutes)
2 teaspoons vanilla

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and vanilla. Add sour milk and mix, then add dry ingredients and mix together.

Streusel Mix:
1 cup brown sugar
⅓ cup flour
1 cup chopped nuts
4 tablespoons butter, softened
3 teaspoons cinnamon

Mix these ingredients together.

Spread half of the cake batter in a greased and floured 9-inch by 13-inch bake pan. Sprinkle half the of the streusel topping over the batter. Spread the rest of the cake batter over the topping, then sprinkle the rest of the streusel topping over the top. Bake in a 350-degree oven 30 minutes or until done.

Dairy Recipe Extravaganza

PUDDING MIX

6 cups flour
3 cups cornstarch or clear gelatin (not instant)
9 cups sugar
2 tablespoons salt

Mix well and store in large air-tight container. Makes 18 cups of mix. To use it requires using dairy products.

To make vanilla pudding, heat 3 cups milk in a 2-quart saucepan. Meanwhile, in a bowl make a paste of ¾ -cup mix, 2 beaten eggs, and ½ cup milk; use mixer if necessary.

When milk is almost boiling, stir paste slowly into milk. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add 2 tablespoons butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cover with plastic to avoid a "skin."

To make chocolate pudding, add 5 tablespoons cocoa to paste. To make butterscotch, melt 2 tablespoons butter and ½ cup brown sugar in a heavy saucepan. Stir and heat until almost scorching. Add to heated milk and finish though making vanilla flavored.

For extra creamy pudding, after the pudding is cold, whip with mixer and fold some whipped cream, or whipped cream topping into pudding.

I live on a dairy farm with my parents John and Frances, and brothers and sisters — Leon, 21; me, 19; Linda, 17; Daniel, 13; and Karen, 10. We milk our 50 cows three times a day. Leon raises bull calves for steers. Right now he has 20. We raise our heifers for replacements.

We also raise broilers on contract for Pennfield. We usually have approximately 30,000 birds and keep them between six and seven weeks.

Since Mom works outside a lot, I do most of the cooking and baking. I don't mind because cooking and baking are some of my favorite hobbies. I love to look at recipes and plan meals.

We babysit three children ... They are almost like brothers and sisters to us.

CRUNCHY-TOP HAM AND POTATO CASSEROLE

2 pounds frozen hash browns, thawed
1 can cream of chicken soup, undiluted
½ cup butter, melted
2 cups sour cream
2 cups cooked, smoked ham, diced
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup green onion, chopped
1½ cups shredded cheddar cheese

Topping:
2 cups corn flakes, crushed
¼ cup butter, melted

Combine all casserole ingredients. Mix well. Place in a lightly greased 9x13-inch baking dish. Combine topping ingredients and sprinkle over casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Serves 10.

This casserole was a hit when I served it at our homemaker's meeting.

My husband Randy and our three children, Malissa, 17; Chris, 15; Dan, 10; and I live on a small farm in Jefferson County. We raise beef cattle and a big garden in the summer.

We have subscribed to Lancaster Farming for quite a few years and thoroughly enjoy the B Section, especially the recipes in the June issues.

CHERRY STREUSEL COFFEE CAKE

Cake:
21 ounces cherry filling
1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Topping:
2 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup flour
⅓ cup sugar

To make the cake, cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs; beat well. Combine flour, baking powder and salt; add gradually to creamed mixture. Beat until light. Spread three-fourths of the batter into a greased 9-inch by 13-inch pan. Spread pie filling over batter; then spread remaining batter over top of pie filling, leveling with a knife.

To make the topping, combine the butter, flour and sugar and blend well.

Sprinkle the topping over the cake and bake for 45 minutes at 375 degrees. Cool in the pan and cut into squares. Can serve warm with ice cream.

SCALLOPED CABBAGE

5 to 6 cups shredded cabbage
2 medium onions, finely chopped
1 medium green pepper
¼ cup butter
2 cups shredded Velveeta cheese
2 cups crushed sour cream and chive croutons
1 cup milk or light cream

In a large saucepan, cook cabbage in boiling salted water for 5 minutes, drain. In smaller saucepan, saute onions and green peppers in butter until tender. Combine cabbage, onion, pepper mixture, cheese, and 1½ cups croutons.

Spoon into 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Pour milk or cream over all (do not stir). Sprinkle with remaining croutons. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 mintues or until bubbly. Serves 6 to 8.

This is a fairly new recipe for me and, after making it, I am completely sold. It is very good and will make a good dish that is healthful for all.

We do not live on a farm, but do raise our own beef and pigs on our three acres of ground.

POTATO CHEESE PIE

Crust:
2½ cups mashed potatoes
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 egg
2 tablespoons melted butter
Dash salt and pepper

Filling:
2 eggs
1 cup cream
¾ cup grated cheese
Dash salt and pepper

Mix the crust ingredients thoroughly and pat into large greased pie plate. Beat eggs, stir in cream and seasonings. Pour mixture into potato crust and sprinkle top with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean.

This uses leftover mashed potatoes and is fast, easy and delicious. I often make leftover mashed potatoes with this recipe in mind.

My husband Roy and I, and Jessica, 3, and Anne, 2, live in Berks County and have a woodworking shop that is very busy.

We also raise Jersey heifers and Dalmatian puppies. We have four horses, a bunch of cats, and a flock of chickens. About three dozen eggs are ready to hatch for our next set of laying hens.

We have a big garden this year, which includes white egg plants that I once had and thought were so good!

FINNISH PANCAKES

4 to 6 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup flour
1 quart milk
¼ cup butter

Brown butter and pour into 9x13-inch cake pan. Put remaining ingredients in blender and pour into pan. Do not stir when in pan. Bake at 425 degrees for 30 minutes or until done. Eat with syrup or honey while pancakes are still hot.

We have a family of one girl and four boys with our youngest being 9 months.

OLD-FASHIONED CRUMB CAKE

½ cup butter
1¼ cups sugar
4 eggs
1½ cups milk
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoons almond flavoring

Cream butter and sugar; beat until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beat well after each addition. Add vanilla and almond flavorings. Sift dry ingredients and add to butter mixture alternately with milk. Pour into well-greased 9x13x2-inch pan. Bake 25 minutes.

Streusel:
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup butter
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ tablespoons cinnamon

Blend with pastry blender. After cake has baked 25 minutes, put crumbs on top. Return to oven and bake another 20 to 30 minutes until cake tests done.

Best Chicken Corn Soup — Ever

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Ban the mother-in-law jokes in Arlene Giberson's presence. No demeaning comments about mother-in-laws allowed. Arlene owes a lot to her mother-in-law (the former Frances Giberson).

It was her mother-in-law that enabled Arlene to win the top prize of $300 for the best chicken corn soup ever.

"I spent a lot of time learning to cook from my mother-in-law so that I could make food the way my husband liked it," Arlene said.

Her soup is also the way the panel of five judges likes chicken corn soup. Arlene's entry placed first during the Pennfield Farms Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off held June 17 at The Artworks in Ephrata.

"I knew she'd win," said her husband Robert. "She's a great cook — even better than my mother at many of the things she makes."

As if that comment wasn't the ultimate praise, Robert said that you can take the same ingredients and put them in front of two cooks and my wife's (soup) will always taste the best.

"That's because she knows the exact moment when it's done," he said.

During competition, after Arlene had removed her soup from the stove, a photographer asked her to put the soup back on the burner and bring it to a boil so that he could get a picture of the soup with steam rising from it.

Arlene refused. "It's finished. If I put it back on the stove, it will be overcooked and the chicken will taste stringy," she said.

Although this was the first cooking competition she entered, it wasn't the first time that she heard raves about her soup.

She said that every fall, the family hosts a crowd in their backyard at their Willow Street home. "My soup seems to be a major draw. Friends and neighbors often tell me that it's the best they've eaten."

Since Arlene is primarily a dump and taste cook, she found it a bit difficult to write down exact measurements for the soup, but after a few experimentations she was able to define the measurements for a written recipe that passed preliminary scrutiny and won her a spot in the finalists circle.

The next hurdle was to locate the right corn since this is not corn season for the county and Arlene's home-frozen corn supply was depleted. Her husband scouted the supermarkets, purchased some that had no taste, and discarded it. He finally located some fresh Silver Queen corn at a market.

"I bit some right off the cob before cooking it, and I told my wife this is a winner," Robert said.

He helped his wife cut off the corn and blanch it immediately. "The sooner you get corn blanched, the better it tastes; otherwise, the sugar in the corn turns to starch," he said.

The couple credit the fresh corn to the soup's appeal.

"Many people ask me if I had put sugar in my soup because it tasted sweet, but I did not. I made it exactly like the recipe I submitted," Arlene said.

The judges said the corn taste was wonderful. There were lots of corn and chicken chunks in just the right size in the soup, and the flavor of every ingredient was tops.

Second-place award and $150 went to Darlene Scott of Chambersburg. She, too, said that "fresh corn is the secret."

As she cut corn off the cob during the competition, Darlene talked about her recipe.

"I spent a small fortunate for the corn and it is not the best. Generally I use white corn, but I could only find yellow in my area so this won't taste as good as I usually make," Darlene said.

Another secret for prize-winning soup, Darlene said, is to cook it low and slow.

Darlene received her introduction to cooking in 4-H. Always a math whiz, Darlene planned to be a math teacher until her senior year in high school when she needed to take a home economics class.

"That cured me of math," said Darlene, who found out cooking and sewing were much more fun.

Since then, cooking and sewing have been part of several jobs that she has held. Now, she is an unit leader for Avon and has 35 people underneath her.

Her three children always raved about her soup and inspired her to enter the contest.

Third prize went to Wayne Frampton of Quarryville. He has been cooking for 25 years.

"The first bread that I made, you could throw it at the wall and hit it with a bat," Wayne said. But he persevered and became so good that he now has a sandwich and soup stand at Meadowbrook Market in Leola.

"People always tell me that I have the best-tasting chicken corn soup," Wayne said. That includes his wife Sandra, a daughter, and loyal customers at his Meadowbrook Market stand.

He needed to adapt his recipe a bit to make a smaller batch for competition. Generally he makes the broth one day and stores it in the refrigerator so that he can skim off the fat before adding other ingredients. But, on competition day, Wayne speeded up the process to make it a one-day affair.

Six semi-finalists for the event were chosen from more than 30 mail-in entries.

Pennfield Farms sponsored the cook-off as part of the Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival, which is a celebration of food throughout the Pennsylvania Dutch county from June 13 to 18.

Judges for the event included Pat Johnson, food writer for Lancaster Newspaper; George Weigel, food writer for Harrisburg Patriot News; Chuck Eichmann, chef for Donecker's Restaurant; Lori Burkholder, WGAL-TV Live co-host; and Betty Groff, owner of Groff's Farm Restaurant.

For those who are eager to try these mouth-watering soups, here are the recipes of the top three placings.

ARLENE GIBERSON
First Prize

3 pounds chicken pieces
3 quarts water
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
7 cups white corn, fresh or frozen
1 tablespoon instant bouillon, or to taste
2 tablespoons butter
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped

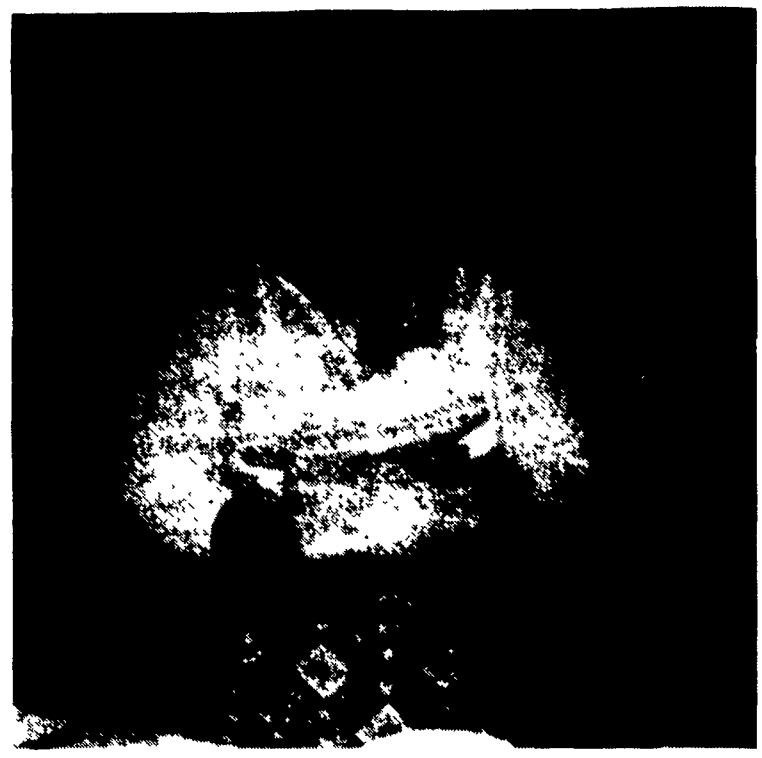
Rivels:
½ cup flour
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons water

Cook chicken in water and salt until tender. Remove chicken from broth, cool, and remove from bones.

Add corn, bouillon, and pepper to hot broth, return to boil and cook for 10 minutes.

Mix flour, egg, and water.

Drop rivel mixture by ¼ teaspoonfuls into boiling soup; continue cooking 5 minutes. Add chopped eggs, parsley, butter, and chicken. Do not cook again as broth is hot enough to heat the chicken. Yields 8 — 1½ cup servings. (Turn to Page B21)



Fresh corn and a rich chicken stock results in a first-prize placing and $300 for Arlene Giberson.

"This is my first contest. I'm scared to death, but it's a lot of fun," Wayne Frampton of Quarryville said. Wayne placed third and won $75.

Mifflin Celebrates With Dairy Princess Contest

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — It was an evening to celebrate — Mifflin County's first dairy princess contest and pageant in several years.

And after the introductions, skits, questions, farewell remarks, and judge's deliberation, Erin Goss of Lewistown stepped forward to accept the 1994-1995 Mifflin County Dairy Princess crown and sash from last year's princess Cathy Gro of McVeytown.

Held at the Belleville Mennonite School, pageant contestants Crystal King, Erin Goss, and Cindy Yoder were escorted to center stage by their fathers.

1994 Dairy Princess Committee chairperson Cheryl Glick welcomed the crowd and introduced the rest of her committee — secretary/treasurer Jen Stuck, ordering chairperson Sandy King, booking chairperson Deb Rheam, Marlene Smoker, Judy Goss, Caryn Peachey, and Central Area Coordinator Wanda Yoder.

Terry Dillman, editor of the County Observer, emcee'd the event and introduced the judges: Dieter Kreig from Lancaster County, editor and publisher of Farmshine; Blair County dairy farmer Ray Diebold; and Somerset countian Dorthy Naugle of Allied Milk Products.

Dillman also introduced each contestant.

Erin Goss, a 16-year-old junior at Indian Valley High School, is the daughter of Larry and Judy Goss of Goss Farms near Lewistown, a 600-acre family partnership with 180 milking Holsteins. Erin owns four dairy animals and is an active member of 4-H, the National Honor Society, German Club, her church youth group and handbell choir. She plans to attend college to study occupational therapy.

Cindy Yoder, 16, is the daughter of Lee and Joanne Yoder of McVeytown. She is a sophomore at Lewistown Area High School and is an active member of 4-H, the state Holstein Association, dairy judging team and her church youth group. Cindy owns six dairy animals and helps with the milking on their rented 150-acre Ridge Point Farm. The Yoder's milk a 57-cow herd. Cindy likes sports, outdoor work, and showing animals.

Crystal King is the daughter of Delmar and Sandy King of Belleville. She graduated from the Indian Valley High School in 1993 and is a secretary for the True Colors Body Shop in Lewistown. Crystal enjoyed being invovled with 4-H and still owns two dairy animals. In high school, Crystal played basketball, softball, and was a member of the IVHS Varsity Club. In her spare time, Crystal likes swimming, walking, basketball, and spending time with her family and friends.

In her farewell remarks, Mifflin County's 1993-1994 Dairy Princess Cathy Gro said she decided to be a dairy princess to build up her self confidence and to overcome shyness. She also wanted to work with children. She ran uncontested last year, but had help from several dairy maids. Cathy, the daughter of Dale and Susan Gro of McVeytown, was escorted by Jeremy Fisher. She thanked the committee, her parents, and her sister for their support. She encouraged the new dairy princess to take her time, have fun, and to make all of the dairy farmers in Mifflin County proud.

State Dairy Princess Jennifer Grimes spoke about her growing-up experiences on a dairy farm and impressions of farm life.

Those helping Erin Goss as Dairy Princess in the coming year will be dairy maids Megan Goss, April Goss, Joanna Pecht, Michelle Yoder, and dairy Misses Natalie Byler, Candace Glick, and Laura Peachey.

Cheryl Glick ended the evening with a milk toast. Dave Stuck video taped the event, Joyce Yoder planned the refreshments, and Deb Rheam posed as "The Cow" with Caryn Peachey as her udder friend. Theodora L. Roth of Triangle Marketing in Lewistown provided the door prize. Refreshments followed.

At its first pageant in several years, Erin Goss of Lewistown was crowned Mifflin County's 1994-1995 Dairy Princess at left is alternate Crystal King of Belleville, and at right is Cindy Yoder of McVeytown.

WAYNE FRAMPTON'S CHICKEN CORN SOUP
Third Prize

2½ pounds chicken legs and thighs
32 ounces white corn
¼ teaspoon white pepper
½ tablespoon gound peppercorn
1 medium onion, diced
1 small carrot, diced
1 stalk celery, diced
1 medium egg, hardboiled, diced

In pressure cooker, place chicken parts covered with water. Cook on high until pressure cooker starts to rock. Reduce heat to maintain a slow rock for 15 minutes. Remove from heat. Allow pressure to drop on its own accord. Remove chicken, discard skin and bones. Cut or break chicken into bite-size pieces. Put aside.

In a 5-6-quart pot, boil 3 quarts water. When water comes to a boil, add soup base, onions, carrots, celery, white pepper, and ground peppercorn. Cook until ingredients are tender, approximately 30 minutes.

Add corn, continue to simmer until the corn is tender. Add chicken, hardboiled egg, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer uncovered for 5 minutes then serve.

Yields: 8 servings.

DARLENE SCOTT'S CHICKEN CORN SOUP
Second Prize

4 pounds chicken pieces
3 quarts water
¼ onion, chopped
1½ teaspoon salt
¼ pound fine egg noodles or rivels
1 carrot, grated
½ cup chopped celery
8 ears fresh corn or 1 quart frozen
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook chicken in water until tender on medium low heat (approximately 1½ hours). Add salt and continue to cook another 30 minutes. Remove chicken. Strain broth. Take meat from bones. Chop fine, add to broth. Cut corn from cob or add frozen or canned corn. Add onion, celery, carrot, and pepper to soup.

Cook on medium low heat for 45 minutes to 1 hour. Bring soup to a boil and add noodles. Continue to cook another 10 to 15 minutes on medium heat, stirring occasionally.

Rivels:
1 cup flour
1 egg
¼ cup milk

Rub together flour, egg, and milk. Drop into boiling soup, stirring constantly.

Tastes even better the following day. Serves 6.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This year we'll be glad to see the end of our strawberry crop as it has kept us too busy. Last year I picked 175 quarts by myself and then ended with a knee problem. So, this year Allen has helped me and we've been able to sell quite a few.

I've actually followed advice from friends and I did not plant more than half of the amount of sugar peas that I usually do. It is a pleasure not to bend over all morning in the garden picking peas. Then too, I will be able to freeze what I get and not bother to telephone and sell them to my neighbors in the nearby building development.

While I'm outside, and even in the house, I hear so many bird songs. We are surrounded by meadow and woods, which seem to attract lots of birds. A pair of wrens have built a nest in our bluebird box and I hear singing all day long. There are many brazen blue jays that even sit on the porch railing. Others that I can identify are house finch, cat birds, and song sparrows.

The hill behind our house was planted with wildflowers by a landscaper. The first year we had so many poppies. I'd often seen red and orange poppies but we also had white, yellow and pink ones. Then my husband decided he did not like the unkempt look and so he started to mow most of the hill when he did the lawn. But, I'm glad that part of it is too steep for the mower and so this year we have lots of wild flax with their bright blue flowers. Somehow other flowers such as coreopsis, gaillardia, sweet Williams, and shasta daisies are also blooming there. Where they came from is a mystery as this is the first year that they bloomed and I did not plant them — maybe the birds did.

CLASSIC & CONTEMPORARY

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 9

The Lancaster Society of Farm Women Group 9, met at the home of Mrs. Pat Hass, Douglasville. Ways and Means projects were discussed, and dates for future programs were explained. The June meeting will be held at the County Courthouse for a tour of the 911 Center. Sabine Hosp, an exchange student, told about her life in Germany.

Lancaster Society 8

Lancaster Society of Farm Women No. 8 met on June 8 at the Country Table Restaurant for lunch. Later, members rode to the Penn State Experimental Farm and were given a tour by John Yocum, Head of the Research Station. He explained the various experimental plantings on the 110 acre farm which was most informative. After the wagon ride on the farm, Sandy Yocum invited the members into her home and showed her collection of 350 dolls. The July 13 meeting is tentatively scheduled to be at the home of Gladys Ney in Mount Joy.

Lancaster Society 20

On June 2, Lancaster Farm Women Society #20 met at the home of Vivian Hess with Velma Goss as co-hostess. Following refreshments, the guest speaker for the program, Quarryville Police Chief Wassmer, spoke on their work dealing with drugs, alcoholism, theft, etc.

For the Scripture, Vivian read from the Book of Proverbs, the Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison, followewd by the Salute to the Flag. For the Roll Call, each member responded by giving a safety tip. Since the last meeting the Sunshine Committee reported six cards had been sent, a fruit basket and a sympathy floral arrangement for a member, Jean Wood. The president gave a report on the Spring Rally, and before closiong the meeting Valeria Ferguson was presented with a gift in honor or her and John's 40th wedding anniversary. The July meeting will be held at the home of Verna Hess with Doris Worth as co-hostess.

York Society 26

York County Society 26 celebrated the groups 28th anniversary with a tour of Martin's Potato Chip Factory at Thomasville and a luncheon at Family Times Restaurant at York.

Nineteen members and one associate member attended. There are five charter members still in the group.

A bus trip to Lititz to tour a pretzel factory and a bus trip to Topiary Gardens is planned for June.

Berks Society 1

The June meeting of Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 1 was held at the Oley home of Ella Richard and was conducted by vice-president Evelyn Heacock. The 14 members present answered the roll call question, "Have you ever bid on an item at an acution?"

The special feature of the evening was an informative presentation by a Group 1 member, Jean Fox, who is administrator of the Henry Health Care Center of the Lutheran Home at Topton. Included in the presentation was an explanation of the various levels of nursing care in a nursing home, also the rights of residents in nursing homes.

The July meeting of Group 1 will be held on July 13, at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Ellen Snyder, Limekiln. It will be preceded by a doggie roast for members and their guests.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

In response to readers' questions, this column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past, many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a cooking column on page B 8.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — A. Nolt of New Holland would like to know the words to the complete poem that was recited in the 1920s when her father-in-law went to school. The poem contains these lines: The carpenter's house is falling down. The preacher's kids are the worse in town.... Since this request appeared, Theresa Litecky, Eastampton, N.J., and several others have written to say they remember parts of this poem and can hardly wait to see the complete poem. Any readers who remember the complete poem, please send it immediately.

QUESTION — Romaine B. Answell, Sumerdale, would like to know who manufactured the Webalco electric skillet.

QUESTION — A York County reader would like to know how to clean aluminum storm doors or enclosures that are becoming pitted.

QUESTION — A reader would like to know where you can send for a catalog featuring vinyl doll heads, arms, and legs. she wants to make her own dolls.

QUESTION — Charles E. Wright, Duncannon, purchased a 13-inch parlor stove made of iron with the following marks: On the front spark inside is written Gray Iron Casting Co., Mt. Joy, Pa. On the inside top door 75-11; on the poker 7517.The doors, drafts, etc., would like a full-sized stove. Is this company still in business?

QUESTION — A reader from Thorton writes that families of Canadian geese have taken residence in their pond. How can the geese be encouraged to leave the pond?

ANSWER — Marie Lorah, Box 299 R.D. 3, Tamaqua, Pa. 18252, asked where she could find water glasses with pictures of owls on them. Thanks to Lucy Higgins, Port Deposit, Md., who writes that she noticed several sets at Rakes' Floral Shop, 6 Barnes Corner Rd., Colora, Md. 21917 (410) 658-5590.

ANSWER — Beverly Budnick, Curehville, Md., wanted an explanation for the saying: A needle shall not pierce fabric on Acenstion Day. Thanks to Lydia Stoltzfus, Blain who writes that years ago there was almost always a thunderstorm on Ascension Day so the old saying goes that lightning strikes the needle of a person sewing.

ANSWER — Here are more suggestions for discouraging birds from building nests in hanging plants. Thanks to Mary Dengler, Middletown, Ohio; Frances Westfall, Spring Grove; Elva Livengood, Manheim, and several other anonymous readers for sending the following hints. Cover plant with nylon net; hang aluminum foil pie plates nearby; attach a small inflated balloon on a short string as the movement and noise discourage the bird from nesting in that location. Invert a glass or clear plastic drinking glass in the basket.

LEADERSHIP AT WORK

Lebanon Society 20

Lebanon Farm Women Group #20 met at the home of Charlene Ziegler to celebrate everybody's birthday party.

Sixteen members answered roll call to the question: Did you ever have a birthday party? One guest attended.

The trip committee suggested a trip to the Hershey Museum.

Fall rally will be at the Quality Inn, Leb. on Oct. 12.

A motion was made to give $50 to Cedar Haven.

The group signed a card for a former member Ellen Ream, who had a knee operation.

Plans were made for the summer picnic which will be held at the home of Sally Martin July 11.

Lancaster Society 26

Lancaster Farm Women Society #26 met on Thursday evening at the home of Edna Garber, with 15 members present. Janet Buchen shared devotional thoughts. Members responded to the roll call by sharing their favorite flower they like to plant.

Katherine Leatherman shared thoughts and scripture from Proverbs. She told us that looks alone don't make you beautiful and that every person over 40 is responsible for their looks because by that time their character is so etched into their faces and contributes to or detracts from our beauty.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were received. Members voted to give money to three persons in need.

The June meeting will be a Mystery Trip and the July 28th meeting will be an evening with husbands at the Dutch Apple Theater.

The Society's president announced that the State Farm Women are planning a trip to Branson, MO June 9-17, 1995.

Seven of our members attended the Spring Rally at the York Fair Grounds.

President Verna Hostetter shared this parting thought: Offering good advice may be great but it is not as great as offering a hand.

Berks Society 1

Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 1 met at the Oley home of Mrs. Agnes Noll for its May meeting. The business meeting was conducted by President Ruth Walters and was attended by 15 members.

The special feature of the May meeting of Group 1 was a celebration of the group's formation on May 11, 1940. The program committee prepared a very interesting program which included a brief history of the group and a list of all members throughout the years from its formation until the present time.

The June meeting will feature a safety program at the home of Mrs. Ella Richard in Oley.

You Ask

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted simple cleaning solutions to use, here are several sent in by Mary Jane Rienecker, York Springs, who writes that she received them the Penn State Extension. These are alternatives to using cleaners that contain poisonous or toxic chemicals.

• Use baking soda as a cleaner, deodorizer, fire extinguisher, and scouring powder

• Use boiling water as a drain cleaner.

• Use borax as a cleaner, disinfectant, laundry aid, water softener.

• Use Lemon as a cleaner, deodorizer, and stain remover.

• Use salt as a cleaner

• Use soap as a cleaner

• Use white vinegar as a cleaner, deodorizer, and grease cutter.

All Purpose Cleaners

1. Mix 1 teaspoon borax with 1 quart of warm water. Add a splash of lemon juice or vinegar to cut grease.
2. Mix 2 teaspoons borax and 1 teaspoon soap in 1 quart of water. Can be stored in a spray bottle.
3. Mix 3 tablespoons of washing soda per quart of warm water.

Air Fresheners

1. Place desired amount of baking soda in closed areas such as refrigerator and closets.
2. Put 2 to 4 tablespoons of baking soda or vinegar in desired location throughout rooms that need deodorizing.
3. Boil cinnamon, cloves or your favorite spice.
4. Burn matches or a candle.

Carpet Deodorizers

1. Mix 1 part borax to 2 parts cornmeal. Sprinkle on carpet and vacuum after 1 hour.
2. Sprinkle carpet with baking soda. Wait 15 minutes or longer and vacuum.

Disinfectant

1. Mix 1/4 cup borax in 1/2 gal. hot water.

Drain Cleaners

1. Prevention is the best method. Use a drain strainer. Do not pour grease down the drain.
2. For maintenance, pour about 1 gallon of boiling water down the drain weekly.
3. Use a plunger or metal snake (snakes may be available at rental stores).
4. Pour 1/4 cup baking soda and 1/2 cup vinegar down drain. Close drain tightly until fizzing stops. Flush with 1 gallon of boiling water.

Floor Cleaners

1. Wood or vinyl floors. Mix 1/4 cup oil soap with 1 gallon of warm water.
2. Use a mild detergent. Add a few drops of vinegar to help remove grease.

Metal Polishes

Brass and Bronze (unlacquered)

1. Mix equal amounts of salt and flour with a small amount of vinegar. Rub with a soft, damp cloth. Rinse and polish with a dry cloth.
2. Make a paste of lemon juice and salt and rub with a soft cloth; rinse with water and dry.
3. Use a slice of lemon sprinkled with baking soda. Rub brass with the lemon slice; rinse with water and dry.

Copper

1. Refer to numbers 1 and 1 for brass and bronze.
2. Apply catsup; wash off quickly.

Silver

1. Rub with a paste of baking soda and water.
2. Place a pièce of aluminum foil to cover the bottom of a pan. Add 2 to 3 inches of water, 1 teaspoon baking soda, and 1 teaspoon salt per quart of water and bring to a boil. Add silver pieces and boil 2 to 3 minutes. Make sure the water covers the silver pieces. Remove silver; rinse, dry, and buff with a soft cloth.

Oven Cleaners

1. Prevention. Put a sheet of aluminum foil on the oven floor. Be careful not to touch the heating element. Clean up spills as soon as they occur.
2. Mix 3 tablespoons of washing soda per quart of warm water. Spray on and wait 20 minutes. Scrub with a fine steel wool pad if necessary.
3. Mix thoroughly 2 teaspoons of borax, 2 teaspoon liquid soap and warm water. Put in a spray bottle. Spray it on and leave for 20 minutes. Scrub with a fine steel wool pad if needed.

Tile/Tub/Toilet Cleaner

1. Use soap and sponge, or a stiff brush and one of the following: baking soda, borax or salt.

Window and Glass Cleaners

1. Mix 1 part water to 1 part vinegar in a spray bottle. Wipe off with cleaning cloth. (Note: If unusual streaking occurs during the first time you use this solution, it is due to the wax that some chemical glass cleaners contain. Remove wax with a little rubbing alcohol and then clean with above solution).

Wood Polishes

1. Polish with a cloth dipped in olive or soybean oil.
2. Light polishing — use a damp cloth to clean most surfaces and dry immediately with a soft dry cloth.

FFA HAPPENINGS

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Cedar Crest FFA Chapter has been named the Pennsylvania state winner in the National FFA Organization's Commodity Marketing Activity.

The Commodity Marketing Activity is an integrated classroom activity that helps students gain a realistic commodity market experience. Teams of students are given a model farm with corn, soybeans, wheat, cattle and hogs. Team members decide when to buy and sell these products to achieve the greatest economic gain. Orders are called to a "broker" and the trade is recorded. Real prices and market conditions are experienced but no money is exchanged.

The specific objectives of the activity are to: (1) learn the decision-making process, (2) manage the risk of a commodity market, (3) practice various methods of marketing farm products, (4) understand various career opportunities in marketing, (5) use applied mathematics in marketing, (6) understand terms and strategies of various marketing methods, (7) to experience the mechanics of trading and (8) to have a "real marketing experience."

At the conclusion of the trading period, a test is administered to each of the teams. The best covers commodity marketing principals and practices used in the futures market. The teams' scores for both the trading activity and the test are combined and the state winner is then determined.

Each participating team receives a certificate and the winning team will receive a $100 or $300 scholarship based on the number of teams participating, scholarship moneys will be divided among team members and a plaque will be provided for the school.

The Commodity Marketing Activity is sponsored by the Stewart-Peterson Advisory Group and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

FFA Leadership for a growing planet

Herbs Bring Aroma Of Success

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Herbs — once used for everything from stomach ache remedies to air fresheners — have made a comeback. "Interest in herbs has increased rapidly in the past few years," says Keppy Arnoldsen, horticulture graduate student in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Last year Arnoldsen and Aimee Voisin, a senior majoring in horticulture, completed an independent study project growing 67 herbs in an ornamental plot at Penn State's Trial Gardens. Their demonstration garden provided information used to compile a Penn State publication entitled "Herbs for the Home Gardener." This 68-page publication has 58 colored illustrations and information on 32 herbs, including common and scientific names, plant characteristics, hardiness, size, soil preference, propagation, pests and disease, bloom time and color and uses for the herbs.

"Many commercial growers are finding it lucrative to sell herbs wholesale to garden centers and stores. There's also a large market in dried herbs for decorations, teas, cooking and other uses. You can make a career out of herbs," says Arnoldsen.

Voisin plants to do just that. "Herbs have such unusual textures, colors and scents. I got interested in them when I worked in a greenhouse after graduating from high school," she says. "I started buying books about herbs, and how I've decided to become a wholesaler and sell dried herb products.

"It's one thing to read about herbs in a book, and it's another to grow them," says Voisin. "We had some surprises in our independent study. Some plants turned out to be incredibly bushy and took up three times the space we thought they would. And I never realized that cilatro and coriander are really the same plant — one is the leaf and one is the seed."

"Herbs for the Home Gardener" is available for $8 from county cooperative extension offices or from the Publication Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

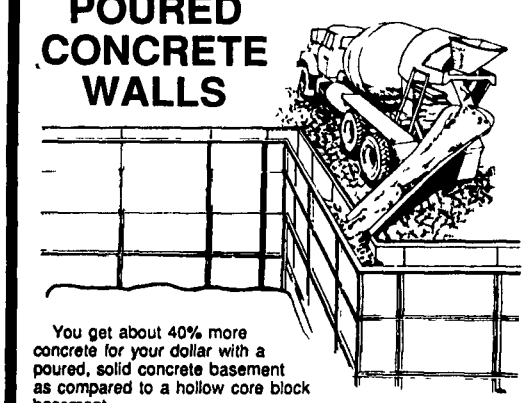
POURED SOLID CONCRETE STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST!

POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic .. there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks

Berks Holds All-Species Showmanship Clinic

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — On Saturday, April 30, 52 4-H'ers and 12 leaders participated in a showmanship clinic at the Kutztown Fairgrounds.

The showmanship clinic was a combined effort of the beef, sheep, swine, and dairy clubs in Berks County.

Teen leaders from each of the clubs took time out of their busy schedules to plan the event and share their showmanship skills with their fellow 4-H'ers. The event was sponsored by the Berks County 4-H Livestock and Dairy councils, the Kutztown Fair Association, and Clover Farms Dairy.

Younger 4-H'ers watched as an experienced teen leader showed the animals and gave hints on good showmanship skills. Then the younger 4-H'ers were given the opportunity to show the animals themselves.

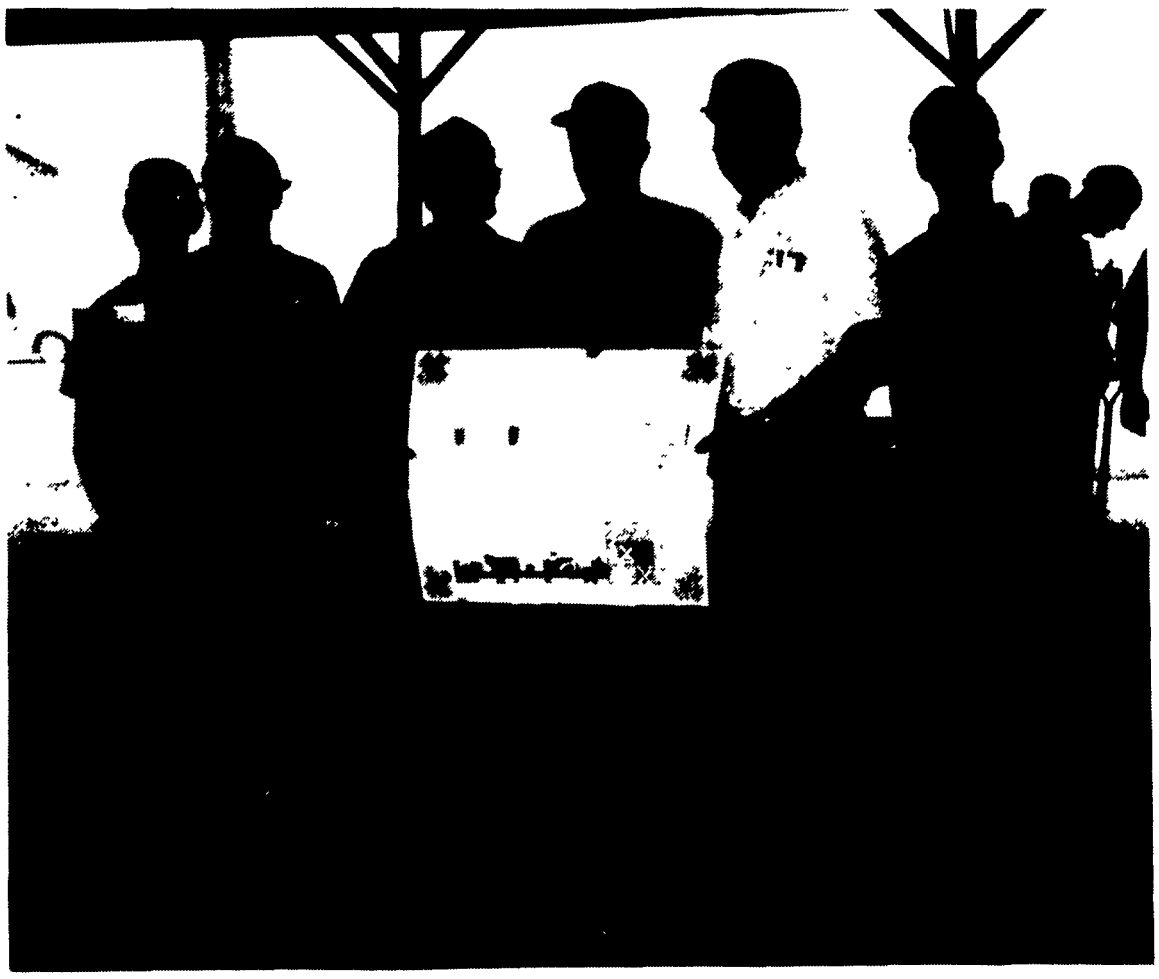
When watching Amanda Gauker, age eight of Fleetwood, take the lead of an 800-pound heifer, you could tell it was a bit scary, especially since she is used to showing 50 pound lambs. The teen leaders also compiled a handout for the 4-H'ers to take home, entitled "Showing All-Species".

Did you know that you should always brush your goats teeth before entering the show ring? Well, not really, but a goat judge will check the animals bite so the showman has to be prepared for that, according to Jennifer Neiman of Fleetwood.

Teen leader Richard Kerper, Jr. of Fleetwood, told his fellow 4-H'ers that showing hogs is like being part of a "ham sandwich". You and the judge are the pieces of bread and your hog is the ham. Always keep the ham between the two pieces of bread.

Erica Davis of Kutztown demonstrated that when showing dairy cattle, you walk backward. Troy Gelsinger of Wernersville showed the 4-H'ers that when you are showing beef cattle, walk forward. As for the sheep showing, Stephanie Bowman of Lenhartsville observed that you need a strong pair of knees, because you do a lot of deep knee bends when showing sheep.

The 4-H'ers will be able to use all of this newly acquired knowledge at the Kutztown Fair on August 12, when the fair has its grand champion showmanship contest. In this contest, the champion showman from each species must show an animal from all five species. The 4-H'er that does the best job is the grand champion showman.



Teen leaders who served on the planning committee presented a hand-made thank you card to the Kutztown Fair Association, who Don Reinert represented. The card was made by 4-H artist Michael Holcombe.

Nursery. A senior at Cumberland Regional High School, he will attend Delaware Valley College in Doylestown, Pa. this fall to major in ornamental horticulture. He plans to become a nursery owner and manager.

New State FFA Secretary, Tammie Kenney, of Stockton, N.J. is a member of the Hunterdon Central FFA chapter, Hunterdon Central Regional High School, Flemington, N.J. in Hunterdon County. Her adviser is Pat Hilton. The 18-year-old daughter of Thomas and Laurel Kenney, she has been active as a chapter officer and has competed in two national judging contests. Her supervised agricultural experience program has varied from raising and caring for pheasants and horses to working as a veterinary assistant. A senior at Hunterdon Central Regional High School, Kenney will be attending Cook College, Rutgers University this fall to study preveterinary medicine. Her career goal is to become a veterinarian or wildlife biologist.

Elected as the state FFA treasurer was Dominique Bender, of Clarksburg, N.J. The 19-year-old daughter of Frederick and Susan Bender, she is a three-year member of the Allentown FFA Chapter, Allentown High School, Allentown, N.J., in Monmouth County. Her advisers are Jacque and Cindi Roszel. She served as chapter vice president and competed in three national contests. Her supervised agricultural experience program included working at her family's horse boarding facility and as a veterinary assistant for an equine clinic. Completing her freshman year at Delaware Valley College in Doylestown, Pa., she is studying large animal science. Bender's future career goals are to work as a research scientist for the United States Department of Agriculture or as a teacher of agriculture.

Gabrielle Gordon, of Andover, N.J. was elected state FFA reporter. The 18-year-old daughter of Robert and Constance Gordon, she has been a member of the Newton FFA chapter, Newton High School, Newton, N.J., for four years. Her advisers are David Pede and Michael Ridge. She has served as a chapter officer for two years and participated in regional, state and national public speaking contests. She will be representing New Jersey in the National Extemporaneous Public Speaking Contest in November at the National FFA Convention. Her supervised agricultural experience program is in the area of aquaculture. She was recognized as the 1994 winner of the state agriscience competition. A senior at Newton High School, Gordon will attend Cook College, Rutgers University, in the fall to study environmental science. Her plans are to receive a masters degree and doctorate in environmental science.

The 1994-1995 State FFA Officer team was elected at the 65th New Jersey State FFA Convention held annually at Cook College, Rutgers University. More than 325 FFA members, advisers and guests from 31 chapters attended this event.

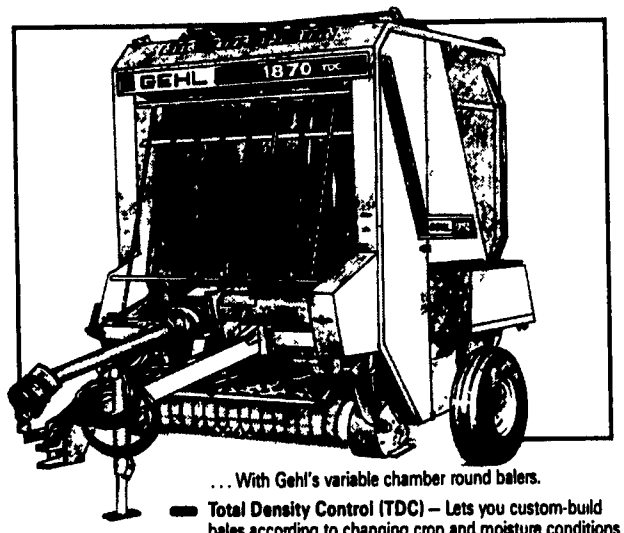
GEHL

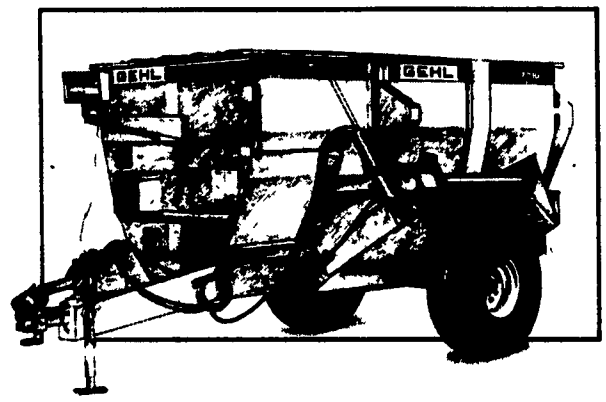
PACK IT IN



. . . With Gehl's variable chamber round balers.

- Total Density Control (TDC) – Lets you custom-build bales according to changing crop and moisture conditions for maximum nutrient value.
- Two models – Make bales 3'9" wide and up to 5' in diameter, or 5' wide and up to 6' in diameter.
- Quick-wrap option – Speeds your baling operation and helps preserve hay quality.
- Constant velocity driveline – For smooth operation.
- Electric dual twine wrap – With manual or auto control.
- Low horsepower requirement – Lets you bale with a tractor as small as 40 horsepower.

GEHL TMR MIXER FEEDERS ARE #1



Nothing makes a Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system work better than a Gehl mixer feeder. Here's why:

- Better Mixing Action – Unique four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy Efficient – Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built To Last – Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Six Sizes – 150 to 500 cubic feet capacities.
- Three Styles – Trailer type, stationary and truck-mounted units to fit your operation.

Robert E. Graves, Professor Of Ag Engineering

Poultry manure is full of smell and energy. Under uncontrolled conditions, poultry manure will break down, releasing odor, ammonia gas, and a little heat.

Under controlled, anaerobic conditions, there will be little odor and the break down of poultry manure can produce energy in the form of biogas. The residue from anaerobic digestion and biogas production is a stable, low smelling liquid that still contains the fertilizer value of the original manure.

Biogas is the burnable mixture of methane, carbon dioxide, and other trace gases that results from anaerobic digestion of organic material. It is similar to natural gas but with only 60-80 percent of the heat content.

A biogas production unit, or "digester," is a large, heated closed tank or container that excludes air. Liquid manure is held in the tank for 20 to 25 days at temperatures of 95 to 105 degrees F. These conditions promote the growth of two types of microorganisms. One group, called acid formers, break down manure into simple organic acids. This is called the liquefaction phase. These acids are then converted to biogas by methane forming bacteria during the gasification phase.

Proper temperatures, pH, and organic loading rate are necessary for growth of the methane formers. If these bugs are not working, there will be little methane gas production and the result will be a sour, smelly, nonfunctioning digester.

A biogas digester can be compared to a living animal; in fact, the rumen of a cow is a large digestion or fermentation unit. Just like a cow, a digester needs to be fed and cared for in a consistent manner for best results. Failure to do this will result in a "sick," malfunctioning digester.

Recently there has been a renewed interest in biogas production as a method to help control odor when large quantities of manure must be handled and stored as part of nutrient management planning. Pennsylvania has digesters operating on large dairy, swine, and poultry farms. The gas from these units is used to fuel engine-powered generators that produce electricity and engine heat. Engine heat is used to maintain the desired digester temperature. Extra engine heat may also be used to provide hot water for space heating or direct use.

On a recent trip to China, sponsored in part by the Center for Rural Pennsylvania, Penn State and USDA, a group of agriculturalists witnessed the use of very small scale "mini-digesters" to provide biogas for cooking and lighting in rural homes. With our cheap and easily available energy, these small-scale systems are of little interest to Pennsylvania farmers. However, the possibility of controlling odor and obtaining usable energy has rekindled interest in medium- and large-scale digesters.

Animal manures can make very good feedstocks for biogas digesters. Manure needs to be in a pumpable form with a moisture content near 90 percent. Cage layer facilities can be managed to produce manure of this moisture content.

Disruption of digester operation because of floating materials such as straw, sawdust, and feathers or settling of heavy materials is often a problem. Further, manure from cage layers provides another unique problem. Limestone or grit in poultry manure will rapidly settle out as the manure is heated. This can quickly build up in the bottom of the digester, interfering with heating and general digester operation. The successful poultry manure digester in Pennsylvania utilizes a preheat settling chamber to remove this material before the digester.

A few forward-looking, innovative farmers have proven that biogas digesters can function on Pennsylvania farms. These pioneers have contributed much to our knowledge and understanding of biogas production and utilization. Digester design, construction, and operation is still an individual, specialized process that is more easily implemented on larger farms.

Systems for larger number of animals have a lower unit cost. Larger farms are more likely to have the resources required to develop needed skills in design, construction, and operation.

As more people become involved with digesters, new ideas and technology are bound to improve on today's methods. Solids separation and use of fixed film digesters to shorten digestion time making smaller digesters more efficient are just two of the ideas currently being considered.

Perhaps with more interest and experience, the pioneering work and investment of these leaders will become a realistic alternative for many more Pennsylvania farmers.

AFT Hails Publication Of Regulations

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Farmland Trust (AFT) applauded the publication of the final rules for the Farmland Protection Polilcy Act, a measure adopted 13 years ago to compel federal agencies to spend tax dollars more efficiently and minimize the taking of farmland for highway construction and other federal projects.

The rules will govern how the act is actually carried out throughout the U.S.

AFT, a national farmland conservation group based in Washington, has long pressed for the issuance of the rules with the USDA and other agencies.

"Secretary Espy and the USDA deserve credit for taking the critical step necessary to implement the Farmland Protection Policy Act," said AFT President Ralph Grossi, a third-generation farmer. "It is a signal that, finally, the administration will carry out the will of Congress and become a partner in the effort by states, local communities, and private organizations to protect our nation's strategic agricultural land."

The U.S. is losing a considerable amount of its best and most productive farmland to permanent non-farm development. Much of the loss is occurring on the urban edge of metropolitan America. In the six-county Chicago area, for example, 450 square miles, or 288,000 acres, of farmland were permanently converted to other uses between 1970 and 1990. By the year 2010, the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission estimates another 220 square miles of farmland may be lost, a land mass equal in size to the city of Chicago today.

These tractors make good sense.

Fellowship Of Christian Farmers Forms Pa. Chapter

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Pennsylvania's first chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Farmers (FCF) International was recently formed. Plans are already under way for an Aug. 20 picnic near Wrightsville.

After several years of hearing much talk about forming a Keystone State chapter, Donald L. Hershey of Manheim took the matter into his own hands this spring. All that was needed was a little gentle inertia, because the interest was there.

Some 75 farm and agribusiness people gathered in a church near Manheim to learn about the fastest-growing farm group in the United States. At that meeting, a steering committee volunteered to start the chapter, elect officers, and lay plans for the future.

The national organization, headed by Wilson Lippy, Hampstead, Md., includes more than 10,000 farmers and agribusiness persons. It's dedicated to building and strengthening the Christian faith among farm families and friends in agriculture. It also undertakes many mission projects to disaster-stricken U.S. farm regions, and to Mexico, South America, Africa, Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States (formerly the Soviet Uniion.)

More than 900 Pennsylvanians are already affiliated with the national association.

The steering committee elected Hershey as president; Robert Coe of West Grove, Pa., vice president; Bob Grant of Cochranville, Pa., secretary; and David and Phoebe Bitler, Fleetwood, Pa., treasurers.

On Saturday, Aug. 20, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., the southeastern Pennsylvania chapter of Fellowhsip of Christian Farmers will host a picnic at Samuel Lewis State Park overlooking the Susquehanna River near Wrightsville, Pa. (East of York near U.S. Route 30).

The program includes inspirational music, uplifting thoughts, and a pork barbecue. Participants should bring lawn chairs.

Reservations are required by Aug. 8 so that food needs can be planned. Cost: adults, $3; children age 5 to 10, $2; children under five, free. A free-will offering will also be taken to help cover expenses.

To order tickets by mail, write to Bob Grant, P.O. Box 336, Cochranville, PA 19330. Make checks payable to Fellowship of Christian Farmers.

Prevent Piglet Crushing

with the

BSM

MODEL 90 FARROWING CRATE

Constructed from heavy gauge materials, this crate is designed to reduce crushing with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars make for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminate the sow from carelessly dropping on the piglets. This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

Tough Tires Handle Rough Terrain

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Tired of flat tires on your skid steer loader? Does the equipment "downtime" cost too much?

Ford New Holland has the answer — new Segmented skid steer loader tires.

These new tires feature hollow, easily replaceable rubber segments that eliminate flat tire problems. These tough tires can handle even the roughest terrain with ease.

Ford New Holland offers two special tread designs to meet a variety of applications. The industrial tread design features a thick tread for excellent wear and traction equal to that of pneumatic tires. The traction tread design features a wide tread for high flotation and a smooth, stable ride in rugged conditions. Both designs include cut and tear resistant compound for extra durability.

For more information, contact your local Ford New Holland dealership.

Greenhouse Systems Conference

ITHACA, N.Y. — Greenhouse Systems: Automation, Culture, and Environment, a conference to be held in New Brunswick, New Jersey on July 20-22, will provide in-depth information on the engineering principles of greenhouse system design and management. Presentations focusing on current technology and case studies will relate the fundamentals to day-to-day management decisions.

The conference consists of four half-day sessions. The automation session will discuss sensors for monitoring the greenhouse environment, controllers and computers for decision making, and machines and layouts for efficient operation. The culture session will discuss water and nutrient delivery and other factors that affect plant growth and response. The environment session will discuss systems used to control heat, lighting, and the gaseous environment within the greenhouse. The last session will focus on integrating the systems discussed in the first three sessions to create an efficient and profitable greenhouse that minimizes environmental impact.

Each evening will include opportunities for focused learning. On the first evening, workshops will be offered; topics will be chosen based on input from conference registrants on their registration forms. During the second evening, teams of participants will each design a greenhouse system. The designs will be reviewed during the last session on the following day.

The intended audience includes greenhouse production systems owners and their advisors and managers, equipment suppliers and manufacturers, cooperative extension educators, designers, writers and publishers within the industry, teachers, government policy makers, and regulators.

The conference planning committee includes Gene Giacomelli, K. C. Ting, and William J. Roberts, professors of bioresource engineering at Rutgers University; Louis D. Albright, professor of agricultural and biological engineering at Cornell University; John W. Bartok, Jr., extension professor of natural resources management and engineering at the University of Connecticut; and Marty Sailus, director of the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service.

The conference is being organized by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES) and the Center of Controlled Environment Agriculture at Rutgers University, in conjunction with the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. It will be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, 2 Albany Street, New Brunswick, New Jersey.

Registration postmarked before June 19 is $350. Registration postmarked after June 19 and for walk-ins is $410. This fee includes admittance to the conference, one lunch, breaks, a reception evening workshops, and a copy of the conference proceedings. Make check payable (in U.S. funds) payable to NRAES and return your registration form before June 19, 1994 to NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853-5701. No refunds if notice of cancellation is received after July 8.

Dauberman Appointed District Manager

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Gary Dauberman of Bellefonte has joined Hoffman Seeds, Inc. as a district manager.

Dauberman will manage all Hoffman sales outlets in central Pennsylvania, including Hoffman Service Centers and their associates.

A graduate of Penn State University with a bachelor's in agricultural science, he had been manager for Agway's Bellefonte store since 1989.

BASF To Market Insecticidal Baits

RALEIGH, N.C. — Two target-specific insecticidal baits for outstanding control of rootworm and cucumber beetles, but with greatly reduced toxicant levels, are being first offered in 1994 by the Agricultural Products Group of BASF Corporation.

Slam® is for use against corn rootworm beetles, while Adios™ controls the cucumber beetles that often severely cut yield and quality of vegetables.

The launch, announced by Peter Oakley, group vice president, BASF Agricultural Products, marks the entry of BASF into the U.S. agricultural insecticide market.

"We believe the prescriptive control approach, combining the high efficacy, minimal environmental impact, and target-specific qualities of Slam and Adios, is in keeping with the concerns and needs of our customers today," said Oakley.

"Slam and Adios are sprayable bait formulations targeted specifically at the Diabrotica family of insects. These insects will feed voraciously on this bait, which means very little toxicant is needed for control.

Glass Heads Up New N.E. DHIA Region

ITHACA, N.Y. — Dave Glass, a Northeast DHIA Field Technician for the past 15 years, has recently accepted a position as region manager for Allegany and Steuben counties in New York and counties in north central and western Pennsylvania.

The decision was made to add another region to the organizational structure to better service dairies in Pennsylvania and New York. Northeast DHIA looks forward to this region realignment because it means increased service opportunities in the area. It also means being able to provide current and future members with the high qaulity service and support they have come to associate with the Northeast DHIA organization.

For more information, contact the DHIA Center at (800) 344-2697.

AGCO To Acquire Massey Ferguson

ATLANTA, Ga. — AGCO Corporation (NYSE AG) announced that it has entered into an agreement to acquire Massey Ferguson Group Ltd. from Varity Corporation for $310 million cash and 500,000 shares of AGCO common stock, valuing the transaction at approximately $328 million.

The acquisition will make AGCO one of the world's largest manufacturers and distributors of agricultural equipment, with estimated annual sales of $1.5 billion.

AGCO Corporation, headquartered in Duluth, Georgia, is currently the exclusive distributor of Massey Ferguson products in North America. The acquisition of U.K.-based Massey Ferguson, which distributes its products to 140 countries, will make AGCO a global manufacturer and distributor of agricultural equipment.

According to Robert J. Ratliff, AGCO's chairman and chief executive officer, "The acquisition of Massey Ferguson represents a logical next step in AGCO's growth strategy, adding to the successful acquisition of the North American distribution operations of Massey in January 1993. The acquisition will also provide AGCO Corporation with significant growth opportunities, including international expansion of other AGCO products currently sold principally in North America."

"The addition of Massey Ferguson's international network of 4,000 dealers and distributors to AGCO's 2,600 North American dealers will give AGCO the largest worldwide dealer network in the agricultural equipment industry," said Ratliff.

Insecticide Registered To Control Beetle

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new 24(c) Special Local Need Label permits use of Furadan® 4F Insecticide as a soil treatment to control striped cucumber beetle in cucurbits.

Under terms of the label, the flowable insecticide is applied in-furrow at planting at a rate of 3.8 oz. per 1,000 linear feet of row. A systemic insecticide, Furadan 4F is taken up by the young plant and kills beetles when they begin feeding.

The registration is important since supplies of granular Furadan 15G will become increasingly limited this season, according to Steve Spangler, Pennsylvania State University Extension associate for vegetables and field crops.

Striped cucumber beetle is the No. 1 insect pest in cucurbits, one of Pennsylvania's most important vegetable crops. The overwintering adult beetle emerges from soil plant litter to attack melons, squash, cucumbers and pumpkins almost as soon as plants sprout from seed or are transplanted, Spangler said. The beetle can damage or destroy vines. It also spreads bacterial wilt disease which is particularly fatal to cantaloupe and cucumber vines.

Applying Furadan 4F at planting controls the striped cucumber beetle for a month or more, according to Steve Fisher, FMC sales representative for Pennsylvania. "Often no additional foliar spraying for this pest is needed," he said.

Woods Introduces Secondary Customer Service Number

OREGON, Ill. — Woods Equipment Company, a leading producer of tractor-powered attachments, has inaugurated a second 800 phone line for its dealers.

Effective immediately, the number, (800) 31-WOODS, is available to Woods dealers as a secondary customer service number to be used for detailed product and order inquiries only. Parts and whole goods orders are to continue to be served by Woods' primary customer service fax number (800) 399-6637.

The new customer service (800) line is created specifically for dealers to ask questions, get answers, and resolve issues directly with Woods Customer Service representatives, said Steve Kiwish, director of customer service.

Big-Jim Unloader...The Unloader of the Future...Available Today.
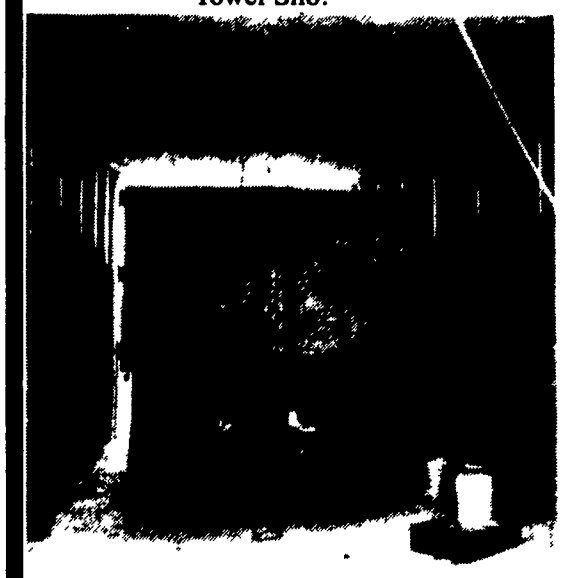
Think of Storing 5,000 Tons in One Tower Silo!



Drive your truck or mixer-wagon under the 12' high floor for fast and efficient delivery of your wilted hay or silage. Eliminate conveyors from silos to mixer.

"IT'S A WHOLE NEW WORLD OUT THERE!"

Tower silos that can hold 4,000 tons of forage!!! This is one of the first major changes in the silo industry since the 1950's when farmers went from 12' and 14' diameter silos to 20' and 24' diameter silos. The industry met the challenge. And Now, Sollenberger Silos Corp. is stepping up to meet the challenges of the '90's and beyond. The larger dairies need storage units that will hold 2,000 tons and more, and be able to deliver the feed without spending "Hours Per Day." The poured concrete tower silo is the silo to store the feed, and the Big-Jim Distributor/Unloader is the system to deliver the feed. Today's business-oriented dairymen realize that "Forage Quality is often the single most important factor affecting their profit," and as a result they are searching for ways to store the feed, and deliver it to the cow in the best condition possible. "The tower silo may very well be the best investment that a dairy farmer can make!!"

Store your feed in a poured concrete silo, let gravity do the packing, and deliver the feed directly into your truck or mixer. "Save $20,000 or more per year on machinery and labor costs to store and deliver your feed, compared to bunker silos."

The tower silo may cost more, but labor, machinery, and feed quality savings will pay the difference in 3 years or less. "The Blizzard of '93 and the severe winter of '94 greatly increases your appreciation of the concrete tower silo."

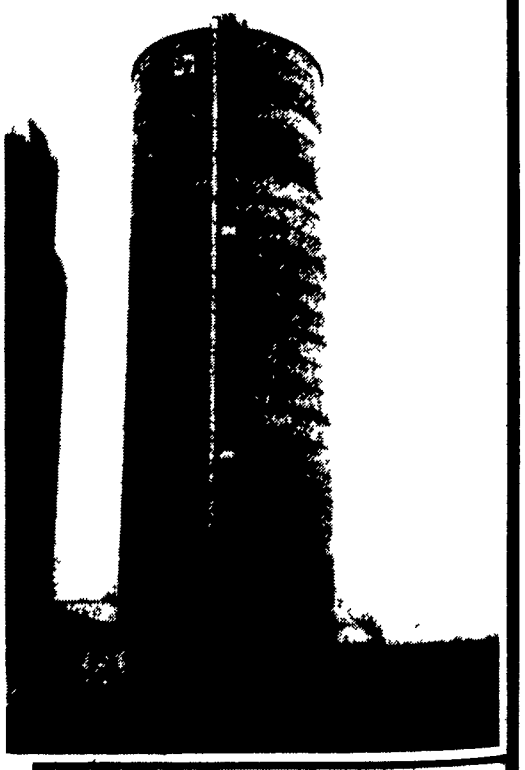
MEMBER: International Silo Assn. - Am. Society of Agric. Engrs. - PA. Forage & Grassland Council



JUST COMPLETED...This 30'x100' poured concrete silo with drive-thru for loading directly into your mixer wagon or truck-mounted mixer. The Big-Jim System will deliver over 1000 lbs. per minute of corn silage. Just think...you don't need 6 silos and 6 unloaders to store this much feed...and better yet, you do not have to store your valuable feed on the ground and try to protect it with plastic and used tires!!!

CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT TO DISCUSS YOUR STORAGE NEEDS AND ASSISTANCE IN COMPLETING THE "COST ANALYSIS WORKSHEET" DEVELOPED BY THE CROP STORAGE INSTITUTE

Best in the Country

Centurydrain is the roofing and siding to use for a strong, thight structure that'll carry you through the years of heavy snows, driving rain, and ripping winds.

Wheeling Centurydrain is pure parcticality: full-hard, high tensile steel; galvanized for toughness, durability, and rust resistance; and with an exclusive drain channel for drey, snug interior.

Handsome appearance, too: bold shadow lines and choice of rich, baked-on colors. The best in the country is right here, Stop by.

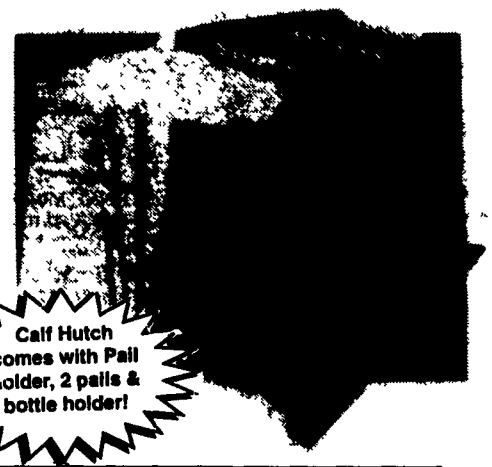
SUPREME CALF HUTCH



J&D MOLDED HIGH DENSITY-POLYETHYLENE CALF HUTCH

J&D Calf Hutches will keep calves drier in the winter, they will stay warmer and start eating at an earlier age. During the warm summer months you can use the standard, adjustable air vent to control the climate in the Calf Hutch. Your calves will be healthier and will grow faster. You may add an out door fence area to the hut.

Calf Hutch comes with Pail holder, 2 pails & bottle holder!

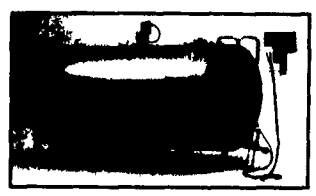
And...

MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Offer

Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk.

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

Your best box buy is Badger.

When it comes to forage boxes, no one builds 'em better than Badger! Badger's been in the box business for more than 40 years, designing unmatched durability and dependability into every Badger box

Badger boxes and running gears are built to stand the heaviest loads, the roughest terrain, and continue trouble free operation year after year The bolted plywood construction, all steel frame, and high-strength undercarriage assure your box will be worth more long after others have reached the graveyard

Add to that a lifetime warranty on wood sides and floor, high strength pintle chain and choice of easy maneuvering, single and tandem axle running gears, and you've got the best box money can buy
Bar none

It's Badger tough.
It's farm tough.

CORN & SOYBEAN OILS - For Animals

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

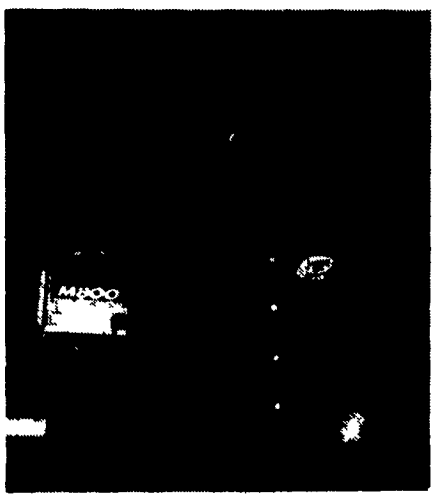
PERMANENT FENCE SYSTEM

"I have never had anything keep my heifers and bulls in like the Gallagher Engerizer"

John Dollar
Bedford, PA



Compared to woven and barbed wire, Gallagher Permanent Power Fence Systems are:

- Safe and more effective in controlling any livestock.
- Less material and labor required.
- Substantially lower cost to install and maintain.

For more information on the Gallagher Permanent Power Fence System contact your nearest Gallagher dealer listed or call 1-800-531-5908.

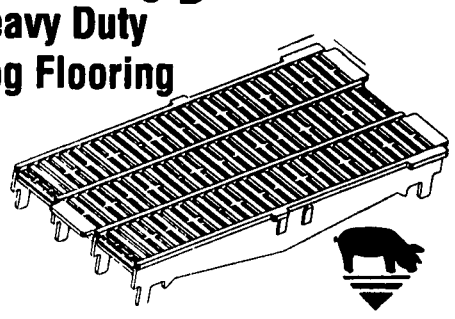
Polygrate™
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.
- ◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?
- ◆ More piglets survive until weaning
- ◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- ◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
- ◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- ◆ Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels.
- ◆ Improved energy density of your rations.
- ◆ Excellent quality control.
- ◆ Exchange programs with feed mills.
- ◆ Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- ◆ We also buy corn and soybeans

A LOAD OF MIRACLE BREWERS WET GRAINS . . .LOADS MORE MILK

Have you considered brewers wet grains to give your herd's production a boost? Brewers wet grains from Miracle Feeds are an excellent protein and energy source. They can readily make up to 20-30% of the ration's dry matter. Combined with McNess vitamin and minerals they can provide a very efficient rumen bypass way to feed.

Researchers estimate that between 45-55% of brewers wet grains' protein escapes rumen degradation compared to only 25-30% for soybean meal. This bypass protein is more efficiently digested and absorbed in the cow's small intestine.

For more information on the use of brewers wet grains and other by-products, plus McNess premixes, call toll-free 800-888-0230.

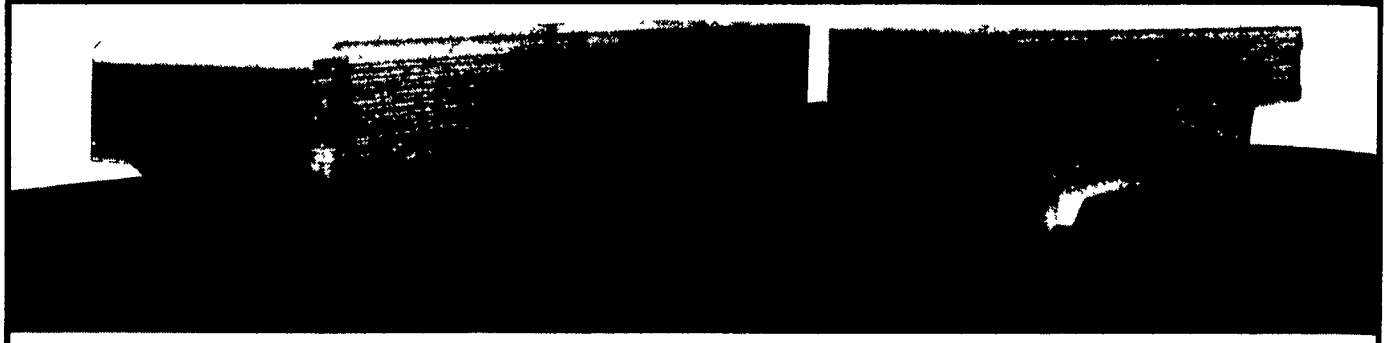
Anything Less Isn't Good Enough



If livestock is your business, Eby Gooseneck Trailers include these features to protect the livestock you transport:

- Durable all-aluminum construction with less weight for more payload
- Axies, wheels, tires and brakes that are designed to carry the weight the trailer will hold
- Gates and doors designed for easy loading/unloading
- Proven post and slat design to control airflow and easily close up for winter conditions
- Aerodynamic design to improve fuel economy

Eby Gooseneck Trailers are available in lengths from 12 to 32 feet with a choice of widths and inside heights. We offer every custom option, including stainless steel front end for great looks.

Whatever kind of livestock you transport, you can rely on EBY products to do the job right.

FOR SALE

960 ACRE FARM/ESTATE
(Great Potato Soils)

Located in Berks, Lehigh and Montgomery Counties, PA

A rare opportunity to own a beautiful private valley. Formerly the world class Masten Potato Farm, the land consists of level to gently rolling fields, and a beautiful stream valley with water for irrigation. The buildings feature an exceptional circa 1730 Stone House with six bedrooms and four huge fireplaces with a quaint entryway to the grounds, passing between the gate house and the stone bank barn and over two stone bridges to the Farm House. There is also a large Federal brick farm house. In total there are eight farm houses six of which are stone, two large stone bank barns and grain storage for 70,000 bushels. This farm has excellent potential for a potato farm or an equestrian estate. Call for a brochure on this and our other fine farms and estates.

Could be divided into many smaller farms.

Kits to Launch Stickering Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Beginning this summer, consumers will have an opportunity to instantly identify the fresh flavor of locally grown Pennsylvania vegetable crops thanks to a new stickering plan to be launched in the Pa. Vegetable Marketing and Research Program's 1994 Point of Purchase (POP) kits.

Each POP kit will include 100 new Grown in Pennsylvania stickers to be directly applied to individual cantaloupes, watermelons, and other crops. Industry research has consistently proven that crops featuring a brand identification or location sticker outsell the competition.

Use the initial 100 Grown in Pennsylvania stickers to establish trial programs with your crops. When it's clear that the stickers are helping you sell more vegetables, be sure to re-order additional quantities to suit your needs.

The new Grown in Pennsylvania stickers aren't the only new item in this year's POP kits. Each merchandising package also will include 25 three by three inch full color Pennsylvania Proven Produce logo stickers for use in markets and on signs. These versatile stickers will add color to your market and provide additional visual reinforcement of the Pennsylvania Proven Produce theme.

The 1994 display kits will continue last year's popular Frequent Buyer's promotion, designed to build customer loyalty and generate repeat business at your market. Growers again will receive quantities of the Frequent Buyer's cards, which offer a 10-percent discount on the sixth purchase of fresh vegetables, and a 10-percent discount plus a free bonus on the 12th purchase.

The kits also will feature program's popular laminated poster, price paddles and price cards, as well as a packet of the "Know Your Vegetables" brochures and a logo slick for use with local advertising.

If you do not want the POP kit but would like to use the Grown in Pennsylvania stickers, call the program's offices at (717) 473-8468 for information on ordering.

Pick 5 Get 10-Percent Sale Continues to Grow

With expanded promotional and merchandising materials, this year's Pick 5 Get 10-percent sale promises to be bigger and better than ever.

Now entering its third year, Pennsylvania's first ever statewide produce sale continues to attract consumer attention and increase sales at farmers' markets and roadside farm markets. The promotion allows customers to save money when they buy five servings of fresh Pennsylvania produce.

For vegetable producers, of course, the sale is designed to draw additional traffic into markets and help move surplus crops late in the growing season.

The Pick 5 Get 10-percent merchandising kits feature the giant poster and 100 copies of the "Good Nutrition from Asparagus to Zucchini" brochure. In response to requests from growers, we're also including a new sign that better explains how the sale works. The small full color sign can be displayed in your market near the produce or near the cash registers to help your customers understand the rules of the promotion.

To help draw additional customers to your market for the sale, each kit also will include generic Pick 5 Get 10-percent and slicks for use in your local newspaper as part of your market's advertising program.

For additional promotional muscle, we'll again be distributing a public service announcement (PSA) to radio stations statewide. Last year's PSA was picked up by more than 50 stations and encouraged consumers to eat five servings of vegetables and fruit every day. We'll also be issuing a special news release to newspapers and television stations across the state. This release will which include a list of local markets that are participating in the sale.

Like the POP kits, participating in the Pick 5 Get 10-percent sale is free for growers paying the annual assessment. To help improve sales at your market during this unique sales event, simply complete the enclosed order card.

Vegetable of the Week Column to Be Introduced

For the past four years, the Marketing and Research Program has kept newspapers across the state informed about when Pennsylvania's different vegetable crops come into season.

Through the years we have been successful in placing feature stories on vegetables in newspapers read by millions of people across the state.

In an effort to improve upon that success, the program will offer the daily and weekly newspapers across the state a free six-week "subscription" to a "Vegetable of the Week" column that will highlight a different major Pennsylvania vegetable crop each week. It will include nutritional information about the crop and recipes on how to use it.

Use That Logo

The "Pennsylvania Proven Produce logo is designed to be used whenever you want to identify your produce as being grown in Pennsylvania. Use it in your advertising or on anything you have custom printed like produce boxes, stationary, invoices, etc.

Many of the box companies have the logo in their files and can print it on your boxes if you request it. If they do not have it on file, call us and we will send a copy of it to them. Or if you need a copy of it suitable for reprinting, call and we will send you a copy also. The number is (717) 473-8468.

Program Funds Eight Research Projects for 1994

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program will help fund eight vegetable research projects in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association (PVGA) and Furman Foods in 1994. The eight research grants total nearly $35,000.

The Vegetable Marketing and Research Program will be contributing $20,000 while PVGA will contribute $13,000 towards the vegetable research grants. Furman Foods matched their grower contributions with additional funds of about $2,400.

The projects chosen for funding are listed below with their objectives:

• The Pennsylvania State University:

• Weed Management in Vine Crops

Michael Orzolek and John Murphy, $3,641.

To determine the effect of several currently labelled herbicides (Dual, Command, etc.) on weed control and crop phytotoxicity and yield in several species of vine crops.

To determine the effect of the different weed management strategies such as thermal weed control and living mulch on weed control and yield of various vine crops.

• Disease Control for Snap Beans, Pumpkins and Tomatoes

Alan MacNab, $9,500.

To evaluate a soil treatment for root rot control in snap beans.

To evaluate the influence of varietal resistance and fruit maturity on rot development in pumpkins.

To identify disease control thesholds for tomatoes and to assess the value of resistance to disease in tomatoes.

To maintain and operate the tomato disease forecast system in Pennsylvania.

To develop and evaluate an integrated early blight and anthracnose fruit rot control program for tomatoes in Pennsylvania.

• Effect of High Nitrogen Uptake on Nutrition and Tomato Production.

Cyril Smith and Thomas Jurchak, $4,500.

To determine the optimum nitrogen rate and at what level excessive nitrogen uptake adversely affects production.

To learn more about the role of nitrogen in tomato growth and in avoiding pollution.

To evaluate various nitrogen and calcium sources and other interacting factors in affecting calcium uptake.

• Development of Total Biocontrol Strategies for Insect Pests in Greenhouse Vegetable Production.

Michael Orzolek, Paul Heller & Cathy Thomas, $3,172.

• Sweet Corn Integrated Pest Management in Pennsylvania.

Steve Spangler, Shelby Fleischer & Dennis Calvin, $5,208.

To create educational materials to train growers to implement a sweet corn IPM program.

To continue to improve the existing infrastructure that effectively monitors pests of sweet corn ears, including maintaining the toll-free information telephone line.

(NOTE: The toll-free number for current information on sweet corn pests is (800) 321-4756.

• Cornell University:

• Breeding Pumpkin and Squash for Disease and Insect Resistance.

Richard Robinson, $4,011.

To breed pumpkin and squash for resistance to zucchini yellow mosaic virus combined with resistance to other viruses, powdery mildew, gummy stem blight and other storage rots. In addition to disease and insect resistance, squash and pumpkin will be bred for better quality and other desirable traits, including the ability to set fruit without pollination.

• Evaluation of Economic Value of Disease Resistance in Beans.

Michael Dickson and Rixana Petzoldt, $2,500.

(Turn to Page D3)

Vegetable Growers News

To quantify the economic advantage of disease tolerance in snap beans.

To identify the yield and pod quality improvements under conditions of high and low disease pressure of disease tolerant as compared to standard varieties.

To identify the economic importance of quantitive tolerance and how it will help growers and consumers.

• The Ohio State University:

• Breeding, Development, and Machine Harvest Evaluation of Processing Tomato Cultivars and Hybrids.

Stan Berry, (funded by Furman Foods' contribution), $2,400.

To determine the climatic and edaphic adaptability of new processing tomato introductions from the Ohio State breeding program and from other breeding programs for the processing industry with special emphasis on yield and suitability for mechanical harvest.

To develop mechanically harvestable processing tomatoes adaptable to Pennsylvania which have greater yield potential; uniform fruit set and ripening; varying maturity dates; fruit resistant to cracking, jointless pedicel, free stemming characteristics, and small cores; and disease resistance to fusarium and verticillium wilts, early blight, anthracnose and bacterial speck.

Seven additional research proposals requesting $39,000 in grants were submitted. Because there were insufficient funds to fund all the proposals received, these could not be funded.

Collection Regulations In Effect

New regulations for the Vegetable Marketing and Research Program are now effect. All growers should have received a letter outlining the new procedures for collecting the assessment. You can still use the production verfication statement you received in the mail to pay your assessment through the mail or you can have your assessment deducted from your payment from a collecting sales agent (which are auctions, cooperatives, packing houses or processors) through whom you sell vegetables.

Because deducting the assessment from your payment is additional bookwork for collecting sales agents, some collecting sales agents are requiring growers to pay the assessment directly through the mail. Each collecting sales agent must, however, still have you fill out a production verification statement each season even if you have paid the assessment through the mail. When you fill out the form for the collecting sales agent, you must include the serial number of the form with which you paid the assessment through the mail or they will be required to deduct the assessment. You should have received a peach-colored card in the mail on which to record the serial number for your own reference.

For growers who deal with collecting sales agents, it will help us keep our records straight if you fill out the forms with the same name and address that is on the card you received in the mail earlier. Also, include your Program ID number as listed on the card. (This information is also on the address label on the envelope in which you received his newsletter.) Note that your Program ID number is not the same as the serial number of a production verification statement. Of course, if the name or address we have in our records is wrong, let us know! And let the program know if the Post Office changes your address from the "RR 1 Box 123" format to a road name and number.

The new regulations will also allow the Program to initiate enforcement proceedings in the district justice's office against growers who are not paying the required assessment. The goal of these regulations is to increase the compliance rate so everyone is paying their fair share.

If you have any questions on how the new collection procedure works, please write or call us at (717) 473-8468.

Secretary Asks For Board Nominations

Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff is requesting nominations of growers to serve on the Vegetable Marketing and Research Board. The terms of Boyd Mertz (central region), William Rankin, Robert Trax, and Richard McCloskey (all from the western region) expire on June 30, 1994. Rankin is no longer eligible to serve and McCloskey has asked to be replaced. Mertz and Trax are both eligible to be reappointed.

The board membership includes 12 growers. Four members are appointed for three-year terms from each of three regions of the state. The eastern region contains Philadelphia, Delaware, Montgomery, Bucks, Chester, Lancaster, Berks, Lehigh, Northampton, Schuylkill, Carbon, Monroe, Pike, Luzerne, Lackawanna, Wayne, Wyoming and Susquehanna Counties. The central region includes York, Adams, Franklin, Cumberland, Dauphin, Lebanon, Perry, Juniata, Northumberland, Snyder, Union, Montour, Columbia, Lycoming, Sullivan, Tioga, and Bradford Counties. The western region is the remaining counties: Fulton, Bedford, Somerset, Fayette, Greene, Washington, Allegheny, Westmoreland, Cambria, Blair, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Centre, Clearfield, Jefferson, Armstrong, Clarion, Indiana, Butler, Beaver, Lawrence, Mercer, Venango, Forest, Elk, Cameron, Clinton, Potter, McKean, Warren, Crawford, and Erie. The secretary of agriculture is also a member of the board. A representative of the collecting sales agents will also be reappointment from nominations submitted by the sales agents.

Nominations can be sent to Michael Varner, Bureau of Market Development, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17110-9408.

What Growers Need to Know About the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing & Research Programs

The Vegetable Marketing and Research Program is a state marketing order established under the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act of 1968. It includes all growers in Pennsylvania who grow one or more acres of vegetables for sale. Growers are required by law to pay an annual assessment of $25.00 to the Program. In addition, growers with more than 10 acres of vegetables musts pay $1.50 for each acre over 10 acres. All crops commonly classified as vegetables including sweet corn, tomatoes, cantaloupes, watermelons and all ornamental vegetables like pumpkins, gourds, and decorative corn are considered vegetable crops under the Program. White potatoes are not included not are small fruits or mushrooms.

Greenhouse vegetable growers are also required to pay the $25.00 assessment if they use more than 1000 sq. ft. to produce vegetables. If they have more than 10,000 sq. ft., they pay $1.50 per 1000 sq. ft. for each 1000 sq. ft. over 10,000 sq. ft. Greenhouse vegetables are those grown to maturity in the greenhouse. Greenhouse area used to produce vegetable transplants for the field or bedding plant sales is not counted.

This assessment is not a tax nor does the money go into the state treasury. The money collected from growers is deposited in a separate account. It is used to promote Pennsylvania vegetables and to fund research that will benefit Pennsylvania growers as well as to administer the Program. Government support for agricultural research and marketing programs is continually being cut. Unless growers are willing to help fund these efforts themselves, they will eventually be eliminated. The Program's sole purpose for existing is to serve the vegetable industry of Pennsylvania in a cooperative manner. It is a self-help program based on the principle that all the growers in the state should help support the Program's promotion and research efforts that are designed to benefit all the growers of the state.

The Marketing and Research Program was approved by a grower referendum, as provided by law, conducted in 1988 and again in 1993 by the Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture. While the Program has the force of law, it is not a government run program. It is controlled by a Board of 12 growers appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture from nominations submitted by growers. The Secretary of Agriculture and a representative of collecting sales agents also sit on the Board.

Growers, Partners Can Capture Future With New Technology

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — A radical new corn processing technology which can increase the yield and lower the cost of ethanol while creating new, high-value food products is just one of the promising new developments featured at Corn Utilization Conference V (CUCV) here.

Called SEP (sequential extraction processing), the new wet milling technology is being developed at the Center for Crops Utilization Research at Iowa State University in Ames. It integrates well-established, existing technologies in a unique way.

"We want to reduce the stream of low-value feedstuffs, like corn gluten feed which is currently vulnerable to trade restrictions. Those products currently return as much as half the cost of the corn," said Larry Johnson of the Center, "but SEP can increase that value by creating a stream of high-value foods and industrial products."

SEP takes ethanol from the fermentation of corn starch and recycles it to upstream processing steps. There it not only extracts zein and a food-grade protein concentrate called glutelin, it removes water from the ethanol, eliminating a costly step in current wet milling, according to Johnson.

Zein, currently worth $9 per pound is widely used in the confectionery and pharmaceutical industry. Glutelin, which is very water soluble, could be used to produce high-protein beverages such as infant formulas as well as meat extenders, and cheeses. In addition, they could be used as adhesives and coatings.

SEP is just one of dozens of new technologies and processes highlighted at CUCV, noted Pete Wenstrand, a farmer from Essex, Iowa, and president of National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). "Our goal is to communicate, educate, and partner to make the research and commercialization of industrial uses of corn more efficient and profitable," he said in his opening remarks.

The conference, the fifth in seven years, is just one example of NCGA's long-standing commitment to "advance the cause," said Wenstrand. "It's time to help this domestic, renewable resource — corn — move full speed ahead. CUCV is just what we need to capture the future."

The strategy of partnering with experts was also highlighted in an update on the Crop Utilization Research Database (CURD). Donna Schenck-Hamlin, Kansas State University, noted that since NCGA initiated CURD in 1990, it has grown in scope and sophistication.

Designed to prevent redundancies in research in non-food, non-feed uses of corn, CURD was recently formed to accommodate the participation of the National Association of Wheat Growers. In addition, the issues of categories of information, disclosure of proprietary information, and changes in subscribers' communication systems.

Next, the service may expand to become an intermediate information retrieval system which "pulls all needed data for a specific client from many databases," said Schenck-Hamlin.

Such NCGA efforts to advance new uses helped increase the industrial uses of corn to 1.6 billion bushels in 1993, the first year in which this category topped corn exports.

"We hold the world lead in this industry," said Wenstrand, "but we are still challenged to identify and overcome the constraints to speed commercialization of this sustainbale technology."

Added Wallie Hardie, chair of NCGA's research and commercialization committee, "We have the heart; we need the vision and the expertise of our allies to see beyond the horizon in order to develop a comprehensive research strategy. We need your skill to help corn improve the quality of life in a changing world," he told nearly 300 scientists from U.S. and foreign universities, corporations, research institutions, and government laboratories gathered at CUCV.

Soybean Association Names Director For Marketing

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) announced the hiring of Stephen L. Censky to lead the organization's international activities.

Censky will join ASA as executive director of international marketing in late July. Headquartered in St. Louis, he will be responsible for operations of 12 ASA overseas offices.

"We're excited to have Steve Censky join the American Soybean Association," said John Blaska, Wisconsin soybean farmer and ASA secretary in charge of international programs. "He brings a wealth of experience and knowledge that will be invaluable to the soybean industry. And as a farmer, I'm particularly pleased that he has a strong agricultural background. I believe he represents the best of both worlds — a good basic knowledge of agriculture at the grassroots and strong insights into international markets."

ASA is primary contractor with the United Soybean Board (USB), and works cooperatively with the Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) in identifying and carrying out USB and FAS-funded market development programs overseas. As international marketing head, Censky will lead this joint effort to grow soybean demand internationally.

"Steve Censky will be a key player on ASA's top management team as we develop and implement strategies for the most effective and efficient use of U.S. farmers' checkoff dollars and federal funds," said Dennis Sharpe, ASA CEO.

Censky is a Minnesota native with a bachelor's in agriculture from South Dakota State University and a master's in agriculture studies from the University of Melbourne. He served U.S. Senator James Abdnor as legislative assistant, researching and advising on agricultural policy.

Censky joined USDA in 1986 in the Agricultural Marketing Service, where he was involved in overseeing the checkoffs for dairy and beef. In 1991, he joined FAS as associate administrator for international affairs and commodity programs. He was eventually named acting administrator, and was responsible for the general operation of the agency, including the oversight of $7.5 billion in market development and export assistance programs.

Grange Supports National Tax Reform

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange has long been an advocate for local tax reform because the organization believes farmers carry a disproportionate burden of the tax load as landowners.

"Local tax reform is an issue that is long overdue," Brenda Shambaugh, Pennsylvania State Grange legislative director, said. "Property owners are rightfully concerned over continual increases in property taxes while local governments suffer with severe shortfalls due partially to federal cutbacks. Property owners deserve more for their money."

The Grange was part of a broad coalition of groups that recently announced its support for a House bill at a Capitol news conference. The Grange is one of about 10 groups that supports HB 2202, which aims at true revenue neutrality, offers local citizens choices in the taxing process, and protects taxpayers through referenda.

The following is the Pennsylvania State Grange's policy on the local tax reform issue:

Financing local government and public schools

• The Grange supports a reduction in real estate taxes. Revenue should be generated using a more equitable formula.

• "Nuisance" taxes should be eliminated.

• The local tax structure should allow for a home rule process whereby local taxing entities choose the most appropriate tax formula for their individual needs. A combination of local taxing entities should hold public hearings from residents for input from which a new tax formula could be developed at a county level.

• A need to codify all the laws affecting the various offices connected with collecting revenues including the Assessment Office Tax Claims, County Treasurer and Property and School Tax collectors.

• We endorse an amendment to the PA Constitution that specifies exact reductions and percentages of income tax or sales tax that can be utilized.

• Unearned income should only be taxed after a reasonable exemption.

• Some controls on annual tax increases.

School board budgets

Since school boards have unlimited taxing authority and these increases cause legislation to require local voter approval of school tax increases that are higher than economic hardships on property owners, the Pennsylvania legislature should act on the current rate of inflation.

School building construction

The General Assembly should investigate school building construction to determine the reason for the rapid deterioration of the buildings. The Grange also suggests that the Pennsylvania Department of Education draw up a standard set of plans for school building construction that could be adapted to each school's situation.

Furthermore, the Grange recommends that each school district be required by state law to submit plans and costs for the erection of new buildings or major alterations to voters for approval or rejection by referendum.

"The Grange feels this is needed because there has been a lack of concern by some school boards in responding to taxpayers' voiced requests for restraint and economy when projects for new buildings, additions or alterations are proposed," Shambaugh said.

Wool Pool At Fairgrounds

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — All sheep and wool producers in Wyoming and Susquehanna counties are advised that the Annual Wool Pool will be held at the Wyoming County Fairgrounds on Wednesday morning, July 13, from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m.

The Wyoming County Fairground is located just West of Meshoppen on U.S. Route 6.

The wool pool is a cooperative marketing arrangement sponsored by the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association to provide a structure through which individual producers are given access to the major U.S. wool buying companies.

By means of a coordinated telephone conference, county and regional wool producers associations offer their anticipated clip to national buyers who submit bids on a grade and volume basis. Upon acceptance of a bid a sales-purchase contract is written, fixing a pooling date and location and committing the buyer to an 80-percent escrow payment 10 days in advance of the delivery date. The Association's board of directors then organizes the mechanism for collecting, grading, and shipping the assembled consignment.

Five counties in northeast Pennsylvania — Wyoming, Susquehanna, Bradford, Sullivan, and Wayne — combine their production into one consignment which is collected at four pooling sites. Upon receipt of the shipment and invoice, the buyer adjusts the estimated escrow payment to his actual obligation and mails the differential to the secretary-treasurer of each association. Local directors then convene a budget meeting to calculate the actual cost of operating the pool, determine the per pound assessment of these costs to each grade of wool, and authorize payment to individual producers.

The total northeast production for 1994 is expected to be approximately 50,000 pounds with 10,000 pounds originating in Wyoming and Susquehanna counties. Producers from Luzerne County, and anyone who does not have convenient access to other pools, may bring their clip to the Wyoming County Fairground on July 13.

New Corn Uses On 'Test Track'

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn Utilization Conference V (CUCV) is like the prototype of an automobile, said Gene Iannotti, technical director of the international scientific conference under way here.

"Seven years ago at the first CUC, we dreamed the design of the car," said Iannotti, continuing the automotive analogy. "This year, the hood is up, the engine is running, and it's ready for the test track."

Sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), CUC V has drawn more than 340 scientists from U.S. and foreign universities, corporations, research institutions, and governmental laboratories to discuss expansion of industrial uses of corn.

Iannotti, associate professor of agricultural engineering at the University of Missouri-Columbia, notes that "we are still not at the stage where we can say a tremendous number of markets are a reality. But we have gone through all the classic, conservative steps that assure a good product. The past seven years represent an extremely quick transition from concept to execution. Where we are now almost guarantees success."

Kyd Brenner, a CUC V presenter and Vice President with the Corn Refiners Association in Washington, DC, concurs. "We don't have another ethanol or corn sweetener that will grow 20 percent per year on our plates, but we do have a whole plateful of products and processes that together may add up to another ethanol or sweetener."

Specifically, Brenner highlights:

• Polylactic acid which has a whole range of properties but has the greatest potential as solid, degradable products such as picnic cutlery.

• Bio-products of fermentation, such as citric acid, use corn-derived, inexpensive dextrose as their building block instead of molasses from beet sugar imported from Europe.

• New starches tailored for end users' specific needs. To date starches have undergone energy- and time-intensive chemical modification. "Now we can begin to select properties from plant breeding through processing to consumer," said Brenner. "That allows us to replace existing products, but also to create new markets."

Brenner said that one of the non-tangible successes of the conference is "the ability of NCGA to draw and assemble the people doing the leading cutting edge work. This has really matured the industrial uses industry."

He said, "The early meetings were very broad in scope and not as practical. The feeling was 'Here's a technology; maybe we can do something with it.' Today, there is an interest in the practical constraints to new product development — economics, consumer acceptance, regulation, as well as need. In addition, what we see is a narrowing of focus to very specific products and processes."

Linda Schilling, another presenter and a program manager with the Commerce Department's Advanced Technology Program, also emphasizes the quality and the enthusiasm of the attendees.

"The CUCs have had a unique role in changing the way people think about themselves," she said. "The opportunity for scientists and economists to get to know each other helps both target their research and development resources."

In addition, Schilling said, "We are starting to see two major industries — corn wet millers and commodity chemical manufacturers — take advantage of each other's strengths. There is a tremendous amount of integration between scientific discipline that shows that people are not 'staying in their own boxes.'

"To get all these people in the same room to share their expertise across disciplines and across time will help big industrial sectors add value to agricultural processing and products," she said.

Corn Growers Can Expand New Uses

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn Growers are at the leading edge of a new uses movement that is gaining unprecedented momentum, according to three concluding speakers at the Corn Utilization Conference V (CUCV) here.

"The list of scientists, growers, organizations, processor/manufacturers, and policy makers active in support of biobased products movement is at an all time high and growing," said Raymond L. Burns, session chair from Kansas Department of Agriculture, Topeka.

That gives corn growers an unprecedented window of opportunity to form additional new-uses partnerships within their industry, between government and agriculture, and between agriculture and the petrochemical industry attendees were told.

Sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), CUCV demonstrated the organization's policy of forming partnerships by bringing together 340 business people and researchers from public and private organizations to exchange scientific and technological, and economic expertise on the industrial uses of corn.

"NCGA has already embraced the concept of change and is well positioned to realize future opportunities," said Ronald Sampson, director of the Center for Technology Management at Griffith University in Brisbane, Australia.

Sampson noted that current market realities — static or declining demand at home and abroad for corn as a commodity feedstuff — "suggests that major new demands for bio-based products such as corn must be found in the differentiation created by new, value-added products."

Although biotechnology holds great promise, Sampson added, "technical and social/political complexities will likely hamper its impact on the marketplace during the next decade. A greater market impact is more likely to be realized from development of new uses and expansion of non-traditional new crops."

Both Sampson and Linda Beth Schilling, program manager in the Department of Commerce's Advanced Technology Program, highlighted the federal government's interest in new uses.

"Today's political realities suggest a shift in government spending from subsidies and basic research into cooperative development of new industrial products based on new and existing crops," said Sampson.

In addition, the petrochemical industry is "facing extraordinary market and environmental challenges" which are driving it toward greater participation in biobased energy processes, said Schilling.

She pointed out that net U.S. petroleum imports are expected to rise from 45 percent to 55 percent in 1998, possibly slowing the global competitiveness and economic growth of the U.S.

In addition, Schilling noted that in 1993, 20 percent of the oil industry's capital expenditures of $5 billion was spent on environmental abatement and compliance. An additional $4.5 billion was spent on operating expenses for abatement and control. Both costs are projected to continue to rise — both for petrochemical manufacturers and their customers, she said.

The solution, Schilling said, is a shift toward renewable, environmentally friendly feedstocks, processes, and products which have the "potential for adding the most quality to life while optimizing energy security and environmental impact" in order to "capture the imagination of the consumer."

Concluded Burns, today, more than ever before, there is a window of opportunity for all sectors "to step forward as a team to secure from governmental leadership a national policy of utilization of renewable feedstocks."

Minimize Cattle Feeding Losses

The market for fed cattle has plunged $15/cwt. lower than prices received a year ago, but every cattle feeder probably knows this fact. Cattlemen also know the market prices do fluctuate, requiring management skills that are effective for both maximizing profits and minimizing losses.

As a cattle feeder, you do have some control over management factors which can influence costs. Failure to follow recommended practices can result in feedlot performance being lowered and profit losses greater than necessary.

- Failure to control internal parasites can result in 5-15 percent poorer feed efficiency and a 5-15 percent decrease in rate of gain.
- Failure to control lice and mange may cause a 10-15 percent reduction in gain and 5-10 percent reduction in feed efficiency.
- Failure to use growth promotants and feed additives may cost you 10-12 percent lower daily gains and 12-15 percent poorer feed efficiency.
- Failure to feed adequate protein can result in a staggering 20 percent reduction in performance.
- Failure to provide clean, fresh water can result in performance losses of 5-10 percent.
- Failure to properly manage your feed bunks will reduce consumption and performance.

Hot Weater Tips For Raising Hogs

Summer is just around the corner and the temperatures are already climbing into the 90's, during this time of your hogs reach the "upper critical temperature," increasing the risk of heat, stress, and even death. However, many steps can be taken to make your hogs more comfortable during the hot weather season.

Providing a water based cooling system is a good way to keep hogs comfortable during the hot summer months. Drippers, misters, sprayers, and evaporative pads are some of the water-based cooling systems available. If you use drippers, mister nozzles or sprinklers make sure the water outlet is not clogged.

Make sure the barn is well ventilated to remove heat during the summer, and provide adequate space for your hogs. A minimum of 8-9 square feet for each hog weighing 160-220 pounds is required.

Adjust your feeding program for finishing hogs during the hot weather. Heat-stressed pigs eat less which slows down their growth rate. A hog weighing more than 200 pounds can reduce its daily feed intake to nearly zero when temperatures exceed 90°F. Adjust amino acids, the most limiting nutritient for growing hots. Increase the lysine by 10 to 15 percent which should help market hogs maintain performance and sustain their full growing potential. Also, add energy-dense fat to their diet, which will help maintain the hogs calorie intake. Fat also reduces body temperatures.

Selecting The Right Ram

When choosing a ram for your purebred or commercial flock, many points should be remembered.

- Select a ram from a flock free of diseases.
- Choose a ram which is a twin or triplet which may produce more multiple births in his lamb crop.
- Select a quick growing, structurally correct ram.
- If possible, examine the ram's dam and sire to assure you that the ram has the qualities you are looking for.
- Select a ram containing two properly developed testicles in the scrotum.
- When you have chosen your ram, isolate him for 30 days away from the rest of the flock.

Conservation Farmers On Schedule

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About 90 percent of the conservation plans on Pennsylvania's most highly erodible cropland are being carried out on schedule, according to results of the 1993 status review conducted by the Soil Conservation Service (SCS). Conservation practices to protect these fragile soils have been fully applied for nearly half these plans.

"Most farmers have made great efforts to reduce soil erosion," said Richard Duncan, State Conservationist for SCS in Pennsylvania. "SCS field personnel, state conservation agencies and conservation districts have worked hard to help these farmers. I encourage them to continue to carry out their plans on schedule and meet the required deadline."

The conservation plans were developed on highly erodible cropland as a result of a conservation provision in the Food Security Act of 1985, which linked soil conservation to farm program benefits for the first time. Under the law, producers must carry out practices in their plans by December 31 to stay eligible for most U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) farm program benefits.

The 1993 status review provides a statistically reliable sample on conservation plans on highly erodible cropland. SCS personnel conducted on-site reviews on 1,491 plans covering 84,007 acres.

These reviews indicate plans are on schedule on about 90 percent of the cultivated cropland covered. These estimates show that erosion on our most highly erodible lands will be reduced by about 60 percent, going from an estimated state average of 7.9 tons per acre in 1985 to 3.0 tons per acre annually when plans are fully implemented by the December 31 deadline.

Significant benefits from this soil erosion reduction include less erosion damage to the nation's water and air quality, wildlife habitat enhancement and the protection of the long-term productivity of the nation's most vulnerable cropland.

"Producers have accepted the challenge to change the way they operate in order to protect the environment," Duncan said. "The public has shown that it wants good stewardship."

A small percentage of plans are not on schedule because they were granted variances, or one-year extensions. The extensions are granted when producers have made the best effort possible to keep on schedule but could not due to uncontrollable circumstances, such as hardship or weather, or factors which had minimal impact on accomplishing the erosion reduction goals.

SCS does the annual status review to monitor conservation plan implementation. The agency also conducts annual quality reviews to ensure status reviews are accurate, adequately documented and completed in a timely manner.

DICKEY-john® HARVEST-HAND™
Portable Grain Moisture Tester

Harvest-Hand measures the moisture content of your grain automatically. It weighs the sample and automatically compensates for grain temperature. Just turn the unit ON, select the desired grain, and slowly pour your grain into the test cell. The measurement cycle begins automatically when the proper weight of grain has entered the cell. Read the direct temperature-compensated moisture content when display stops flashing.

Direct readings for these 12 grains:

1. corn	7. sunflowers
2. soybeans	8. canola
3. wheat	9. rice
4. milo	10. popcorn
5. oats	11. millet
6. barley	12. rye

Sale Price $197.50

We Stand Behind Every Axial Flow Combine Reconditioned by Hoober Combine Specialists!

Don Carper Says,

"When a salesman trades an Axial Flow Combine, he has my men prepare a detailed report of everything needed to repair the machine so it is ready to work with no or minimal downtime during the year's grain and corn/bean season. My men and I want the combine fixed right! We're the one's who stand behind it when a farmer buys it"

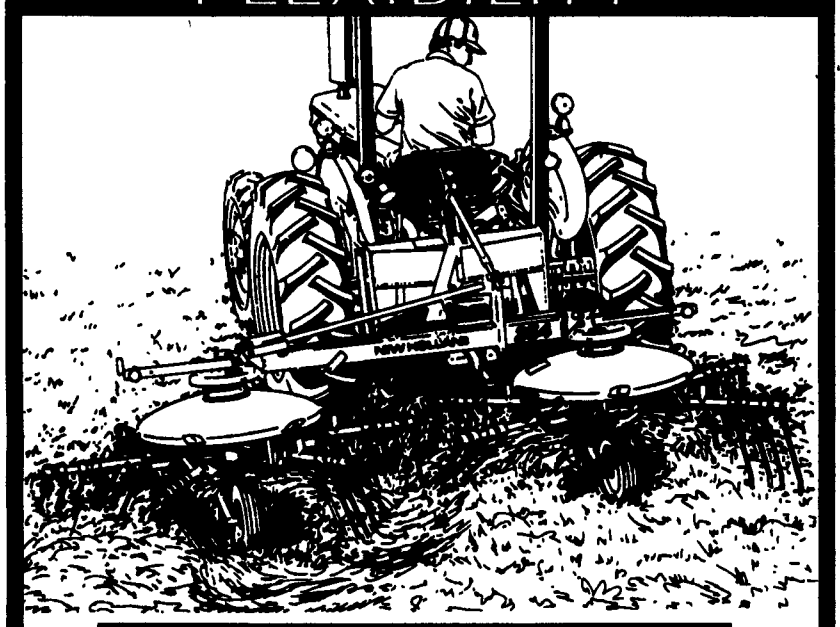
FLEXIBILITY



THE TEDDER THAT RAKES

Now, you can rake and ted with the same machine—the New Holland Model 254 rake tedder. The Model 254 lets you perform a variety of haymaking functions...rake a swath into a windrow, rake two windrows into one, turn windrows, and move crop away from treelines and fences. And, without tools you can convert the Model 254 into a tedder that will fluff up wet, matted-down crop for quick drying.

Stop in today. Let us show you the flexibility of the New Holland Model 254 rake tedder...only from Ford New Holland.

GARRETT IS BIG ON AG TURBOS

PLOW BIG SAVINGS ON GENUINE GARRETT TURBOS

Don't miss this opportunity to plow some big savings on Genuine Garrett Factory Remanufactured turbochargers. Your Authorized Garrett Distributor Penn Diesel Service should have a turbocharger or cartridge that fits your tractor, combine, or other farm equipment. If it's a turbocharged Ag engine, there's most likely a Garrett turbo on it. Look at the following list of OE's. There's a reason why they specify Garrett turbochargers for their engines.

- Allis Chalmers
- Deutz Allis
- Fiat Allis
- Ford
- International Harvester
- J.I. Case
- John Deere
- Massey Ferguson
- Navistar
- Perkins

For those same reasons, when it's time for a replacement turbo, it's time for Genuine Garrett. All Genuine Garrett turbochargers are remanufactured to original equipment specifications at the Garrett factory. It's your assurance of original equipment quality and performance with a warranty that matches the new turbo. Genuine Garrett turbochargers are remanufactured with this same high quality parts as new and reengineered for the most recent upgrades and refinements to maintain the exact performance characteristics into the original turbo. For more information on Genuine Garrett Factory Reman Turbos, see your local Garrett Distributor or call or write:

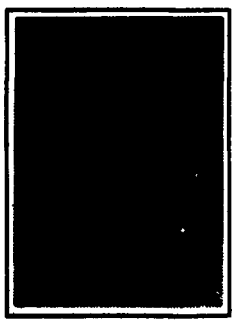
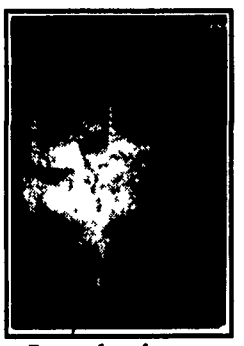
Safe • Efficient • Durable
Look at what makes the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace a great purchase...
CLEAN. All dirt, dust, fuel and fire is outside. No chance of chimney fire or flue fire.
ELIMINATES AIR POLLUTION IN THE HOME. Smoke, fuel odors and other causes of allergies are outside the home.
SAFE FOR MOBILE HOMES. Eliminates danger that other furnaces contained in a mobile home can cause.
NO DANGER OR EXPLOSION. This is a zero pressure furnace.
ENCLOSED COMPONENTS. The circulation pumps and electrical connections are enclosed in an insulated cabinet on the back of the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace.
ADAPTABLE. Install our furnace in any forced air heating or hot water system.

All Mahoning Units Come Installed with Grates Including An External Shaker Handle



★The only outdoor furnace made with a Catalytic Combustor.★

Mahoning Catalytic Combustor Will Help In the Following Ways:
1. Burn one cord of wood which equals 166 gallons of oil.
2. Your fuel source becomes enormous inexhaustible and poses few risks to public safety.
3. Over all efficiency of 85%, which means the heat no longer goes up the chimney!
4. You get more heat from a log compared to the non-cat. furnace.
5. More burn time - less reloading time!
6. Zap 90% of pollutants, made from fire source.
7. Saves you a lot of money!
8. User friendly, emits no smoke!



All Mahoning Multi-Fuels Can Burn Coal, Wood, Oil, Propane, Natural Gas

Proudly Built in Clearfield County, Pennsylvania

CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want

—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

Discover CLAAS
THE HARVESTING SPECIALIST

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

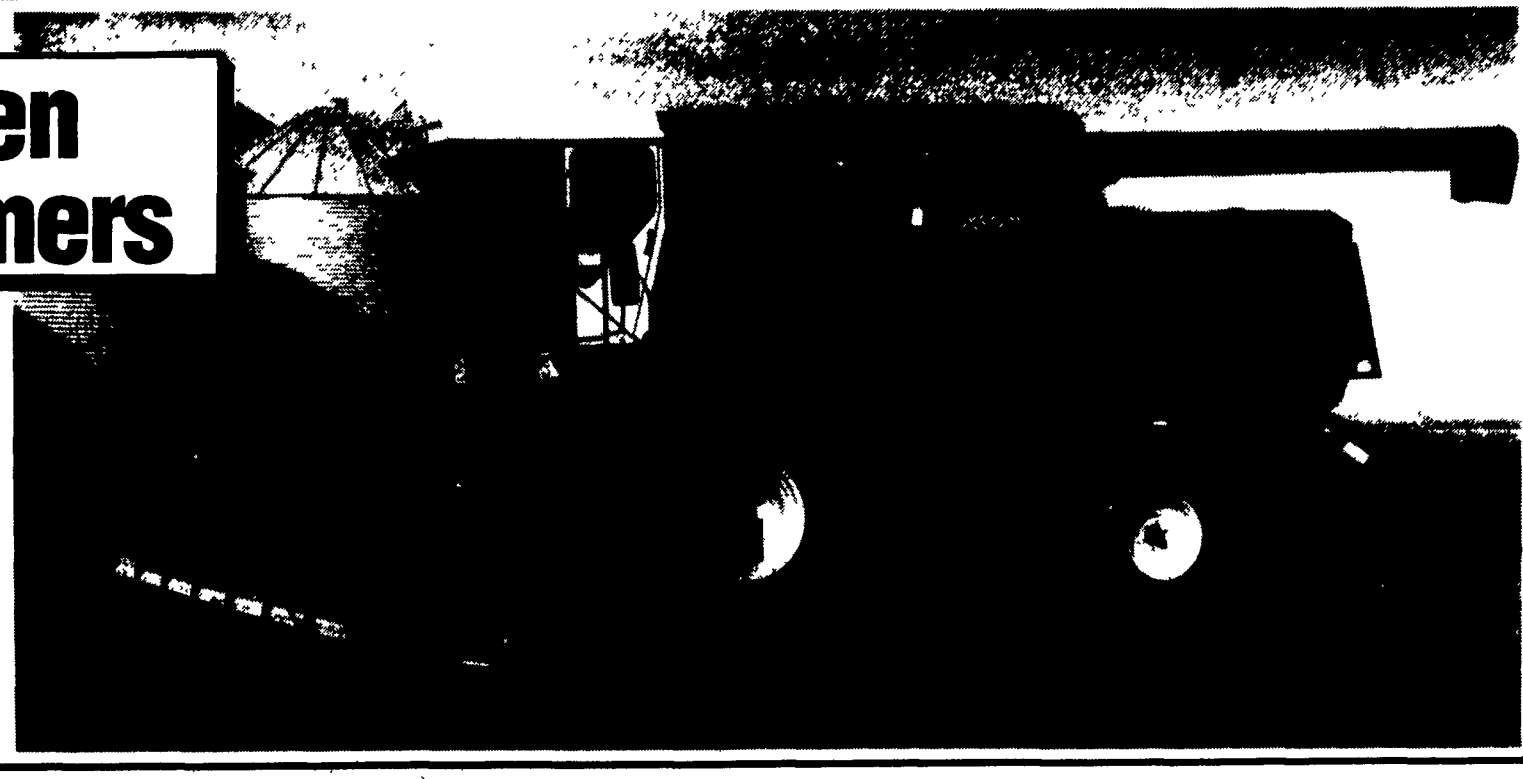
Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Call now to see how you can improve the round figures on your bottom line.

Proven Performers



The company that introduced the first self-propelled combine is still first with the features, performance and value you want. Intensive Separation System. Dynamic Hillside Compensation System. Turret unloading auger. Perkins Quadram engine. And much more.

Dairy Tips By Dr. Randy Lyle, Ph.D.

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

High Fat Rations For Dairy Cows

High producing dairy herds across the country have several things in common, examples being good management, high quality forages, and high dry matter intakes. Another common factor is feeding high fat rations. A national survey by Texas A&M University showed that over 60% of top DHI producing U.S. herds feed high fat rations.

Why feed high fat rations to dairy cows? Fat is the most energy-dense ingredient available, and energy is the nutrient that is most likely to limit peak milk yield and optimum breeding efficiency. There are many sources of fat for use in dairy rations, with the major ones being high oil seeds (e.g. soybeans, whole cottonseed), tallow (animal origin), and dry fats.

Cost, availability, quality, ease of use, palatability and response all determine which type of fat souce is best for your herd.

Purina Mills has researched high fat dairy rations for over 20 years. In addition, we have marketed high fat products since the mid 70's. Our knowledge of use of fats continues to increase. We know that fat is just one important part of the total "nutrient package" fed to high producing cows.

There are strict guidelines that must be followed when feeding high fat rations. Simply adding fat to a feed can create more problems than benefits. Our research and field experience has taught us how to use fat as a high performance ingredient in our premium dairy products. Those of you who have recently visited the Purina Mills Dairy Research Center, in Gray Summit, Missouri, have seen for yourselves the extensive work we are doing to expand our understanding of dairy nutrition. We will continue to develop higher performance dairy products that will help you meet your goals.
